with Austria, or is it only a vaunt of power, under the influence of which Prussia may prate on a revision of the Federal Constitution to her own advantage? Austria has, indeed, been unusual, haughty and unconciliatory. The common language of her authorities has been that there is nothing for it now but to fight. Austria-Germany against Prussia-Germany. But the power of Austria is no longer equal to the task. With a running deficit of 80,000,000 florins—money borrowed, and not likely to be paid to the Bank of Vienna; 300,000,000 florins of excess above the extraordinary means of 200,000,000 florins raised for the Austrian war of two months; with her financial good faith damaged; and with Lombardy, which gave one-fifth of the Austrian revenue, gone, the sinews of war are no longer present to give force to any extravagant pretensions at Vienna. Prussia must feel that Austria can be forced on by Austria, the result must be, sooner or later—and probably rather later than sooner, for thought and action are deliberate in German bodies—to unite small states to Prussia. Beside the haughtiness of Austria, nor even the affair of Rome Cassel, which has been going on for 20 years like a tempest in a teapot, but has never yet bubbled over, concern us, however, any great alarm, except for the general condition of Europe when so large an army is considered necessary by a prudent but not very enterprising State.—London Times Nov. 8.

Frightened by Whippoorwills.

The Baltimore Patriot says:

We were present during the night of wild excitement at Harper's Ferry, when the frightened former, Jesse Moore, mistaking the cry of the whippoorwills in the mountains for the screams of his neighbors, rode into the town, calling to the people to arm themselves and proceed to the assistance of the people in the Valley, where he stated murdered Colonel John Cook and his band of Abolitionists. Of all the citizens of the Ferry, no one seemed to doubt the truth of the story, and the strangers who were present were regarded with suspicion for expressing the belief that Captain Cook was hanged. In the hurry to seek the safety of his family, rather than search for Cook, he would place in further jeopardy. Colonel Lee, who had command of the marines, endeavored to quell the panic and secured the whole story, but when he found that the entire population of the vicinity had been aroused by the alarm spread by the excited messenger, and were flocking into the town with their wives and children for safety, he concluded to start out with a squad of men to quiet the general apprehension. In a short time he returned and reported the disappointed victims of the measure to have been all sound asleep and somewhat frightened by the appearance of a military force under their windows.

THE Wisconsin Legislature, recently elected, is divided politically as follows: Senate—Republicans, 17; Democrats, 12; Independent, 1. House—Republicans, 54; Democrats, 39; Independent, 3. The figures are furnished by the Milwaukee News, (Dem.)

J. G. BERRIMAN, principal of a female seminary at Vandalia, Ill., has been arrested for committing a terrible rape upon a girl fifteen years of age, whose room he entered at night through a window, dressed in rough clothing, and terrified her by presenting a dirk at her breast. In her struggles she tore off his false whiskers, and that exposed him.

THERE is said to be a gang of ruffians infesting the country about Pensacola, Florida. Lately a quantity of poisoned meat was scattered about a house, and in the morning the inmates found several cats and dogs dead. A number of citizens have formed themselves into a company of regulators for protection, and to administer punishment to the depredators.

A SALE has been set aside by a Court in Wayne county, Indiana, because the real estate advertised to be sold was not advertised in the newspaper printed nearest the said real estate. It is therefore held that, where any newspaper is printed even the distance of one rod or more from the property sold then that in which the property is advertised, such sales are voidable, and titles derived under them liable to be set aside.

AN old grudge having existed for some time between Mr. SANDERSON, a planter, of Hernando county, Mississippi, and WALTER G. CLARKE, of Abbeville, they met at the University Hotel, in Oxford, on the 26th ult., when CLARKE abused the other and tried to shoot him, but was prevented. After tea they met again, and CLARKE beginning another assault, SANDERSON drew a pistol and shot him dead. SANDERSON was acquitted before a legal tribunal.

A PLOT to release the prisoners in the New London county jail in Norwich has been discovered. Several attempts have been made to gain admission, by digging and scaling the roof. The design of those engaged in this business is supposed to be the release of three men confined on charge of pocket picking, who are supposed to belong to an organized band of thieves in Philadelphia, sworn to stand by each other to the death. The watchfulness of the Sheriff and jailor prevented the plot being carried into execution.

