New York Permits One-Eyed Man to Drive Motor Car

Inquiry Following Fatal Taxicab Crash Discloses That Physical Defects Do Not Disqualify Chauffeur

A man with only one eye or one arm can without much difficulty get a license to drive an automobile in New York City, it was learned yesterday. According to Magistrate Frederick B. House of the Traffic Court, this condition is a menace to those who use the streets.

This fact was developed in an investigation following an accident Thursday night, when a taxicab driven by a one-eyed man dashed across a crowded sidewalk, killing the driver and injuring two passersby. Henry J. Lawson, the driver, was known as "Society, the one-eyed chauffeur." He had driven a car safely for fifteen years, it is said, but the accident Thursday was attributed to the fact that his infirmity made it necessary to turn completely around to look behind.

Licenses to drive cars are issued by the Automobile Bureau, 127 West Sixty-fifth Street, which is under the supervision of Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State. Owners of cars and others who wish to drive without being paid for their services are required to have "operators' licenses," which can be obtained by filling in an application blank and sending it to the Automobile Bureau with a $2 bill.

The application contains the question: "Have you any mental or physical incapacity of which you are aware which would in any way interfere with proper management and control by you of a motor vehicle?" The applicant must swear to his answer, but is not required to undergo any examination to get the license.

Test for Chauffeurs

Applicants for chauffeurs' licenses, which are issued to those who drive cars for hire, are required to fill out similar blanks. In addition, they must pass a road test and mental examination, which is administered by one of the staff of the Secretary of State.

F. P. Redmond, chief of the Automobile Bureau, admitted that although his examiners have made every effort to keep men who are physically incapable from driving cars, there is no bar against specific physical defects, such as the loss of one eye, one arm or one leg.

"We hate to take away the means of making a living from a poor fellow with some slight defect," said Mr. Redmond. "In many cases these men have apparatus on their cars which enables them to drive more easily than those with perfect bodies. Not long ago a one-armed man applied for a license, and I called the chief examiner to look him over. He found that the man was a crackerjack, fit to drive a car anywhere.

Strict With Deaf

"With deaf men we are particularly strict, because they may often be unable to realize everything that is going on around them. If a one-eyed man comes in we are careful, but we do not disqualify him simply because of this defect. Very often habit or instinct has made the remaining eye of such a man so keen that he can do very well.

"The Automobile Bureau is often powerless to detect those who take the road tests by proxy," Mr. Redmond said. "Sometimes an applicant will send one of his friends to undergo the examination for him, and the examiner will take the substitute out on the road, question him and test his driving ability without realizing that he is not the person to whom the license is to be granted.

"Further, the bureau has no means of discovering defects acquired after the first application for a license. The license may be renewed each year by mail. The license held by Lawson, who was killed in the accident of Thursday, had been issued many years ago.

Magistrate House said that the staff of Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State, for enforcing the automobile license law is too small for safety.

Holcomb Refuses Mayors

Governor Turns Down Special Session for Daylight Law

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 28.—Governor Holcomb thinks that a desire to enact a daylight-saving law no more constitutes such a "social emergency" as would enable him to call a special session of the Legislature than does the sentiment for ratification of the national suffrage amendment, and refused again to-day to call such a session.

It is his fifth refusal, the others having been in response to requests to assemble the Legislature for ratification of the suffrage amendment. The fifth request came from the mayors of all cities in the state, who wished to have a daylight-saving law enacted along the lines of the ordinance recently adopted in this city.

Thugs Lose $2,500 of Loot

Part of $6,000 Taken Spilled on Ground in Escape

PASSAIC, N. J., Nov. 29.—John Slebodnik, night paymaster of the Gera Mills, on Eight Street here, was robbed of a satchel containing $6,000 by thugs to-night. The robbers, in their haste to escape, overturned the satchel, spilling $2,500 on the ground, where they left it.

Slebodnik had just entered the storehouse building of the mill when he was struck over the head. He fell, and as he tried to draw his revolver was hit again and knocked out. The men worked so quickly that, although 400 employees were within earshot, they were able to get away.

General Weather Conditions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The Arizona disturbance of the last few days has about disappeared, and pressure has risen considerably over that section. It has, however, fallen decidedly elsewhere, except in the Atlantic states, with principal centers of depression over Northwest Arkansas and Southern Saskatchewan. The weather remains generally cloudy, except in the extreme Southwest, with continued snows and rains over the interior districts and on the north Pacific coast.

As a rule, except in the Atlantic states, temperatures have risen, but they are still from 10 to 35 degrees below the seasonal average in the plains states and the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions.

Unsettled weather will continue Saturday and Sunday east of the Mississippi River, with rains and snows over the northern and rains over the southern districts. It will be somewhat warmer Saturday and Sunday night in the Atlantic states and colder Sunday in the east Gulf states and the Ohio Valley.

A disturbance over Northwest Arkansas is moving north-northeast with an apparent rapid increase in intensity.

Forecasts for Special Districts.—Eastern New York—Unsettled Saturday, with rain in south and rain or snow in north portion by night; warmer Saturday night; Sunday rain.

Western Pennsylvania—Rain Saturday and probably Sunday; colder Sunday night.

Western New York—Rain or snow Saturday and probably Sunday; warmer Saturday night.

Southern New England—Cloudy Saturday, rain by night; Sunday, rain.

New Jersey and Delaware—Cloudy Saturday, rain by night, slightly warmer; Sunday, rain.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy and slightly warmer Saturday, rain by night; Sunday, rain.
