How to Destroy Polygamy.

THE House of Representatives last week passed a resolution instructing the Committee on Territories to inquire into the expediency of reporting a bill to repeal the act organizing the Territory of Utah, and providing for its division into other territories contiguous to it. We hope that Congress will strictly adhere to that purpose. It is the best course that can be taken for uprooting polygamy, and perhaps the only one that would be entirely free from objection under a strict construction of the Constitution. There are difficulties in the way of a direct attempt to suppress the evil, which would be averted by dividing up the territory among adjoining territories, and thus bringing polygamy under the influence of adverse local laws. Our form of government is so exceedingly tolerant with regard to everything wearing the guise of religion, that even the Mormon enormity might set up a cry of religious persecution in the event of a direct effort to break it up, and there would naturally be some persons to sympathise with them in such a plea. Another difficulty, and one of greater importance, consists in the fact that there is no written law in the United States in opposition to polygamy, to which the Mormons are amenable. Such provisions belong to the local and not to the national Government, and since the local laws of Utah sanction the evil—since the majority of the people there uphold it—since no United States law intervenes to prevent it—the question arises, how can the Government constitutionally suppress it? Our own belief is that the Government might with propriety blot out this great social evil by virtue of its general power of self-protection. It has the power to guard against any palpable danger to the welfare of the country, and we believe that the danger of Mormonism would justify its expulsion from the limits of the United States. But it is always better to avoid, if possible, any doubtful position concerning important measures. Therefore, since the plan now before Congress is of unquestionable legality, and of certain efficacy, we regard it as preferable to any other for accomplishing the proposed work. If the proposition should become a law, the whole machinery of Mormon government would be broken up, and the people of that territory would be accountable to the laws of the territories to which they would be annexed. For instance, one section of Utah would be allotted to Nevada, (which, by the way, is a State,). Every Mormon in that section, who had been accustomed to the luxury of a multiplicity of wives, would at once be liable to arrest upon the criminal charge of bigamy, unless he should conclude to espouse monogamy. We earnestly hope that Congress will adopt the proposed plan without delay, and thus bury polygamy by the side of its twin brother, slavery, leaving not even the name of the territory which it desecrated.

Republican Tendencies in Europe.

Our Government has received official information from Bavaria, to the effect that in that State the passport system has been abolished. It was recently reported that the Imperial Government of Austria had likewise issued a decree to that effect, but no confirmation of the report has appeared, and we infer that the restriction has been removed only in Bavaria—the Emperor of Austria probably thinking it rather dangerous to allow free intercourse between the rebellious Hungarians and the outside world. The news of this evidence of republican progress on the part of Bavaria will be received with much satisfaction in this country, particularly by the natives of that state who are now residents of the United States. The passport nuisance has always been regarded by our naturalized citizens as a barrier to visits to the fatherland, and as Bavaria is largely represented in our foreign-born population, the action referred to will be regarded as important. We hope that the example of Bavaria will be emulated by the other monarchies of Europe, and that all the naturalized citizens of this country may be allowed to revisit their old homes without restraint. But there is another matter in this connection, in which we would like to see Bavaria take the initiative. That is, a renunciation of all military claims upon naturalized citizens of the United States. The governments of Austria, Prussia, and, we believe, of all the German States, claim and exercise the right to impress into the military service any naturalized American, who was born in the said monarchies, in the event of his having emigrated hither before rendering military service to the home government. Cases have frequently occurred wherein Germans, long resident in the United States, have returned to their native land for brief visits, and then been arrested and compelled to serve the regular term in the army. We would like to see such claims abandoned for the reason that if they are persisted in trouble will ultimately be the consequence. It is the duty of our Government to protect its citizens wherever they may be, so long as they are guilty of no crime, and hence there is a probability that the German States will, ere long, receive emphatic notice upon this point. But the indications of republican tendencies in Europe are constantly increasing, and possibly these obnoxious features of monarchy to which we have alluded, may be voluntarily abolished.

Colorado at the Door—Ought She Not to Wait a Little?

