IMPEACHMENT IN GEORGIA.

THE SECOND TRIAL OF THE KIND IN THE HISTORY OF THE STATE.

Text of the Very Serious Charges Against Comptroller Goldsmith—A Committee Reporting that he has been Guilty of Gross Frauds and Heavy Defalcations—A Minority Report Bluntly Charging Bribery.

ATLANTA, Aug. 5.—The report of the Committee that the House appointed to investigate the office of the Comptroller-General, in which they recommended his impeachment, was read in the House yesterday. The startling developments of fraud and defalcation have set the State wild with indignation. Comptroller-General Goldsmith has ever been esteemed a thoroughly upright man and officer, and least of all in his official conduct was rottenness suspected. The investigation, however was in response to a growing suspicion that all was not right, and it is probably well that the Legislature began its inquiry so promptly. The impeachment was notified to the Senate to-day, and orders were at once taken for trial; but that cannot be begun until time has been given the defence for preparation—perhaps a fortnight hence.

This will be the second impeachment trial in the history of the State. The other was in 1868, when Echols, Simmons, and Flournoy, Land Commissioners, were impeached for frauds similar to those now discovered. The Commissioners were convicted, fined, and imprisoned in jail.

The losses by the Comptroller-General's acts cannot be estimated now—possibly $40,000 to the treasury in cash, and over $100,000 in losses of land to the people of the State.

The following are the articles and specifications of the impeachment:

ARTICLE I.—That W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General of the State of Georgia, did, in and during the month of September, 1877, demand costs for tax fi. fas. against unreturned wild land lots, and issue the said fi. fas. before the time arrived for him to issue them, under the law, and contrary to the law as defined in the act of 1874 (page 105), said act requiring the said fi. fas. to be issued on the 1st day of October of each year, and which date, Oct. 1, 1877, was stated in the advertisement of said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General as aforesaid, of tax sales of unreturned wild lands, as the date when said fi. fas. would be issued in accordance with the law.

ART. II.—That said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General of the State of Georgia, illegally charged, demanded, and received as costs fifty cents on each and every fi. fa. issued by him, in all about 10,000 fi. fas., against wild lands, without authority of law.

ART. III.—That W. L. Goldsmith, for and in consideration of the sum of $114, paid to him by one Daniel Lott, did, on or before the 31st day of October, 1877, illegally, fraudulently, and surreptitiously issue 228 fi. fas. against the lands of Raundo & Co. and Fox & Co. and transfer them to one Daniel Lott, when the said Goldsmith well knew that the said lands were neither in default of return nor payment of taxes, the returns having been made and taxes paid more than two years previously, thereby permitting Daniel Lott to use the Comptroller-General's office for peculation and corrupt purposes against the State and the citizens.

[Here follow specifications of the 228 lots of wild land, the fi. fas. upon which were so transferred.]

ART. IV.—That W. L. Goldsmith did on the first day of October, 1877, or on a date or dates subsequent thereto, transfer to the sheriffs of divers counties of this State the exercise of certain duties and trusts conferred upon him as said Comptroller General of the State of Georgia by the act of 1874, and without authority so to do in that or any other law of the State of Georgia.

Specification 1.—That W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General, as aforesaid, did, illegally, on the 1st day of November, 1877, and the 14th day of November, 1877, issue to the several sheriffs of the several counties of this State letters of authority, and that the said sheriffs, or certain of said sheriffs, in pursuance of said illegal instructions of said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General, as aforesaid, did turn over to various persons, without other authority, large sums received by them as excess from the sale of wild lands, without proper investigation of their titles, as required by law; and that the said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General, as aforesaid, did afterward ratify the same.

ART. V.—That W. L. Goldsmith did, at divers times after the 1st day of October, 1877, knowingly and illegally permit transferees of wild land tax fi. fas., and others to retain in their possession large sums of money that should have been paid into the treasury of the State.

ART. VI.—That W. L. Goldsmith did, on the 11th day of October, 1877, and divers dates between that time and May 29, 1879, including said last named date, illegally pay out to various parties numerous sums of public money, to wit, in the aggregate, $8,176.73, without first asking, obtaining, or having the sanction and warrants of the Governor, as required by law.

ART. VII.—That W. L. Goldsmith did, on the 1st day of October, 1877, and divers dates thereafter, transfer large numbers of wild land fi. fas. to third parties upon payment of the tax and contrary to and without authority of law.

