PRIMARIES BRING VICTORY IN STATE TO HUGHES MEN

Delegates to National Convention and Committeemen Parties' Choice.

BARNES BEATEN, LEADERS DECLARE

Kracke Beats Livingston in Kings—Prendergast Wins Smart Victory.

The primary elections yesterday of delegates to the three party national conventions and of members of the state committees swept in all the organization candidates where there were contests in a "steam roller" manner. There was nothing to indicate in the returns up to a late hour whether Governor Whitman and Frederick C. Tanner, Republican State Chairman, had been knifed by the Barnes forces, as it was expected they would be.

The Whitman vote, which might indicate the Governor's strength for renomination, was the only feature of an otherwise dull election which aroused any interest in the leaders. They figured long ago on all the contestants of the organization candidates being handily beaten. The contests were purely local and had no further significance.

The election of the new Republican State Committee rivets the defeat of William Barnes for reelection to the national committee at Chicago, according to the Whitman-Tanner anti-Barnes forces. They have claimed that Barnes could not possibly be reelected since the designations of candidates for the primaries. State Chairman Tanner declared last night that Barnes would be beaten two to one when the delegates elect a new national committee at Chicago.

One of the state leaders declared last night that Senator Boies Penrose on a recent trip to this city sized up Mr. Barnes's case with accuracy when he said:

"Barnes is dead and don't know it."

"No one is worrying about the results," said Mr. Tanner last night. "We all know how it is going. The local factional fights are of little general importance. Everything is running as smoothly as it possibly could."

The Kracke and Livingston forces clashed in Brooklyn, and the Progressive wing of the Republican party in that borough, represented by the leadership of the Bridge Commissioner, went out. The open defiance of the Kracke forces against the Jacob A. Livingston "Old Guard" organization indicated an entirely new turn in Brooklyn Republican politics.

In the only Democratic contest for delegates to the national convention Ralph Pulitzer and Rowland Miles, the organization candidates in the 1st Congress District, won handily.

Whitman Here to Vote.

Governor Whitman came to town to vote. He cast his ballot a little after 5 o'clock at the florist shop, 980 Sixth Avenue, the polling place near his voting residence at the St. Regis Hotel. The Governor marked his ballot in less than two minutes. Public Service Commissioner Hayward accompanied him to the polls.

The Brooklyn contests and the Erie contests up-state, for Republican district delegates, were purely local factional disturbances and had no real effect upon the complexion of the delegation to the national convention, according to the leaders. While the New York Republican delegation will go to Chicago uninstructed, a large majority of the eighty-seven delegates are said to favor Justice Hughes for the Presidential nomination. Chairman Tanner is a Hughes man, and for that reason the Barnes crowd are displeased with him. A practically unanimous reelection as state chairman is expected for Mr. Tanner when the new state committee meets, probably Saturday. There appears to be little support for Colonel Roosevelt's candidacy in the new state committee, although it is believed a good many of the delegates would be willing to throw their support to Roosevelt if the demand was strong enough in the convention.

Republican state leaders are wary of Roosevelt, and are keenly interested in every move he makes and in every statement that he issues. They may set their sails for Hughes or Root, but they are not sure but that they may have to come about on the Roosevelt course at Chicago.

Barnes is considered down and out politically in this state by most of the big members of the state organization. One of them said yesterday that Senator Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania, whom he met in this city recently, sized up the Barnes case accurately when he said:

Calls Barnes "Dead."

"Barnes is dead and don't know it."

The one contest for Democratic delegates in the 1st Congress District could not alter the solid Wilson support of the whole ninety members of the delegation. Everything else was cut and dried and went through according to schedule. The few Progressive contests for national convention delegates were uneventful, and little interest is being shown in the personnel of the delegation, as they are expected to amalgamate with the Republicans at Chicago.

Although there were comparatively few votes to count, the returns came in slowly throughout Manhattan, Brooklyn and The Bronx. In some of the election districts scarcely a dozen votes had been cast during the first hour or two after the polls opened at 3 p. m. They closed at 9 p. m.