JEROME BONAPARTE, of Baltimore, who recently returned to the United States, has refused the dignity of Senator of France, offered to him by his father, Prince JEROME, in order to induce him to remain in France. Mr. BONAPARTE preferred the simple title of American citizen to that of Senator of France. After the efforts made by the American branch of the BONAPARTES to obtain recognition as legitimate members of the Imperial family, the hour of this refusal will create some surprise.

MRS. GEORGE B. NICHOLS, of Bridgeport, Conn., was robbed a few nights ago on the Michigan Central Railroad, while en route for Galveston, Texas. She states that she and her son, aged about seven years, entered the sleeping car on Thursday and took a berth. She had with her $100 in gold, which, for safe keeping, she had sewed inside of the bosom of her dress. A short time after she went into the sleeping car, she was startled by the entrance of a fashionably dressed woman, who was so highly perfumed as to fill the car with her fragrance. This was the last she remembered until the conductor aroused her from her stupor to change cars, when she discovered that her dress had been cut open and her money stolen.

ON Wednesday of week before last, a Mr. EDMINSTER, of Porter County, Indiana, who had bought a farm of a Mr. ROSE, in the same vicinity, drew $4,350 out of bank to pay for it. He started across a marsh, over which he had to pass to get to Mr. ROSE's, but never got to the other side. That was the last that was seen of him. When he was known to be missing, his neighbors collected and searched for him, and set fire to the prairie across which he had to go to Mr. ROSE's, supposing he might have been murdered and robbed there, and hid in the grass, but found no trace of him. So affairs rested till the Monday following, when he came home. He said that, when about half way across the prairie, he had been attacked by four men in disguise, two of whom he knocked down, but was himself knocked down by the other two. From that moment he remembered nothing. He found himself in his father's house, 15 miles southern, or opposite end of the Lake, and, on being in the extreme north. His horse, which came back with him, says that he came to the house of his father's bareheaded, barefooted, without a cent, and insane.

THE NEW YORK SUN.

FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 25, 1859.

No Hope for John Brown.

The following letter from Gov. WISE was received by Rev. WM. C. WHITCOMB, of Lynnfield, Mass., in answer to an earnest appeal that the life of JOHN BROWN may be spared:

RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 17, 1859.

REV. SIR: The very sympathy with JOHN BROWN, so general, so fanatical, so regardless of social safety, and so irreverent of the reign of law, demands his execution, if sentenced by the Court. The laws are insulted and outraged as now protecting all his rights of defense and all his claims to mercy.

Truly yours,
HENRY A. WISE.

Rev. WM. C. WHITCOMB.

Prussia Arming.

PRUSSIA is certainly arming. She is preparing an arsenal of 400 rifle steel guns loading at the breech, and exploding with the sundacadel. Her army consists of 150,000 men in active service, serving three years. Of these forty thousand men are dismissed yearly into the war reserve, which consists also of 150,000. Thus Prussia, with her population of nearly eighteen millions, has an available army of three hundred thousand men, and raises forty thousand recruits every year. She has, besides, a rifle corps of ten thousand men, whose time of service is from 12 to 15 years. There is also the Landwehr of two ausgebote and Landsturm. This terrible weight of arms, however, has been found formidable only to the nation which supports it. It breaks down before is is tried. Twice within the last ten years it has done so, and the call-out made during the Italian war was eminently unsatisfactory. Prussia, therefore, is arming herself on what she considers a more efficient, but which does not appear to be a less burdensome, military system. The rifle corps is to be raised to 50,000 men; the rest of the standing army is to be increased; 80,000 recruits are to be taken in yearly, instead of 40,000. The number of the adult male population liable to serve and who come to the yearly lottery is 150,000. Out of these the State used to claim her 40,000, and now propose to double the exaction. But even the remaining 70,000 undergoing recruits are not exempt. If the Landwehr cavalry is to be abolished, the regular cavalry is to be greatly increased, and cadres of infantry officers are to be formed for that reserve. All these preparations and augmentations must be for home work. Prussia does not affect to fear Russia, which is, internally, in a state of convulsion, and is not likely to seek, or, at least, for some years to come, any European quarrel. Moreover, Prussia has drawn near to Russia in a strict alliance, and the Prince of Prussia has sealed the intimacy by a personal interchange of courtesies with the Czar at Breslau. Is this a preparation for an armed contest
