FRAUD FURTHER EXPOSED.

THE TESTIMONY OF MEN WHO WERE PAID TO DO INFAMOUS WORK.

Cheating in Registration by Federal Officials —Votes Stolen by the Thousand—The Plan Decided On Ten Days Before Election.

The testimony before the Potter Committee yesterday consisted mainly of details of the methods of the Republican election frauds in Louisiana perpetrated in 1876, by means of which Hayes was fraudulently seated in the Presidential chair. The absence of Gen Butler seemed to lessen the interest to the audience. The first witness was J. R. Alsee Gautreaux, who had been employed in the canvassing and registration bureau of the Democratic party, under the immediate supervision of Major Burke. He said the fraudulent Republican registration in New Orleans alone was 13,000, and about 25,000 in the State. He went over the list of Republican officers of the election, showing that many were Federal officeholders, criminals, non-residents, and totally unfit to have charge of an election. The Chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee told him that he and Major Burke were foolish to be working for the Democratic party, as it was no matter how much majority they had received, even if it was 20,000, the State would be counted Republican by the Returning Board. He described the method of striking off the Democratic voters from the registration lists by means of the celebrated "sewing machine" circulars. The Republican letter carriers pretended to try to deliver these circulars to Democratic voters, and then swore that the parties to whom they were addressed could not be found. About 7,000 Democrats were thus stricken off the lists as non-residents. He described the East Baton Rouge fraud, where 1,136 Democratic votes were not counted. He produced the following list of Republican officers of the election of 1876 who have been appointed to Federal offices:

Abell, Charles S., Vernon Parish, Secretary of the Returning Board, now clerk in the Custom House.

Anderson, James S., East Feliciana, Supervisor of Registration, clerk in Custom House, since removed.

Anderson, Thomas; St. Landry Parish, member of Returning Board, now Special Deputy Collector.

Astwood, H. C., Ouachita Parish, now Deputy United States Marshal.

Blanchard, R. P., Orleans Parish, Republican Campaign Committee, now clerk in Custom House.

Brien, A. J., Orleans, Supervisor Second Ward, now Inspector in Custom House.

Brewster, Oliver, Ouachita, canvasser, now Surveyor-General of Louisiana.

Casenave, G., Orleans, member of Returning Board; his brother a clerk in Custom House, understood to be appointed for him.

Clover, E. A., East Baton Rouge, Supervisor of Registration, now in service in Custom House.

Creach, Patrick, Orleans, Supervisor Third Ward, chief laborer, Custom House.

Dinkgrave, John H., Ouachita, organizer in Fifth District, member of Legislature, took a prominent part in getting up projects.

Grady, M. J., Ouachita, Supervisor of Registration, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue.

Green, William H., Orleans, State Registrar, minute clerk for Returning Board, inspector, clerk in Custom House.

Hahn, Michael, Orleans, State Registrar of Voters, Superintendent of New Orleans Mint.

Healy, W. R., Ouachita, District Attorney pro tem., inspector in the Custom House, now Collector.

Jewett, D. M. A., Orleans, Secretary of State Republican Committee, inspector in Custom House, chief manipulator of the frauds.

Kellogg, Spencer, Governor, United States Senator, a head centre of fraud.

Kempton, A. W., Orleans, Commissioner Ward 11, Poll 1, Bonhomme Richard, now Deputy Marshal.

Kenney, L. M., Orleans, member of Returning Board, Deputy Naval Officer.

Levissee, A. B., Caddo, Elector, Collector of Internal Revenue.

Underwood, Napoleon, Orleans, Supervisor, Twelfth Ward, inspector in the Custom House.

Wells, Simeon, Vernon, member of Returning Board, Surveyor of Customs.

Woodward, York, Vernon, clerk in the Post Office.

Mr. Gautreaux had heard of Eliza Pinkston being seen at the Custom House apparently in good health only the day before she pretended to be so sick that she could not walk in consequence of her wounds.

With reference to the interview of John Sherman with the witness, James E. Anderson, in Moreau's restaurant at New Orleans, Mr. Gauthreaux said: "I remember that it was on Saturday afternoon. I think it was twilight. Major Burke and himself were dining at Moreau's restaurant. My back was turned toward the entrance of the restaurant, and Major Burke was facing me. Mr. Anderson came in, and Major Burke left the table and stood up talking to Anderson a very few moments. When the conversation had ended, Major Burke came back and sat at the dining table with me, and Anderson went over in the direction of my right on the opposite side of the room, and there was speaking with Mr. Sherman and Mr. Stoughton. I remember distinctly Mr. Stoughton on that occasion. Mr. Stoughton had his hat on his head, his napkin down in his lap, and at the time I called Major Burke's attention to that fact."

"Did Anderson go toward them?"