COLORADO is knocking at the door of Congress and demanding admission as the thirty seventh State of the Union. We hope it may be allowed to remain outside for the present. Not for the cause that is likely to debar it—that of unsoundness on the negro question—but because we do not believe it is legally entitled to admission. There is lately a great deal of political clap-trap about the admission of new States. It is necessary that a territory shall have a population of one hundred and twenty-seven thousand before being qualified for promotion to the dignity of a State, and there is good reason to believe that the inhabitants of Colorado would need to be enumerated more than once in order to stretch up to the requisite figure. In fact, there are two or three of the new Western States that got into the Union under questionable circumstances. How does it come that we can add new States so fast that not half the people can keep track of them? It requires a good many people to make an aggregate sufficient to constitute a State. Nebraska has tried several times to swell itself up to the requisite proportions, but with ill success. Now this is the way we incline to think the new State business is to a great extent managed: A territory is blocked out; half a dozen favorites of the existing Administration are sent to the new region as Governor, Chief Justice, etc.; said favorites want to get into the United States Senate, etc.; a "jumping" enumeration of the population is soon taken; it is sure to be found that the number of inhabitants exceeds, by a little, the requisite one hundred and twenty-seven thousand; a Constitution is prepared, favorable of course, to the views of the majority party in Congress, and almost before the people are aware of it a new star appears upon the National bunting. We are getting new States too fast. It costs a great deal to maintain the machinery of a State Government, and we believe that this policy of making places for political favorites is really calculated to develop politicians more than anything else.

"House Hunting" Season at Hand—Dark Prospects.

WE see by our Richmond exchanges that the people of that city have been holding an indignation meeting for the expression of their feelings relative to the extremely high rents demanded by property owners. New York can well sympathize with the Virginia capital in respect to the extortion of real estate owners—but the Richmond folks differ from us in being able to express their indignation in a meeting. In this city every renter has been in the indignant mood for two or three years, but the most emphatic adjectives fail to do justice to the subject in expressing the full measure of indignation. This subject is worthy of especial mention just at this time, for the reason that next month will commence the annual "renting season," and consequently housekeepers are already becoming nervous under the dread apprehension of unprecedented extortion, with increased difficulty of finding houses at any price. There is no reason why the present high rentals should continue. In fact the rates this year ought to be from twenty-five to fifty per cent. less than they were the last, but, unfortunately, the right of the question is something that does not enter into the calculations of rapacious landlords. There will doubtless be a strong effort made, on the part of owners, to maintain prices at the highest possible notch—to resolve the house-renting problem into a simple question of endurance on the part of the victims. But we will hold no indignation meetings here. Such outbursts do not touch the pockets of landlords, and consequently do no good. The only remedy is for every man to practise the most rigid economy, save a little money, buy a lot somewhere in the suburbs accessible to his business, and thereon erect a home, though it be only a shanty, where he will not be troubled with nightmares of house-hunting, and where he can bid defiance to the landlords.

Foreign Estimates of General Grant.

THE English papers of late date discuss General GRANT'S official report at considerable length. The only interesting feature of their comments is the additional evidence that they give of their own fickleness. They award a high meed of praise to the report as a military document, and to General GRANT himself they give the credit of being one of the greatest of modern soldiers. It was only a short time ago, we recollect, when these same voracious journals were demonstrating conclusively, in their own estimation, how futile were all the attempts of the North to suppress the rebellion. Even when GRANT started out upon his last and greatest campaign, the English papers erroneously predicted that the result would only be a useless sacrifice of life, and that it was madness to pursue the contest further. But now the war is over, GRANT has proven a success instead of a failure, and with customary inconsistency they pronounce him a great General, and warmly praise the plans of his campaign. Well, the present comments of the English press upon our military operations have the unusual merit of being truthful, and for that much we give the said journals credit. It is evident, however, that military criticism is not their forte. We advise them, hereafter, to confine their dissertations on strategy to the English war upon the Irish Republic.

Peace in India.

