Stocks Higher As Exchange Rates Advance

Some Speculative Securities Score New Highs for the Year; General Trend of the Market Is Upward

Impulses for higher prices resulted in higher quotations yesterday in the principal financial markets. Although several new high records for the year were made in speculative securities in the stock market, the upturn in securities was less striking than the further spurt in the dollar worth of the European exchanges and the resumption of the rally in wheat.

Sterling, francs (French and Belgian) and guilders climbed to the highest levels quoted thus far in 1922. Canadian dollars were correspondingly firm. The initiative for the new movement came from London, but after the New York market opened leadership in the upbinding centered here. No new figure seemed to sway the exchanges. The scarcity of bills, particularly of wheat and cotton bills, made the rates extremely sensitive to buying inquiries. Closing 1⅞ cents higher for the day and ⅝ of a cent above the previous high for the year, sterling cables closed at the peak.

The strength of the European exchanges, which has the effect of increasing the purchasing power of Old World customers in this market, was an influence in the rise of wheat quotations, which ascended to new high levels, gaining from 4 to 6¼ cents a bushel. May futures were quoted at $1.46¾, and July at $1.27 a bushel. The gain in May is equal almost to 50 per cent, compared with the lowest price quoted on this delivery. In the last month the disparity of farm prices—grain, hogs and other livestock—compared with the general price level has been greatly reduced. This heightening of the buying position of the farmer is an important factor in creating among speculators a favorable attitude toward securities. Cotton, too, was firm.

At the Stock Exchange Steel common reached a new high level for the year and the general trend was upward. Bonds moved slightly higher, too, especially foreign bonds, moving in sympathy with the foreign exchanges.

Money and Credit

Opening and renewing at 4 per cent, call money yesterday was advanced to 6 per cent, due to calling of loans by several banks and withdrawals by interior institutions. Time money was quiet, with brokers bidding 4¾ per cent and bankers holding for 5 per cent.

The Dollar in Foreign Exchange

Increased demand for commercial bills on European centers carried exchange rates to new high levels for the year in several instances yesterday. Sterling closed at the top, $4.39⅝, showing a net gain of 1⅞ cents for the day.

French francs crossed the 9-cent level and lire got above 5 cents. Guilders advanced above 38 cents. Scandinavian rates were irregular, while German marks sold lower.

The discount on Montreal funds here dropped to a new low at 3 per cent.