"Anderson left Major Burke and went to Mr. Sherman—was speaking to Mr. Sherman. They were from the room directly with Pinkston from us. There were a number of persons in the restaurant. I could not have heard any conversation that passed between them. It was known all over directly that Anderson was the first supervisor that got in your office. I remember that Major Burke said that Anderson had some time in the latter part of January was waited on by a party in New Orleans who offered to put in my possession, for a certain consideration, what was called the Sherman letter, being guarantees by Sherman to Anderson for his protecting against Eliza Pinkston. I asked the party whether the document could be seen by an arrangement would be compromised, but finding him rather circumspect about it I dropped the matter."

On cross-examination by Mr. Hiscock, Mr. Gauthreaux testified that his organization was mainly composed of young men who had been employed to defeat the frauds. He admitted having been a member of the White League, which, he said, was an organization employed for the protection of private property from the unlawful seizure by the Republican Metropolitan Police. He denied that it was a political organization.

In reply to Mr. Stenger, Mr. Gauthreaux said that the Democratic party was willing and anxious to have all alleged intimidation, violence and murder investigated.

Perry R. Emerson of New Orleans, who was a police officer employed in 1876 by the Packard Government, was told at the Custom House to copy affidavits of intimidation which were there manufactured. Out of about 100 affidavits there prepared, he thought that over one-half or two-thirds were not read over to the witnesses. This was while the Returning Board was in session.

Richard B. Edgeworth, another police officer, who had acted as Supervisor of Registration in Plaquemine Parish, appointed by Gov. Anodine, exhibited some of the instructions that were forwarded to him from the Republican State Committee, signed by D. M. A. Jewett. One of these, dated Oct. 25, 1876, informed him that the Republican vote of his district was 300, and the Republican majority 2,200, and the letter said: "You will not be held to have done your duty unless the registration lists show a Republican majority. Nearly every white man you see is a Democrat."

Another letter dated Oct. 9, says:

"You are very far behind with your colored registration, catch up with this as soon as you can. It is of the utmost importance."

Another one of Oct. 15 gives instructions that the Republican Commissioner of Elections shall receive the votes and take them from the ballot box when the Democratic Commissioner is not allowed to handle the votes at all.

Mr. Emerson said that Gov. Kellogg came up into his parish and told him it was extremely necessary to have a Republican majority of 3,000 from that parish. I thought it was impossible, and I thought the registration lists would reach 3,000, and it was impossible to do it. I had registered very nearly the entire parish. I showed Kellogg's letter to Gov. Warmoth, and told him what Kellogg had said, and Warmoth was very indignant, and said that no such thing should be perpetrated in this parish, and brought up men from New Orleans to prevent it. The registration was 2,700, and two-thirds were colored, which gave 1,100 Republican majority. Kellogg said: "Just you have the time; look around and see if you can't do it." When Mr. Emerson went to New Orleans he was there making the affidavits—mostly of colored men—and never heard the affidavits read over to them. He also testified to being present when Thomas H. Jenks made an affidavit in the office of Mr. Seymour, with J. E. Anderson, which has been frequently been offered in evidence as a retraction of the first set.

James E. Kelley, a special officer employed in New Orleans by Major Burke to detect election frauds, testified that the day before Eliza Pinkston was carried on a blue lounge to give her evidence before the Republican Committee, he saw her walking down the hall of the Custom House, apparently well. He also testified to a gathering of a company of New Orleans Republican politicians in the house of J. Madison Wells after the election of 1876, and before the Returning Board met. There it was reported that they had made up their returns, and were consulting how the Democratic vote could be overcome.

On cross-examination by Mr. Hiscock, the witness said that there were two or three hundred office-holders assessing the Republican leaders in New Orleans. The office-holders of the Republican politicians at J. Madison Wells's house was about ten days before the election. Among those present on that occasion were Casenave, Jewett, Blanchard, and Brewster.

Major Burke was recalled and questioned as to how it came that the New York correspondent at Washington, about the time of the Wormley conference, had represented him as saying that he was pledged not to divulge all the doings of that conference, when referring this Committee he had claimed to have given the matter the utmost publicity. The Major explained that there was no secrecy and that Mr. Jewett said he could not have told the Tribune correspondent that there was. He presumed that he had been misunderstood. The Major explained that he had not consulted Messrs. Wadleigh, Howe, and Frye concerning the proposition for two United States Senators to be given some of the Republicans by Louisiana, and had received no guarantees from them. He admitted that the part played by Gen. R. L. Gibson was mainly that of a medium of communication with the Administration. Gen. Gibson was always opposed to any negotiation on that point. Major Burke reiterated his unyielding conviction from the first that the Returning Board was never authorized by law, but was sustained by perjury, forgery, and fraud.

The Committee adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair, and will hold the next meeting in New York.
