CONSUMPTION.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SEA WEED TONIC AND MANDRAKE PILLS.

THE HISTORY OF DR. SCHENCK'S OWN CASE, AND HOW HE WAS CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

Many years ago, while residing in Philadelphia, I had progressed gradually into the last stage of Pulmonary Consumption. All hopes of my recovery had long disappeared, I was advised by my physician, Dr. Parrish, to remove into the country. Moorestown, N. J., about nine miles distant, was the place I was removed thither, occupying a few full days in the transition. My father and all his family had lived and died there, and died of Pulmonary Consumption. On my arrival at Moorestown I was pronounced by all to lay for many weeks in what was deemed a hopeless condition. Dr. Thornton, who had been my father's family physician, and had attended me during the last illness, was called to see me. He thought my case entirely beyond the reach of medicine, and decided that I must die, and gave me a week or two to prepare my temporal affairs. In the apparently hopeless condition I heard of the remedies which I now make known, and resolved to make a trial of them, as I was wasting their way, and penetrating every region of the lungs and tissue of my system.

My mother, who lived out on a new action, and the morbid matter, which for years had accumulated and irritated the different organs of the body, was almost gone; the tubercles had ripened, burst upon, and expectorated from my lungs as much as a pint of yellow offensive matter every morning. As this expectoration of matter subsided, the fever abated, the pain left me, the night sweats ceased, and the wearing hacking, nightmare cough were no longer known and I had refreshing sleep to which I had long been a stranger. My appetite returned to a healthy state, and at times I found it difficult to restrain myself from eating too much. With this return of health, I gained in strength, and now am living, a healthy, robust, healthy man, with a large healed cicatrix in the middle lobe of the right lung and the lower lobe separated, with tenacious adhesions of the pleura, which I feel from my hand, and the right side of the chest is full as large as the left side. I have no cough, no night sweats, no fever, no pain, no shortness of breath, no hectic flush, no appetite, no emaciation, no anything to indicate the existence of the disease. I feel fine, and can do a good day's work, and I attribute my recovery to the use of your Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills.

Consumption is, the time was thought to be an incurable disease by every one, physicians as well as those who were on earnest in medicine—especially such cases as were reduced to the condition I was in. This induced me to make the publication of my case, only temporary. I now prepared and gave medicines to consumptives for some time, and made many wonderful cures, and the demand for my medicines so rapidly, that I determined to offer them to the public, and devote my undivided attention to this disease. In truth, I was next to forced to it, for people would send for me, far and near, to ascertain whether their cases were like mine.

For many years, in conjunction with my principal office in Philadelphia, I have been in the habit of professional visits to New York, Boston, Baltimore and Pittsburg.

For many years past, I have made as many as five auscultical examinations, weekly, with the "Stethoscope." For such examinations my charge is five dollars, and I advise one to give such patients the true condition of his disease, and tell him frankly whether he will live or not.

The great reason why physicians do not cure Consumption is, that they are trying to cure symptoms, give medicines to stop the cough, to stop the night sweats, hectic fever, and by so doing they derange the whole digestive apparatus, confine up the secretions, and eventually the patient dies.

The Pulmonic Syrup is one of the most valuable medicines known, it is nutrient, powerfully tonic, and healing in itself. It contains no opium, but loosens the phlegm in the bronchial tubes, and enables them to cough it off with little exertion; one bottle frequently cures an ordinary cough; but it will be well not to take a dose of Schenck's Mandrake Pills to cleanse the stomach. The Pulmonic Syrup is readily digested and absorbed into the blood, to which it imparts its healing properties. It is one of the best preparations of iron in use; it is a powerful tonic of itself; and when the Sea-weed Tonic is added, it is quite a stomach, and is carried off by the aid of the Mandrake Pills, a healthy flow of gastric juice, good appetite and a good digestion follows.

The Sea-weed Tonic is a stimulant, and none other is required when it is used. It is pure and pleasant; no bad effects like when using Bourbon whisky, which disorders the stomach, injures the liver, and spoils the secretions, turns the blood into water, dropsy sets in, and the patient dies suddenly.

Bourbon whisky is recommended now-a-days by almost every physician. Many patients, that visit my rooms, both male and female, are supplied with this poison, the relief is temporary; they cough as they take little whiskey; if they feel weak and restless they take a little whiskey; if they cannot sleep they take a little whiskey; and then go on in this way, requiring more and more, until they are drinking, and imagine they are getting fleshy. The stomach, liver and digestive powers are completely destroyed, and has their appetite for food, and they never cured of consumption by this process, where cavities have been formed in the lungs. A little strong ale is frequently beneficial to consumptives, such as pure brandy or good wines; in many cases London porter or brown stout in moderate quantities; but Bourbon whisky hastens on hurried and furious consumption.

The SEA WEED TONIC possesses a nutritive, thoroughly invigorating the stomach and digestive system, and enabling it to eliminate and make into healthy blood the food that may be taken for that purpose. It is so wonderful in its effects that a wine glass full will digest a hearty meal, and a little of it taken before bedtime will give a good relish to the stomach which few medicines possesses the power of doing.

THE MANDRAKE PILLS may be taken with entire safe, conditional, produce all that can be obtained from calomel, mercurial medicines and without any of their bad effects. They carry out the medicine and work on matters directed by my Seaweed Tonic and Pulmonic Syrup, and will be seen that all three are needed in most cases to cure consumption.
