Market Upset By Possibility Of Steel Strike

Samuel Gompers's telegram to President Wilson, asking for a conference forthwith with officials of the Steel Corporation yesterday, reminded traders in securities that the problem had not yet been settled. News of the communication, which charged the corporation with oppressing labor, came at a time when the market was none too strong technically, and a sharp decline in the prices of industrial stocks took place around midday.

Toward the close, after operators had an opportunity to fully digest the challenge from labor, prices regained part of their losses. Final sales revealed great irregularity in the fluctuations, and, although some securities gained during the day, the majority showed losses varying from a fraction to eleven points in Crucible.

Some observers took the view that the message sent by Gompers and his associates was at bottom a symptom of weakness, holding that if the unions actually represented a majority of the steel workers the leaders would talk less bombastically and act more decisively. Internal market conditions seemed to be making for a natural reaction when the contents became known, inasmuch as some of the industrial stocks had been rising with extreme rapidity during the last fortnight, in several instances reaching new high levels for the year.

Crucible Steel, whose upward course was checked on Thursday, dropped to 169 yesterday, and in brokerage circles it was rumored that shorts had made a private settlement outside of the open market. At any rate, the tendency to bid up the price of the stock, which carried it from 52⅞ to 194¾ this year, was lacking during the last two days. Baldwin Locomotive, another rapid mover, closed at 119, off 4 points for the day. American Woolen lost 3½ points, and it was the industrial shares which had climbed most spectacularly which responded to the reactionary influences yesterday. Steel common lost only 1⅝ points, closing at 104⅞.

Beginning Wednesday of this week the market started to broaden notably. Transactions yesterday exceeded 1,750,000 shares, and were larger than at any time since August 8. Two hundred and seventy-four different issues of stocks were bought and sold.

Foreign exchange rates were extremely weak yesterday. The franc, the lira and the mark again touched new low levels, and the condition of the market contributed to the unsettled feeling which prevailed in Wall Street. Cotton continued to be weak, but corn and oats turned stronger

The bond market was irregular. Most dealings were again in Liberty bonds.

Money and Credit

Most of the call money loans at the Stock Exchange were made at 5½ per cent yesterday. Toward the close of the market day the rate climbed up to 6 per cent. Time money was in fairly large demand, but no renewed offerings were forthcoming.

The ruling rates for money yesterday, compared with a year ago, were as follows:

	Yesterday. Per cent.	Year ago. Per cent.