The Bhootan war in India is ended. On the 11th of November a treaty of "perpetual peace" was signed at Buxa. The eighteen Dooars are ceded to the British power; all kidnapped persons are to be restored; the treaty signed under compulsion by Mr. Eden is to be returned, and a full apology made to him. The supreme government agrees to pay an annual subsidy of twenty-five thousand rupees for the territories ceded, and that sum is to be permanently increased to fifty thousand rupees when the Bhootanese have proved their disposition to refrain from the annoyances which formed the pretext of the war. The first payment of the subsidy is withheld until Tounsoo Penlow shall return the two guns taken at Dewangiri. Stipulations are also made in reference to free transient and traffic between Bengal and Bhootan. Owing to the signing of this treaty the extensive preparations made by the English for a new campaign have been stopped.

Curiosities of Eating.

The following, from Hall's JOURNAL OF HEALTH, will be read with interest by those who are obliged to study close economy in their diet:

An old beau, formerly well known in Washington city, was accustomed to eat but one meal in twenty-four hours; if after this he had to go to a party and take a second dinner, he ate nothing at all the next day. He died at the age of seventy.

A lady of culture, refinement and unusual powers of observation and comparison, became a widow. Reduced from affluence to poverty, with a large family of small children dependent on her manual labor for daily food, she made a variety of experiments to ascertain what articles could be purchased for the least money, and would at the same time "go the farthest" by keeping her children longest from crying for something to eat. She soon discovered that when they ate buckwheat cakes and molasses, they were quiet for a longer time than after eating any other kind of food.

A distinguished Judge of the United States Court observes that when he took buckwheat cakes for breakfast, he could sit on the bench the whole day without being uncomfortably hungry; if the cakes were omitted, he felt obliged to take a lunch about noon. Buckwheat cakes are a universal favorite at the winter breakfast-table, and scientific investigation and analysis has shown that they abound in the heat-forming principle; hence nature takes way our appetite for them in summer.

During the Irish famine, when many died of hunger, the poor were found spending their last shilling for tea, tobacco and spirits. It has also been observed in New York, by those connected with charitable institutions, that when money was paid to the poor, they often laid out every cent in tea or coffee, instead of procuring the more substantial food, such as meal and flour and potatoes. On being reproved for their apparent extravagance and improvidence, the cry was universally in both cases identical; their own observation had shown them that a penny's worth of tea, tobacco, or liquor would keep off the sense of hunger longer than a penny's worth of anything else. Scientific men express the idea by saying: "Tea, like alcohol, retards the metamorphosis of the tissues; in other words, it gives fuel to the flame of life, and thus prevents it from consuming the fat and flesh of the body."

If a person gets into the habit of taking a lunch between the breakfast and dinner, he will soon find himself getting faint about the regular luncheon time; but let him be so pressed with important engagements for several days in succession as to take nothing between meals, it will not be long before he can dispense with his lunch altogether. These things seem to show that, to a certain extent, eating is a mere habit. Whole tribes of Indian hunters and trappers have been known to eat but once in twenty-four hours, and that at night.

Financial News, Markets, &c.

New York, Saturday, Jan. 13, — P. M.—Stocks were firmer to-day at advanced prices. Governments were steady and in demand. Gold ranged from 135½ to 139¾. The week's specie exports were $64,500, making a total of $1,192,500 since Jan. 1st, against $1,040,604 same time last year. The week closed off in unusually easy money market. The ruling figures to the leading stock houses were 5 a 6 per cent. on call. The foreign exchange market closed dull. Sterling nominally 108½ a 109 for bankers' 60-days bills. The total imports at New York for the week, compare as follows with former returns:

Week ending	Jan. 12.	Jan. 5.	Dec. 30.
Dry Goods	$1,9[illegible]1,921	1,995,398	9,517,734
G. Merchandise	1,969,930	2,158,070	3,220,444
Total	$3,871,851	4,153,468	5,738,178

On 'Change to-day Flour was dull and unchanged. Wheat was dull and declining. Corn was dull and drooping. Oats were dull and heavy. Pork and Beef were lower. Lard was steady. Whiskey was steady and quiet.
