Sunday Rehearses Death's Approach To Win Converts

Counts Off Last Seconds of Imaginary Man, Then Cries "'Phone for Undertaker"

Three Sermons To-day

Evangelist Says He Will "Make It More if the Crowd Wishes"

On the eve of his farewell day in New York Billy Sunday sketched last night at the Tabernacle a terrible picture of the approach of death. Those within earshot of his gurgling utterance as he clutched at his throat like one strangling squirmed in their seats. Before him the evangelist saw a sea of open mouths and glaring eyes. He was working up to one of his best trail-hitting climaxes, and the "punch" went home.

"Just one thing divides you people here to-night," he said. "You are either across the line of safety or you are just outside the kingdom of God. The time will come when a man's head with uncombed hair will lie upon the pillow. The time will come when he will hear a rap on the door, and as some one enters he will say, 'Who are you?' The answer comes, 'Death.'

"'I didn't send for you. Why do you come here?'

"I've Come to Foreclose"

"'Nobody sends for me,' answers Death. 'I choose my own time. I've had a mortgage on you for fifty years—from the very hour you were born—and I've come to foreclose!'

"'But I'm not ready,' gasps the man. 'Go take my pocketbook, get the key to my safety deposit box, take my gold, my jewels, my land, my house—all.'

"Death answers: 'I don't want your land or your money or anything you have. You must come with me.'"

Sunday clutched at his throat and groaned and gasped. Then he rasped out to the four corners of the vast tabernacle: "Death! Death! Don't blow that icy breath on me. Don't, don't crowd me against the wall."

As a referee counts out a fallen prizefighter the evangelist swept his hand through the air checking off the last few periods of life, beginning with a week and ending with the hours, minutes and seconds.

"You have ten seconds," he said to the dying man of his imagination. "Seven, eight, nine, ten—He's gone. Phone for the undertaker.

Calls to Silent Throng

Lifting up his hands toward heaven, Billy pleaded half sobbingly: "Oh, God, don't let that old infidel keep us out of the Kingdom of God."

With a leap from the left side of the platform to the right the evangelist pulled up the trapdoor that let him down to the level of the sawdust trail and called to the silent throng: "Who will come into the Kingdom of God? Come quick—quick!"

The first to reach him was a half dozen reporters who had covered his campaign, and the evangelist, bursting into joyous laughter, exclaimed: "Well, well! Joe, Joe! I'm so glad!"

Before reading his text from Matthew, vii, 34, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God," the evangelist announced that he would preach at least three times to-day, and would make it four or five if the crowd demanded it.

"I'm perfectly willing to squeeze in a few more sermons during the day," he said, "because I got four or five left."

David Bispham Sings

One of the features of the evening's musical programme was a solo, "Son of My Soul," by David Bispham, the American basso, who chanced to be in the auditorium and was called up as a favor to Mr. Sunday.

Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church, made a brief address on the Sunday free will offering, and at the close of the service it was said the offering thus far had reached $60,000, which is about $3,000 more than the total gift of Philadelphia.

The number of trail-hitters up to last night's revival had crossed the 90,000 mark.

The Tabernacle was filled to capacity last night and over 8,000 persons attended the afternoon service, at which the Rev. David James Burrell, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, made the opening prayer.

As the ushers were about to take up a collection in the afternoon, Billy stopped them and said:

"I used to play baseball; that is the way I got my start. Everybody loves baseball. It is the cleanest game in America. Now thousands of your boys are going to the firing line to fight for you and they will need some recreation. The collection this afternoon, instead of going to the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A., I'm going to put into baseballs, bats, gloves and masks so the boys can have a little fun."

Twenty-two thousand persons attended the Tabernacle last night and 10,000 were turned away. The 2,334 trail hitters who came forward—the greatest of any evening service during the Sunday campaign—brought the day's total to 3,189.

To-day's Program in the Sunday Revival

Sermons in the Tabernacle by Billy Sunday at 10:30 a. m., 2 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. If the crowd is overwhelming, Mr. Sunday promises to "slip in an extra sermon in the afternoon."

News in Brief

Nearly 4,000 school children, Home Defence Leaguers, Red Cross nurses, members of the Women's League for Active Service, firemen and Boy Scouts participated in Flag Day exercises at Port Richmond Park, Staten Island.

John Kajowski, seven, was fatally injured in Flushing by an automobile owned by Henry W. Taft, a brother of former President Taft. Mr. Taft was not in the car.

Saturday afternoon crowds on the Battery sea wall witnessed a collision between the steamship Corozal and the three-masted schooner Sallie E. Ludlam, which was capsized. Captain John Cameron, his wife and crew of five were thrown overboard. They were rescued.

Charles Whitney Coombs, organist and choirmaster at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, obtained permission from Surrogate Fowler to adopt as his son Kenneth M. Rogers, twenty-two, an alumnus of Syracuse University, whose parents are dead.

Seventy-two violators of traffic regulations were sent to jail and fines aggregating $6,569 were collected in the Traffic Court during the month of May.

A postcard appeal to shippers to move their freight at the earliest possible moment is being made by the Lehigh Valley Railroad to relieve the car shortage.

A fund to purchase and equip twelve ambulances for the Red Cross is being raised among the public school teachers.

Corporal Michael L. Speier, of the 1st New Jersey Infantry, who accidentally shot and killed himself with an automatic pistol on the doorstep of his sweetheart's home, will be buried with military honors in Newark tomorrow.
