City College Defeats Manhattan

Is Kumagae 'Coming Back,' Question in Tennis World

Many Believe the Jap Star Will Regain Former High Standing

By Fred Hawthorne

A question that is interesting many followers of lawn tennis in the East is: "Is Ichiya Kumagae 'coming back' this season and regain the high ranking he held during his first visit to this country, in 1916?"

The apparent reason for this revival of interest in the little man from Japan lies in the fact that he recently defeated Vincent Richards, the national indoor champion, in the semi-final round of the North and South tournament at Pinehurst. Two months previously Kumagae had been beaten by the sixteen-year-old champion in the covered court tournament in Philadelphia. His poor showing on the latter occasion gave rise, in certain quarters, to the idea that the foreigner's game was on the decline, and that never again would he figure as a really formidable opponent to our top-ranking men.

Kumagae did much to dissipate this opinion through his easy victory at Pinehurst. He swept through the match with ease, driving with all of the old sting on his forehand that used to mark his work, and he covered his court with fine speed and keen anticipation of his opponent's returns. I did not witness this match, hence I can only draw my conclusions from the comparative score and hearsay evidence. It seems, however, that Kumagae, in addition to his strong backcourt play, also went to the net with greater frequency than usual, and was quite successful in smothering Richards's attempted passing shots, besides smashing lobs with accuracy and severity.

Goes Down to Defeat

Two or three days later, however, in the final round of the same tournament, Kumagae went down defeat at the hands of William T. Tilden 2d, national clay court champion, never having a chance of winning from his fall rival. It was practically a repetition of the match between Tilden and the Japanese at Forest Hills in the national singles last year, the Philadelphian completely smothering Kumagae by his speed and hard hitting and his lightning net attack.

It is from these facts that we must draw our conclusions as to whether the Japanese is going to be as strong a player in 1919 as he was in 1916, when he was placed at No. 6 in the national ranking list. Frankly, I do not believe so. Kumagae, in 1916, made a remarkable record on American courts, winning many titles and defeating, among others, William M. Johnston, of California, national champion of 1915.

But in those days there was the element of surprise in the situation. The Japanese came to the United States with what was practically a new game. The outstanding feature of his play was wonderful accuracy, and this, combined with unusual steadiness and a peculiar "loop" forehand drive, did much to carry him along to success over all but the strongest net players.

Rarely, if ever, did Kumagae attempt to come to the net during his campaign of 1916. He was so steady from the back of the court, and his forcing shots carried such "pace," that he did not find it necessary to forsake his base line in order to win his points. Woe betide the net player who faced the Japanese when his net attack was not going at its best. Johnston faltered just a trifle in the match at the Newport Casino, and Kumagae, driving with beautiful accuracy, passed the Californian repeatedly for the points.

In 1917 the man from the Far East returned to his native land, and it was not until last year that he returned to this country. He won the New York State championship singles at the Yahnundasis Golf Club of Utica from a poor field, and that was about his most important victory. Thereafter he met with several defeats, and the reason was not far to seek.

Learns American Game

Kumagae, during his absence from the United States, had evidently determined to learn the American net game, and when he made his reappearance it was with a style of game that was neither "fish, flesh nor fowl." He had lost much of his deadly accuracy from the back of the court; he did not make use of his baffling "loop" drive so frequently, and his strokes did not seem to carry the same sting that they formerly did. To offset these losses the Japanese had only a very modre net game, and the combination was not sufficiently good to carry him through against men he had easily beaten two years before.

It had become evident, by the end of the 1918 season, that Kumagae would either have to acquire the American net-rushing style of play of fall back upon his original deep-driving attack if he hoped to meet with his former successes on our courts. There are signs, thus early in the present season, that the man from Japan has materially improved his game at the net, but it is not yet strong enough to prevail against our "first ten" string, and I do not look for Kumagae to gain a ranking in that elect group in 1919, provided that the rest of our greatest players return to championship competition this year.

Jack Sellers Enters Suburban Quarter

Jack R. Sellers, the present middle distance sensation of this country, announced yesterday his intention to compete in the Suburban Quarter, the feature event, of the annual indoor games of the Knights of St. Anthony at the 47th Regiment armory, Brooklyn, on next Saturday evening. In acquiesing to the publication of his name, Sellers accompanied it with the statement that he felt confident of winning the contest.

The national champion has no fears for the seven other cracks that will oppose him. Sellers has mapped out his campaign of defeating his opponents. Loren Murchison, Ted Meredith and Homer Baker, appear as Sellers' most important rivals, and it is very likely that in the fight for the rich $100 prize, the record of 49 seconds for this race will be broken. Eddie Hosmer, Con Shaughnessy, rAthur Reilly, George Derhell and James J. O'Brien, complete the field of starters.

