THE ARMS INVESTIGATION.

FURTHER DISCLOSURES BY THE MARQUIS DE CHAMBRUN.

Acquitting Sumner and Schurz of Having Any Communication with French Officials —Remington's Chief Bookkeeper Offering to Sell Information—Gen. Ingalls Implicated in the Sale of Arms.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The Senate Arms Committee met at 10½ o'clock, and resumed the examination of the Marquis De Chambrun. Mr. Harlan remarked that he was authorized by the Secretary of War to say that he desired the Marquis to be relieved from all restraint in giving his testimony as to any interviews they had had at the War Department. The Marquis said that on the 22d of January last, when he had a second interview with the Secretary of War, he began his conversation by saying that he should speak to him confidentially, when the Secretary replied that there was nothing confidential in the matter; and the Secretary further said he wanted to have his letter to the Secretary of State spread broadcast.

TRYING TO BLACKMAIL THE FRENCH CONSUL.

The Marquis said, on the 26th of January, F. W. Peck, for Remington & Co., made a proposition to him to examine all the books, papers and letters relating to the transactions of Remington & Sons. He was informed by Mr. Peck that Remington had placed in his hands $10,000 for this purpose, but not to buy testimony. The gentleman who was present at the interview was A. G. Reed. The Marquis saw no reason why he should not make such an examination. He consulted Mr. Bellonnet, who declined to give him the power to attend to that business. When he learned that the chief bookkeeper of Remington, Joseph N. Norton, called upon the French Consul and said he was ready to furnish information from his books to show that France had suffered in the contracts for arms, and when he asked for a sum of money for furnishing such information, the witness confessed that he thought this was something strange. He obtained this intelligence from private letters and from official despatches used in the Place trial.

A CONVERSATION WITH SENATOR SUMNER.

M. Chambrun then proceeded to detail his conversation with Senator Sumner, and spoke of the circumstances under which he gave the Senator the letter from Remington to Lecesne. Four or five days after this he handed to Sumner the copy of the telegram from Scribe to Remington, stating that his (Sumner's) influences at work for him; and two or three days before Sumner introduced his resolution, the Marquis handed to him the letter from the Secretary of War to the Secretary of State. He did not give these papers to Sumner for the purpose of asking an investigation, and in no way, directly or indirectly, had he asked for one. The witness spoke to Senator Schurz in relation to the subject ten or twelve days before the resolution was introduced; but he did not ask or suggest even remotely that there should be, or that he desired, an investigation.

THE PARIS TELEGRAM.

When the telegram from Paris dated Feb. 9 appeared, the witness went to the Chargé d'Affaires, who expressed his surprise at it, and said that if such a resolution as that referred to had been passed by the Committee on War Contracts, and had been sent to him to present to this Government, he should not do so, but give his Government time to reconsider it. The witness thought that the telegram first appeared in La Patrie. He, however, had not seen that paper, but had searched in vain to find it copied in the Indépendance Belge. The Marquis related that the French Government had contracted for twenty-five batteries of artillery, which were to be delivered within a certain period of time; but they were not so delivered, and the contract became void. C. K. Garrison, accompanied by Gen. Ingalls, called on M. Treibnal, the French Minister, in the result of which it was that the batteries were bought by the French Government.

The Marquis said the persons with whom he conferred in New York about the sale of arms and their shipment, were Mr. McKenzie, General Agent of the Trans-Atlantic steamers; Burnham Brown, who shipped for the steamers Erie and Ontario, and Messrs. Church, Starbuck, and several others.

HAMLIN AFTER THE FRENCH SPY.

Mr. Hamlin asked whether the Marquis knew of any person who had communicated with the Government or individuals in France, stating there would be, or that they expected there would be, an investigation into the sale of arms?

The Marquis replied, if any person had so acted in an official manner he could not disclose it. He did not say yes or no.

Mr. Schurz asked whether the Marquis knew of any Senator of the United States having had communication with French officials.

The Marquis replied, not so far as he knew.

Mr. Schurz asked whether the Marquis knew of any persons holding official positions in this country who have had communications with the French Government or private persons about this matter.

The Marquis replied he did not know.

GEN. INGALLS.

The Marquis said that about a year ago he gave the names of Gen. Ingalls and C. K. Garrison as being implicated in the sale of arms. The Marquis then stated the conversation between himself and the Secretary of War relating to Gen. Ingalls. Senator Patterson had previously mentioned the name of Ingalls to the Secretary, the Marquis having given the Senator information about Ingalls calling at the French Legation. The Secretary informed the Marquis that he was perfectly willing to take action in regard to Ingalls, but wanted the Marquis to prefer charges. Ingalls had boasted of his influence with the authorities here, and the Marquis had often heard the name of Ingalls mentioned in the Remington transaction. He then gave the names of F. W. Peck, A. G. Reed, C. K. Garrison, and also the name of the bookkeeper of E. Remington & Sons, and others, as witnesses.

CONSUL PLACE.

Senator Ames asked the Marquis what he meant yesterday by saying that he did not like to see the conviction of M. Place prepared in Washington previous to the trial in France. The Marquis replied that he meant the endorsement of Remington by the Secretary of War, Senator Conkling, Gen. Schriver, and others, which in this trial made Remington appear in a new dress.

In answer to a question, whether the endorsements were used on the trial, the Marquis answered that he so understood, but it would occupy too long a time to state in what manner.

HAMLIN GETS AN ANSWER.

Senator Hamlin asked the Marquis whether he knew of any Government official who had improperly received a dollar or a cent in the sale of the arms.

The Marquis replied—Not of his own knowledge.

Senator Hamlin asked him whether he had any such suspicion.

The Marquis replied he had told the committee all he knew. What was called the "Ring," always controlled matters outside rather than inside. He had not taken the trouble to wade in the mire and mud to find out.

He was further interrogated on the point, but nothing definite was elicited.

The committee adjourned until Monday.

Tragedy in a Newark Cigar Store.

Several young men were examining a new revolver in the cigar store 757 Broad street, Newark, on Wednesday night. George Remer of 38 Commerce street, while carelessly handling the weapon, accidentally discharged it. The bullet entered the abdomen of Edwin O. Halsted. The wounded youth exonerates Remer from any intention to shoot him. Halsted was rapidly sinking last night.

The Innocent Witness Liberated.

Heggerty's maidservant, Mary Conway, who testified to the burglary in the Comptroller's office and robbery of the vouchers, was released Thursday from the House of Detention, where she has been held as a witness nearly six months.
