NATIONAL BANKS SHAKE UP BOARDS

Big Institutions End Interlocking Directorates at Annual Meeting.

STATE CONCERNS AND DEPOSIT FIRMS ACT

Frank Vanderlip Resigns from Three Places, Remaining with National City.

The first concerted effort by national bank officers to comply with that provision of the Clayton anti-trust law directed against interlocking directorates was begun yesterday at the annual meetings of stockholders. The law was aimed chiefly at the big Wall Street institutions represented on more than one bank board.

Although the new statute does not become effective until October 1 there was a general disposition to follow out at this time the instructions contained in the act. In some cases the matter was postponed until a later date. This will make necessary calling special stockholders' meetings.

Among the more important banks where changes in the directorates were influenced by the Clayton law were the National City Bank, the National Bank of Commerce, the First National Bank and the Chase National, on whose boards were several directors of other banking institutions. The operation of the act will also cause many changes in the boards of trust companies. In such institutions as the Bankers' Trust Company, the Guaranty Trust Company and the Astor Trust Company, on whose boards are many national bankers, the directors will relinquish their affiliations with the state institution rather than with their national bank. Trust company meetings will be held chiefly this week.

Private Bankers Included.

Private bankers also come under the law, so far as their relations with national banks are concerned. This will affect certain members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. William H. Porter is a director of the Chemical National Bank, Thomas W. Lamont is on the First National board and Henry P. Davison is a director of the Liberty National Bank. J. P. Morgan is not a director of any banking institution, having resigned his memberships on such boards two years ago, when public sentiment was aroused by the criticism of interlocking directorships and their possible evils.

Among the prominent national bank officials who retired from bank boards yesterday were Frank A. Vanderlip, A. Barton Hepburn, Albert H. Wiggin and Francis L. Hine. Mr. Vanderlip resigned from the boards of the National Bank of Commerce, the Riggs National Bank of Washington and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. The only bank board on which he now serves is the National City, of which he is also president.

Mr. Hepburn, who is chairman of the Chase National Bank, retired from the board of the First National, and Mr. Wiggin, president of the Chase, resigned from the Bank of Commerce board, along with Mr. Hine, president of the First National, and W. A. Simonson, a vice-president of the National City Bank. Other changes that took place yesterday were:

CANADIAN UNION URGED

Ellison Wants Dominion and United States to Share Burden.

After Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State, had told his fellow diners at the Canadian Club dinner last night that the ideals, hopes and fears of Canada and the United States were one and that the enemies of the two countries were the enemies of civilization, William B. Ellison made a speech, which ended as follows:

"We are sister nations, children of the one mother country, and although each is doing a little housekeeping on her own behalf I do not believe that the sisterly love and affection have been dissipated.

"Shall these two sister nations then unite to carry on the burdens that will rest upon them, or will they, like sisters, go down into time arm in arm, each to the best of her ability working out, developing and promoting the destinies of the race?"

When the former Corporation Counsel finished one of the diners was heard to remark to another:

"Ellison suggests a union of Canada and the United States."

"That was always in his mind," said another, who knew him when, fresh from Canada, he and two others started the Canadian Club of New York.

$5,000,000 SOUGHT TO PENSION CLERGY

Episcopalians Sent Out Nation-Wide Appeal for Funds to Aid Pastors in Old Age.

Episcopalian rectors who chance to outlive their earning capacity will not be compelled to depend on charity if pension plans outlined yesterday afternoon in the library of J. P. Morgan's home are carried out. A fund of $5,000,000 is to be raised before July 1 as a foundation on which to build the pension programme.

Plans were sent to Episcopal churches in every city and town in the country to contribute to the original $5,000,000 fund. After that has been supplied each church will be called on to contribute a sum equal to 7 per cent of its rector's salary. This, it is thought, will be sufficient to keep the fund.

The national committee, which will start the fund, will be made up of J. P. Morgan, William H. Truesdale, president of the Lackawanna Railroad, and Bishop William Lawrence, of Boston. He announced that he would remain in New York until the requisite $5,000,000 had been raised.

Authorization for the pension fund was given at the General Convention of the Episcopal Church in 1913. No details were worked out then, but it was agreed that the sum should be sufficient to guarantee the faithful men who gave their life to the Church freedom from being compelled to beg for the necessities of life in old age.

