Jugo-Slav Bishop Active in Politics

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—One of the most picturesque characters in Jugo-Slavic life is Dr. Anthony Jeglitch, Bishop of Ljubljana. Born in 1850 in a village of Carniola, he studied in Vienna and graduated from the University of Vienna as a doctor of theology. He was appointed professor of theology at the Serajevo Seminary, and in quick succession he became canon and then bishop, remaining in Serajevo, where he had plenty of opportunity to get acquainted with Bosnian conditions. In 1900 he was appointed prince-bishop of Ljubljana (Laibach).

About the time of his elevation the reign of terror of Germanization had already begun in Slovenia. Owing to his position, it seemed strange for Dr. Jeglitch to participate in party politics. Nevertheless, he did so, and was very active in the affairs of the largest Slovene party. Because of the agility and temperament with which he guarded the interests of his party, Dr. Jeglitch made bitter enemies among his own people belonging to other parties. But when the war broke out this feeling vanished.

As a Slovene Dr. Jeglitch had always felt that the three branches of the Jugo-Slav people, Croats, Serbs and Slovenes, really form one indivisible nation. Since the beginning of the war he has become a leader of prominence among all the Jugo-Slavs, honored by every one, including his enemies of yesterday.

The Weather Report

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—A cyclonic disturbance of more than ordinary severity has reached the extreme northwest coast of Washington, with a barometer reading of 28.96 inches, and the barometer also is low generally over the northern plains states, the Rocky Mountain region and westward to the Coast. Rain also has set in over Eastern Texas and Oklahoma. East of the Mississippi no rain has fallen the last twenty-four hours.

Rain is indicated during the next forty-eight hours in the east Gulf states, Western Tennessee and the lower Ohio Valley. Elsewhere in the Washington forecast district the weather will continue fair, but it seems that the present spell of fine weather in Eastern districts will come to an end Sunday or Monday.

The temperature will rise slowly in Atlantic coast districts to-morrow and Saturday. Storm warnings are displayed on the Pacific Coast from Point Reyes northward.

Forecasts for Special Localities.—Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware—Fair to-day and to-morrow; warmer to-morrow.

Western Pennsylvania, Western New York and Ohio—Fair and warmer to-day; to-morrow partly cloudy.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows temperatures during the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year:

PUBLIC NOTICES

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Albany, November 6, 1918.

NOTICE OF CLOSING OF STATE CANALS.

Unless sooner closed by ice, the Erie, Oswego, Cayuga and Seneca, and Black River Canals will be officially closed for navigation for the season at 12 o'clock midnight of Monday, November 25, 1918, and the Champlain Canal at 12 o'clock midnight of Saturday, November 30, 1918.

To the end that the canals may be free of all boats by the time fixed for official closing, the issuing of clearances for through traffic will close at the various canal terminals as follows:

On the Erie Canal, the Oswego Canal, the Cayuga and Seneca Canal, and the Black River Canal, at 12 o'clock midnight of November 20, 1918; and on the Champlain Canal at 12 o'clock midnight of November 27, 1918. For boats bound for intermediate points on the Erie Canal the point of destination will govern the last day of issuing clearances.

While the time of the official closing of the canals has been fixed at midnight of November 25, 1918, the locks will be operated after that date for the passage of such boats as may desire to risk ice and weather conditions. The work of removing aids to navigation, such as channel lights and buoys, will be begun on November 26, 1918, in order that such equipment may be removed from the waterway before ice conditions prevail. No boats will be permitted to be stored in the lock chambers during the winter season.

W. W. WOTHERSPOON,
Supt. of Public Works.
