Twin Debutantes; Made in U. S. A.

By John C. Johansen

This picture was exhibited at the Avalon Galleries.

The artist, who painted more than a score of pictures in Government-owned shipyards during the war, has depicted here two excellent reasons for the further development of our merchant marine. These ships will presently go, figuratively if not literally, "rolling down to Rio," Singapore, Antofagasta or Port Said—far ports from which our merchant flag has been too long absent.