In addition to the plea, an active campaign for raising cash for the fund will begin at once. Just what will be done will be decided at future meetings of the committee.

URGE U. S. MOVE TO HELP END WAR

Woman's Peace Party Speakers Plead with Legislators.

DESIRE OF WORLD, SAYS MISS ADDAMS

Want Wilson to Call Great Court for Disarmament—Senator Williams Skeptical.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Speakers for the Woman's Peace Party, headed by Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago, pleaded with the Senate and House Committees on Foreign Relations to-day to enlist the strength of the United States to help end the European war.

Miss Addams told the committees all Europe was ready for peace, the belligerent nations most of all if it could be gained for them without sacrifice of dignity and standing. Five European neutrals—Holland, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark—had assured her, she said, they would participate in a peace conference of neutral nations if called by the United States, and two of them promised to call such a conference if assured that the United States would participate.

Other speakers urged the adoption of a joint resolution introduced by Representative Curry, which would empower the President to invite all nations to send delegates to a convention to provide for disarmament, create an international legislature, court, army and police.

All of the warring nations have organizations seeking peace, Miss Addams said, but because of the patriotism of the press and people, who decline to talk peace for fear of discouraging the army, no nation has the means of learning the sentiments of its adversaries.

Introduced by Chairman Stone, chairman of the committee, as the official peace disciple of the Senate, Senator John Sharp Williams said:

"I am willing to say that I am in favor of peace on earth to all men of good intent, and that personally I wish to live at peace with all men except those that try to cultivate a war with me.

"I have a wife and daughter who are for peace as a general rule, but they want me to fight on certain occasions. I am willing to keep the peace so long as they wish, but when the time comes that some one invades their rights or mine, then I will either get a divorce or fight as well as the Lord will let me."

The applause from the delegates was faint. Among other speakers who advanced the arguments of the pacifists were Miss Sophonisba Breckinridge, Mrs. Crystal Eastman Benedict, Mrs. Louis F. Post, Miss Zona Gale and Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead.

QUIT GALLIPOLI IN HEAVY STORM

Piers Washed Away and Destroyers Couldn't Approach, Monro Says.

TURKISH ATTACK ON DAY BEFORE

British Trenches Shelled and Charged with Heavy Turkish Loss.

London, Jan. 11.—An additional report from Lieutenant General Sir Charles C. Monro concerning the evacuation of the southern tip of the Gallipoli Peninsula, and the fighting which preceded it, was made public to-night. It says:

"The Turks attempted a heavy attack on our lines on January 7 between 1:30 and 3 p. m. Our trenches were continuously shelled, and from 3 to 4 p. m. the bombardment was intense. The Turks also opened a heavy musketry fire.

"At 4 o'clock they sprang two mines near the western 'bird cage' and 'Fusilier' bluff. A quarter of an hour later they fixed bayonets all along our front. Their officers were seen apparently endeavoring to make their men assault. The assault only took place, however, opposite 'Fifth Avenue' and 'Fusilier' bluff, and the Staffordshires completely repulsed it. A large proportion of the charging Turks were killed or wounded. Our casualties were five officers and 130 men killed or wounded.

"Aeroplane reports showed that the naval fire on the left bank was most accurate, and it is probable that the enemy suffered considerably.

"The night of the 7th was fine. The evacuation and operations were quietly and successfully continued. The 8th was fine, with the sea calm until after 4 p. m., when the weather suddenly grew worse. At 11 p. m. the wind had increased to thirty-five miles an hour.

"From midnight onward it was only just possible to use the piers and lighters and impossible to carry out the programme of embarking the troops in destroyers alongside the sunken ships at West Beach, owing to the connecting piers being washed away. The embarkation at Gully Beach also became impossible. One lighter went ashore and the remaining troops had to march to West Beach for embarkation.

"In spite of these difficulties the programme at West Beach was completed by 2:30 a. m., and the troops from Gully Beach and all the beach party had embarked by 4 o'clock.

"A hostile submarine was reported off Cape Helles about 9 p. m. The Turkish artillery was practically silent the whole night until the stores were fired simultaneously by a time fuse after the evacuation was completed. The Turks then fired red lights all along the line and opened a heavy shelling on our beaches and second trenches. The red lights continued one and a half hours and the shelling until after daybreak.

"The French embarkations were carried out by their own navy, which also greatly assisted us by embarking some of our animals."