Extension of the polling places to the public school buildings proved most satisfactory. The number of school buildings utilized for the purpose in this city was 472. Herbert L. Bodman and George W. Kessler, of the Honest Ballot Association, who visited the polling places in the schools in the congested districts of the city, highly commended the improved conditions.

"There was practical unanimity on the part of the election officers and voters in praising the improved conditions which resulted from the use of the schoolhouses," said Mr. Bodman.

The chief interest in the Brooklyn Republican contests centred in Representative Haskell's bailiwick, the Brownsville section, where an open break occurred between the Kracke and Livingston forces for the first time in the history of Republican politics in that borough, according to the oldtimers. Bridge Commissioner Kracke came out openly in favor of the election of Clarence B. Smith and Baruch Miller, the Haskell designations for delegates to the national convention from the 10th Congress District. Jacob A. Freedman, who opposed Miller, was backed by Jacob A. Livingston, the titular leader of the Republican organization of Brooklyn. The anti-Barnes cry was raised against the candidates backed by Livingston.

Representative Haskell fought it out for membership in the state committee with Richard Lynster in the 23d Assembly District. Lynster was backed by Livingston. The "Old Guard" Barnes issue was used against Michael J. Dady, who opposed Alexander M. White as a delegate to the national convention in the 7th Congress District. Former State Senator John Kissel made it unpleasant for Controller Prendergast, whom he opposed in the 4th Congress District for delegate, with the cry of "carpet bagger."

Complete returns from the 17th Assembly District gave Charles E. Heydt an overwhelming victory over former Alderman Daniel M. Bede, for the leadership of the district. Heydt got forty-six members of the county committee to six for Bedell. The Bedell forces had waged a long independent campaign against Heydt, who has been the nominal leader since Abraham Gruber died. Mr. Heydt, who is a lawyer, is executor of the Gruber estate. The result was hailed with a celebration at the district Republican association. Bedell was beaten by William M. K. Olcott for member of the state committee.

All of the organization candidates for members of the Republican State Committee won in the five contested Assembly districts in New York County. James E. March beat Frank W. Callahan in the 3d; Henry C. Parke won over Albert Katz in the 5th, Louis Jacobson beat Herman G. Rabinowitz in the 8th, William M. K. Olcott won over Daniel M. Bedell in the 17th and Samuel Krulewitch beat Morris Tolmach in the 26th.

Controller William A. Prendergast won by seven to one over former State Senator John Kissel for delegate to the Republican National Convention in the 4th Congress District in Brooklyn. The late returns indicated that Clarence B. Smith and Baruch Miller, the Haskell candidates, for delegates from the 10th Congress District, Brooklyn, had won Miller was opposed by Jacob A. Freedman, the Livingston candidate. The Livingston forces, however, issued a statement at 11 o'clock, claiming that Freedman was elected.

At midnight Alexander M. White conceded the election of Mike Dady as delegate to the national convention by one hundred votes.

"Dady wins through the voiding of a large number of ballots," White said. "However, there is a question as to the legality of the throwing out of the ballots, and the courts will be asked to pass on the question."

The adherents of John S. Gaynor in 4th Assembly District, Brooklyn, claimed a victory over Alfred T. Hobley for member of the Republican State Committee.

The organization men in the contests in Manhattan for member of the Republican State Committee won in every instance. In the 8th Assembly District Republican leader Louis Jacobson had no trouble in defeating Herman G. Rabinowitz. In the 26th Assembly District Samuel Krulewitch easily beat out Morris Tolmach. There was only one contest in The Bronx, in the 33d Assembly District, and Leader Alfred B. Simonds won from Julius F. Feigel by about 10 to 1.

Joseph O'Grady, district leader of Staten Island, and candidate of the regular Democratic organization for state committeeman, was elected over Nathan Smyth, candiate of the Richmond Borough Democracy, by a 5 to 1 vote.

