B. S. STORKS'S THIRD JURY.

PROCEEDING TO APPEAL TO THE GENERAL TERM OF THE COURT.

[illegible] Tryon, Esq., Foreman, Calvin Tiers, [illegible] Hanover, The Mayville Dart [illegible] Jury Service Unnecessary.

[illegible] got tired of [illegible] The defense yesterday [illegible] counsel without interrupting [illegible] the prisoner. The old [illegible] was tested by the [illegible] laws is to be [illegible] be the most important [illegible] to self-defense. Six jurors [illegible] after a most searching [illegible] opinions and [illegible] Among the spectators was one of the convicts in Chesnut, three times sentenced to death in a New York court, and now a Colonel in the Italian army. A learned Evangelist from Dublin looked on with interest, and Messrs. Fullerton and Beach watched the third trial of [illegible] they had prosecuted to a death [illegible] Judge Davis's eyes appeared [illegible] whiter. Judge Davis's eyes appeared [illegible] to give an order [illegible] the jurors [illegible] the distance to the [illegible]

[illegible]

IN FRIENDY'S CAMP

[illegible] Jurors Reported that the Prisoner Was Guilty.

[illegible] Jurors were called to the Clerk's desk and the following was read:

[illegible] Jurors Reported that the Prisoner Was Guilty.

[illegible] Davis—Do you agree in your verdict?

[illegible] Davis—Do you agree in your verdict?

[illegible] Davis—Do you agree in your verdict?