Fighters See Ball Game

Willie Ritchie and Benny Leonard, who are scheduled to box eight rounds at the Newark Sportsmen's Club on Monday night, knocked off training early yesterday afternoon to attend the opening of the baseball season at the Polo Grounds. Leonard was accompanied by his entire staff of trainers and a host of friends. Ritchie motored up with his trainer, Dr. Jeffrey.

Rothstein Fans Seven Opponents In Ball Game

The baseball team of the College of the City of New York yesterday scored its first win of the season when it defeated the Manhattan College nine at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Lavender men hit the ball hard and timely and towards the end of the contest ran the bases wildly, scoring almost at will. Rothstein, the City College twirler, was in fine form, fanning seven of his opponents.

The Heights lads started off wkith a rush in the first inning, everybody getting a chance at the bat. Barlow doubled, Gelly followed with a single, Cullon walked. Piedmonte then cleared the bases with a double that almost went over the fence. Murray was hit by the pitcher, who was eagerly seeking the refuge of the showers. Lebow then sacrificed, Diamondstein walked and when Krinsky forced out Lebow, Piedmont scored. At this juncture the Green pitcher retired and Mahoney who took his place retired the side without any further damage.

Manhattan came back in the second, scoring three runs with the aid of two singles and a fumble by the City College third baseman. They tied the score in the third when Rothstein became wild and issued the only passes of the contest. Regan got a free ticket to first, and moved along on Lyon's single. Deegan also got to first on the free route, and when Deegan hit a sacrifice fly, Regan tallied the tieing run.

C. C. N. Y. sewed up the pastime in the eighth stanza when Murray, who got on base on an error and Diamondstein, who singled, were sent home when Krinsky poked the ball to the right-field fence for a two-bagger. Krinsky himself scored when Lebow singled.

The score:

Reading Honor Guest at Durland's Spring Horse Show

Lord Reading, British Ambassador to the United States, and Lady Reading are to be the chief guests of honor at the New York spring horse show, which opens next Tuesday at Durland's and continues through Wednesday and Thursday. They will be on Thursday, May 1, the individual guests of Mrs. Burke Roche, who heads the show's Women's Auxiliary Committee.

Mrs. Burke Roche's associates on this committee include Mrs. William Jay, Mrs. Courtlandt D. Barnes, Mrs. Philip A. Clark, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Edwin Gould, Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, Mrs. S. Harold Freeman, Mrs. Gordon Macdonald, jr., Mrs. John McCormack, Mrs. James Curtiss, Mrs. Samuel Willets, Mrs. Edward M. Weld, Mrs. William Douglas, Mrs. Dudley Olcott and Mrs. John Sloane.

From the personal standpoint this exhibition should rank high among New York horse shows. Society will be present in large numbers, the Governor, the Mayor of New York and some high representatives of the national government, probably Josephus Daniels. Sir Thomas Lipton has promised to be present, though he has not yet indicated what night he will attend.

In addition to regular horse show features the Motor Corps of America, Major Helen Bastedo commanding, will drill. The show is to be for the Motor Corps' benefit and many added attractions are to be featured because of this. General O'Ryan and the jazz band he has brought back with him from France are to figure and there will be foreign officers in great profusion. French, English, Italian and Belgians are to ride in the military classes and there will be a drill of 100 policemen. Admiral Mayo and the staff of his fleet are also to be on hand.

Victory bonds will be sold throughout the auditorium the first night by the League of Catholic Women; on the second night by the National League for Women's Service, and on the third night by representatives of the Lithuanian Republic. The opening night is to be City Night, Wednesday State Night, and Thursday National Night.

A horse is to be raffled during the show for the Motor Corps' benefit. It has been presented by Samuel Keller Jacobs and is named "Blackie Daw" (after the famous Wallingford character). If the winner will give it back to the show it will be auctioned off the last night.

Soccer Cup at Stake Next Saturday Afternoon

The annual match for the American Football Association cup, emblematic of the championship of that thirty-year-old organization, has been awarded to Philadelphia and will be played in the Tacony ball park on next Saturday afternoon, with kickoff at 4 o'clock. The participating clubs are the same as those which clashed in the national soccer championship battle at Fall River last Saturday, in which the Bethlehem Steel Football Club, of Bethlehem, Penn., defeated the Paterson (N. J.) Football Club by 2 goals to 0.

George Young, of Philadelphia, will referee the A. F. A. final. The linesmen will be C. Scott and James A. Walder, both of the Quaker City. Walder is secretary of the United States Referee Union.

C. C. N. Y. to Play Rutgers

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 23.—The Seton Hall baseball game, scheduled to be played here to-day, has been dropped owing to unavoidable difficulties, and Syracuse will play here on Friday of this week instead. C. C. N. Y., will also play here this week, being scheduled for Saturday.