William G. Willcox, President of the Board of Education of New York City, was also snowed under by William Rowland in the general disaster that overtook the insurgent Democrats. Out of the twenty-three of a total of forty-seven districts that the insurgents contested they won not more than two committeemen.

Out on Long Island, in the 2d Congressional District, Theron H. Burden and Joseph De Bragga were easily elected Republican delegates to the national convention and state committeemen, but as a member of the county committee, Burden, caught napping, was defeated by a young lawyer, David Oggins. The other state committeemen were Herbert C. Conklin and Francis H. Luce.

Maurice E. Connolly and Arthur E. Keating were elected delegates to the Democratic National Convention, and state committemen elected were Assistant District Attorney Thomas Green, Maurice E. Connolly, Edward E. Cox and J. R. Higgins. The regulars won 167 of 177 districts.

The members of the Republican State Committee for Manhattan and The Bronx were:

CANDIDATE DROPS DEAD; BROTHER IS ELECTED

Death changed the result of the primary election in Long Island City yesterday, when Frank Fredericks was elected a member of the County Democratic General Committee for the Sixteenth Election District of the First Assembly District in the place of his brother, George Fredericks, who dropped dead as he was directing his district workers in the polling place at 315 Eleventh Avenue.

George Fredericks, who was the leader of the George Fredericks Club, influential in politics in the Steinway section, was busy in the polling place before the voting began when an attack of acute indigestion ended his life. Arthur E. Keating, the borough leader, at once called a district convention and Frank Fredericks was nominated. His name was written in on the ballots and he won by a large majority.

Whitman Runs Ahead in Upstate Primaries

Syracuse, N. Y., April 4.—At the Republican primaries to-day, Governor Charles S. Whitman easily led in the number of votes cast for delegates-at-large to the national convention.

Returns from many districts in Syracuse indicated that he had about nine votes to seven for Senator Elon R. Brown, who occupied first position on the ballot. United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, jr., was second in the number of votes.

Rochester, N. Y., April 4.—There was a light vote polled at the Republican primaries to-day. George W. Aldridge and James L. Hotchkiss were elected delegates to the national convention without opposition.

With the Democracy conditions were much different. Tammany and anti-Tammany forces clashed from the opening of the polls at 3 o'clock. Despite the fact that far from the full Democratic vote was not polled, the contests were close and bitter in each of the five Assembly districts. The Tammany adherents have elected three out of the five state committeemen and claim to control the country committee.

A feature of the fight was the defeat of Professor Howard H. Mosher, Democratic-Progressive candidate for Mayor during the last two mayoralty campaigns, by Robert A. Butler, a railroad fireman, who was the Sulzer leader in Monroe County up to a year ago. He is now identified with the Tammany faction.

Albany, April 4.—Albany County selected two rock-ribbed anti-Roosevelt delegates to-day to the Republican National Convention at Chicago. They are Senator Henry M. Sage and Ellis J. Staley, chairman of the Albany County Republican Committee, and their selection was unopposed.

The delegates were personally O. K.'d by William Barnes, who rules the Republican organization here with a firm hand, so that even the remotest possibility of their being for the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt would be more or less of a dream.

Troy, N. Y., April 4—Considerable interest was shown in the Rensselaer County primaries to-day. James J. Child was chosen Republican State Committeeman in the first district; in the second district Ex-Superintendent of State Prisons C. V. Collins and Frank L. Stevens ran so close that the winner will probably not have a majority of twenty-five votes. Delegates chosen to the National Convention from the 28th Congressional district are Henry M. Sage and Ellis J. Staley, and in the 29th district, L. W. Emerson and Harry A. Lewis.

The Democratic primaries were without contest.

Binghamton, N. Y., April 4.—The bitter fight for the control of the Republican organization in Broome County culminated to-night, when the primary polls closed, with a decisive victory for Senator Hinman's forces over those of State Excise Commissioner Green. The friends of Hinman believe that the result to-night will have a strong influence on his possible future gubernatorial candidacy.

