Day's Dealings in Bonds

The Market

Offering of new bond issues continues slack, providing the occasion for the employment of bond salesmen in obtaining firmer placement for securities already outstanding. Their efforts, coupled with the plenitude of investment funds and the relative scarcity of free bonds, have contributed to the present strong position of the market. A better tone was imparted to trading yesterday by a recovery of French issues in the course of which they retraced the major part of Monday's lost ground. The cheaper railroad bonds still tended downward, but held better than during the earlier session. Public utility bonds acted best as a group, the performance of industrial issues being irregular. Liberty bonds showed few changes in quiet dealings.