DIRECTORS DEPOSE ALFRED I. DU PONT

Was Vice-President and General Manager of Powder Co.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 11.—The fight among stockholders of the du Pont Powder Company over the transfer of the securities of the corporation formerly owned by T. Coleman du Pont, valued at about $65,000,000, reached an interesting stage to-day, when official announcement was made that Alfred I. du Pont had been deposed as vice-president and general manager of the company by the directors at a meeting held yesterday.

The announcement followed closely the filing in the United States District Court yesterday of a petition by Alfred I. du Pont asking permission to become a party to the suit filed by Philip F. du Pont against Pierre S. du Pont, president of the company, certain directors and others interested in the concern.

The suit of Philip F. du Pont was filed on December 10, and seeks to have annulled the sale of the stock of T. Coleman du Pont. It is alleged that the latter offered his stock to the du Pont Powder Company at a certain price. The offer was not accepted, it is alleged, and certain directors and others formed the du Pont Securities Company to finance a deal by which they could take over the securities.

Philip F. du Pont contends that the stock belongs to the du Pont Powder Company and not to the individuals making up the du Pont Securities Company. Pierre S. du Pont and other defendants named in the suit deny that there was any sharp practice in the acquisition of the stock and declare that the offer made by T. Coleman du Pont to the powder company was withdrawn.

Other members of various branches of the du Pont family have filed petitions asking permission to intervene in the suit.

PERSIA MYSTERY STILL UNSOLVED

Experts Say Internal Explosion Might Have Been Cause.

U. S. OFFICIALS AWAIT WORD ON LUSITANIA

Representative Fess Denounces Great Britain for Violating American Rights on Seas.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Information contained in some of the affidavits taken from the Persia survivors has caused government experts here to consider the possibility that the ship might have been sunk by an internal explosion rather than by a mine or a submarine. No final opinion has been reached, and Secretary Lansing, when asked about that feature of the case after to-day's Cabinet meeting, replied that no official conclusion on the cause of the destruction of the vessel had been made. He said no new details had been received.

The Cabinet was in session more than two hours to-day, and it was understood that the submarine question, including the Lusitania case, was discussed. President Wilson and Secretary Lansing now are awaiting word from Berlin on the Lusitania settlement.

Great Britain's guilt for violating American rights on the seas, Representative Fess, Republican, of Ohio, declared in a speech in the House to-day, is greater than that of Germany and her Allies.

"In our intense feeling against the Central Powers arising out of the use of the submarine against unarmed merchant vessels for which our government rightly demands 'strict accountability,'" said he, "we have either overlooked, forgotten, condoned or approved the attitude of Great Britain in her sweeping violation of the rights of neutrals. She has not only repudiated all her professions as found in her protestations as a neutral, but she has shamefully ignored all the important rights the United States has stood for and has done so upon the ground that she is fighting our battles for us."

Mr. Fess stood against any embargo on munitions.

Representative Foster, of Illinois, spoke for universal peace, urged American citizens to keep off belligerent ships and assailed Representative Gardner for his recent charge that German-Americans were committing disloyal acts.

London, Jan. 11.—"It seems to us that on present lines the Central Powers have the whip hand of the United States," says "The Manchester Guardian" in an editorial regarding Germany's new promises in the submarine controversy.

America's diplomatic victory, the paper goes on to say, is limited to promises, as President Wilson's two principles adopted at the beginning of the controversy—namely, protection of Americans and assertion of the laws of humanity—have been violated during the past six weeks in the Mediterranean with some of the worst submarine outrages.

WOOLEN REORGANIZATION

Plan Jeopardized by Failure of Stockholders to See Its Advantages.

William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, announced yesterday, that over 90 per cent of the preferred stock had been deposited under the plan for the sale of the assets of the New Jersey company to a Massachusetts corporation. A smaller per cent of the common has come in.

"Unless deposits of both preferred and common stock considerably exceed present amounts," said Mr. Wood, "it looks as though the success of the plan will be jeopardized. It remains to be seen whether the non-depositing stockholders will see before the end of the week the great advantage of the plan and thus save the situation."

PORT ORDER STRIPS WIRELESS FROM SHIPS

Vessels of Belligerent Nations Must Obey.