Saratoga, N. Y., April 4.—After a primary fight, in which all the influence of Governor Whitman was thrown against ex-Senator Edgar T. Brackett, who was opposed for the Saratoga County leadership by State Senator Whitney, the latter was defeated today and will lose control of the county committee by at least ten majority.

Senator Whitney will be dropped as chairman of the county committee when it meets for organization next week. County Judge George R. Salisbury, who was one of the Whitney leaders, defeated former County Judge Nash Rockwood, the Brackett candidate for state committeeman.

LORD ACCUSED BY SULLIVANITES

Use of Police Influence Is Charge, but Deputy Is Unruffled.

WOODS, ANGRY, DEFENDS ASSOCIATE

"Known Mulligan for Years; Will Know Him Years More," Says Assistant Official.

Frank A. Lord, Second Deputy Police Commissioner, was accused yesterday of using his prestige as a police official to influence the primary fight in the 3d Assembly District in favor of Paddy Sullivan, brother to "Big Tim" and recently dethroned leader of his brother's domain.

Members of the Timothy D. Sullivan Association, the official political organization of the district, which Paddy once headed and which he now is opposing, appeared before Commissioner Woods at Police Headquarters yesterday and charged that the Deputy Commissioner was extremely intimate with Larry Mulligan, one of Paddy Sullivan's lieutenants, and had used his power to help the insurgent organization, the 3d Assembly District Tammany Club.

Mr. Lord refused to discuss the accusation yesterday. "I have known Larry Mulligan for fifteen years, and hope to know him for fifteen more," was his sole comment upon the charge against him.

The committee which conferred with the Police Commissioner came to his office to discuss a circular issued by the Timothy D. Sullivan Association. This circular dealt with the fight for state committeeman in progress between Sullivan and Harry Perry, the official organization's nominee. It contained a paragraph insinuating that the police would favor the cause of Sullivan on Primary Day because of "the close relationship existing between one of the deputy commissioners and a closely related member of the opposing faction." The men who conversed with Mr. Woods yesterday insisted that they stood by everything asserted in that circular.

Men Who Accuse Lord.

These men are John Cardone, a Deputy Assistant District Attorney; Cæsar Barra, Assemblyman for the 3d District, and B. F. Golden, county committeeman.

Barra, when questioned by the Police Commissioner, said that he knew Mulligan would do anything in his power to receive police aid for intimidation at the primaries. He said that before the split in the Democratic organization came he had worked with Mulligan and knew his tactics.

Cardone then spoke of the friendship between Lord and Mulligan, and said that the Deputy Commissioner had remarked that many of the men of the "Timothy D. Sullivan Association should be arrested." He also asserted that the people of the district believed that there would be police intervention, and that Paddy's followers had been boasting of what would happen on Primary Day.

Despite his gloomy forecastings, the regular organization defeated the insurgents overwhelmingly. Late last night it was said that Paddy Sullivan's ticket had been snowed under 6 to 1.

Commissioner Woods refused to take the accusation as calmly as Mr. Lord. At the conclusion of the interview he demanded the names of the officers of the "T. D. S." Association responsible for the publication of the objectionable circular, and threatened immediate action against them. Mr. Barra said that he had forgotten who the officers were, and requested the Commissioner to postpone investigation until after the conclusion of the primaries.

Woods on Warpath.

The police head, however, repaired to the Tombs police court and had a lengthy conference with Magistrate Murphy. Later he also talked with District Attorney Swann, and requested that John Doe proceedings be instituted at once against the publishers of the circular. Mr. Swann said that he did not believe such proceedings would be productive of results, but that if the Commissioner insisted, they might be brought.

Magistrate Murphy declined to discuss his conference with Mr. Woods when seen at his home last night. He admitted that the Police Commissioner had been to see him, but would not say whether they had discussed the accusation made against Mr. L