Radio antennæ of 200 ships of belligerent nations now in the port must come down at once, in compliance with the order issued January 6 by Secretary Daniels of the navy. A conference held in the offices of Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port, between Mr. Malone and navy officers yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of determining upon methods for carrying out instructions, resulted in the announcement.

It was said that all the aerials of German steamships which have been here since the beginning of the war had been taken down several weeks ago, with the exception of the apparatus on the Vaterland, the giant liner of the Hamburg-American Line's fleet at Hoboken. Despite the fact that the wireless instruments on board have been disconnected with the aerials and sealed, it is understood that the aerial must be lowered to the deck.

EX-CONVICT TRIES CELL AT EXHIBIT

Volunteers Insider's Opinion in Support of Prison Reform.

A prison exhibit, the first of its kind in the country and the chief feature of a twelve days' campaign of public instruction, was opened yesterday afternoon at the Russell Sage Foundation, at Twenty-second Street and Lexington Avenue. The exhibition was thronged from the moment its doors were opened.

In front of the reproduction of a two-bedded cell at Sing Sing was a swarthy man with a cap on the side of his head. He wormed his way through the crowd and into the cell, which is 3 feet 3 inches wide by 7 feet long.

Some one started to operate the lever which swings the steel barred door.

"Lemme out!" shouted the man inside, and hastily backed into the open, where he took a deep breath and mopped his face with his sleeve. "I done two years and six months in one of them :at holes. It's all there but the smell. I don't want to see it again.

"I was in three years ago, before Osborne got the job," he announced, "and, say, it was no place for a white man. In the morning you could wipe the sweat off the walls, and there wasn't enough air for a couple of dogs. They say it ain't so bad now."

English Holdings in Germany.

London, Jan. 11.—According to an official estimate made to-day, the value of property in Germany owned by subjects of Great Britain is approximately £72,000,000. The value of German-owned property in Great Britain was given as £105,000,000.

COLONIAL SILVER OF U. S. EXHIBITED

Teapot Made by Paul Revere Among Clearwater Pieces at Museum.

Visitors to the Metropolitan Museum of Art this month will have an opportunity to inspect the Clearwater loan collection of Colonial silver in Gallery 22, on the second floor.

All the pieces in this collection—the result of years of patient gathering by Judge A. T. Clearwater—were made in America and, with a few exceptions, are the work of native born Americans.

There are more than 140 pieces of hollow ware in the collection. Its completeness enables an exhaustive study of the chronological development of the various forms of beakers, tankards, porringers, mugs and teapots made by silversmiths who lived in Boston during the latter part of the seventeenth and the early years of the eighteenth century.

Among these is a teapot made by John Coney (1655-1722), of Boston, who engraved the plates for the first paper money used in America. Then there are a chocolate pot by Edward Winslow, a teapot by Paul Revere and a brazier by John Burt.

Among the recent art treasures acquired by the museum is a magnolia screen painted by Koyetsu, the founder of the Korin School and said to be one of the greatest artists of any race. This screen is truly Japanese in character.

Mrs. James R. Jesup has loaned to the museum "The Balloon" and "The Carrier Pigeon," two paintings by Pavis de Chavannes.

The recent accessions also include a portrait of Mrs. Mary Bowers, a daughter of Joseph Sherburne, of Boston. An oil painting and ten water colors by John S. Sargent have been placed on exhibition.

The jade room, containing the Bishop collection, after having been closed for repairs, has been reopened. The museum now has a list of 487 annual members. Edward Bement, Mrs. William H. Bliss, Samuel T. Hubbard, Mrs. D. Willis James, Walter Jennings and Edward Tuck were elected as "Fellows for life at the last meeting of the board of trustees, December 20. The others elected were fellowship members: Mrs. Helen Brice, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Thomas H. Foulds, Mrs. John E. Parsons, Percy R. Pyne, Charles A. Tyrell, Mrs. William Seward Webb and Mrs. Delos O. Wickham.

Sustaining members: Adolph D. Bendheim, Crella Doty Brown, Mrs. Edward N. Gibbs, Mrs. James J. Goodwin, Mrs. James J. Higginson, Mrs. J. H. Lancashire, Mrs. George Landers, George W. Mann, Mrs. John W. Markoe, Mrs. William H. Moore, Mrs. Horace Russell and Miss Elizabeth R. Wellington. Fellows in perpetuity: Dennisten M. Pell and Samuel Thorne, jr.