ART. VIII.—That W. L. Goldsmith did on the 1st day of June, 1879, hold and retain in his possession $11,189.17, and did detain the said sum of money from the treasury without authority of and clearly contrary to law, and in violation of his obligations as a public officer.

ART. IX.—That W. L. Goldsmith has made false and fraudulent returns and reports of the amounts of money collected by him as Comptroller General from the wild land tax, and to this special committee, with the purpose of concealing his illegal actings and doings in the performance of his duties.

ART. X.—That W. L. Goldsmith does retain in his employ, as clerk, in the office of Comptroller-General, one Allen J. Bell, and one James M. Goldsmith, who, while in such employment, were engaged in speculations in wild lands; and that these said clerks have been retained and continued in their said employment even after the knowledge of their said speculations was brought home to said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General, as aforesaid.

ART. XI.—That W. L. Goldsmith does retain in his employ as a clerk in the office of the Comptroller-General one James M. Goldsmith, who, while acting as insurance clerk, and not employed in the Wild Land Office of the department, did falsify the records of said Wild Land Office, and that said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General aforesaid, does retain in his employment in said department said James M. Goldsmith, after the knowledge of said James M. Goldsmith's illegal and fraudulent conduct came to his, the said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General's notice.

ART. XII.—That W. L. Goldsmith did fail and refuse to pay into the treasury of the State of Georgia, as required by law, $7,460.79, or other large sum, collected by him as insurance tax for the year 1878.

ART. XIII.—That W. L. Goldsmith did fail and refuse to pay into the treasury of the State of Georgia, as required by law, $3,572.50, or other large sum, collected by him as insurance fees for the year 1878.

ART. XIV.—That W. L. Goldsmith did, at divers dates during the entire his incumbency of the said office of Comptroller-General, as for the years 1875, 1876, 1877, 1878, and 1879, deposit large sums of the public money received by him as an officer of the State in the banking houses of the Georgia Banking and Trust Company in Atlanta, Ga., and to his private credit, and with his private moneys; and that at divers dates in and during said years above enumerated, he drew out from said bank upon his individual checks and drafts various sums of money paid to him for the State and due to the Treasury, said checks and drafts being in favor of the Treasurer of the State, and signed by said Goldsmith, but not as Comptroller-General.

ART. XV.—That W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General as aforesaid, has been using the money paid in to him for taxes in his own money for private business transactions, and holding in his hands said moneys and failing to pay the same into the State treasury, as required by law.

ART. XVI.—That W. L. Goldsmith has illegally and persistently evaded and refused to furnish to this Committee evidence demanded by this Committee under authority of the House.

Specification 1.—That W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General as aforesaid, evaded and failed or refused to answer the following resolution of this Committee, to wit:

Resolved, That the Comptroller-General furnish to this Committee a statement showing the amount of public money received by him from wild lands? 2. The amount deposited in bank? (3). What bank? (4). What interest, if any, was paid? (5). How much interest was received for such deposits, if any?

The Committee, therefore, report and demand, by this majority, that the said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General as aforesaid, be dealt with according to the laws of this State in such cases made and provided for the misfeasances and malfeasances in the exercise of his office, and comprised in the foregoing articles and specifications, whereby and on account whereof he is guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors in office.

To that end they report to the House the testimony in their said investigation had, with the statements explicit, and copy papers thereto attached, and also a full rescript of the proceedings of the Committee throughout its sittings for the purposes of said investigation.

And they submit the following resolutions, and recommend their adoption by the House, to wit:

Resolved, That W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General of the State of Georgia, be impeached of high crimes and misdemeanors in office.

Resolved, That the accompanying testimony, statements, exhibits, and rescript of proceedings, with this report, be referred to the Committee on Judiciary, with instructions to prepare and report, without unnecessary delay, suitable articles of impeachment of said W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General.

Resolved, That a Committee of seven (7) of this House be appointed and instructed to proceed at once to the bar of the Senate of Georgia, and there, in the name of the House of Representatives and all the people of the State of Georgia, impeach W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General, of high crimes and misdemeanors in office, and to inform that body that formal articles of impeachment will in due time be presented, and to request the Senate to take such order in the premises as they deem appropriate.

All of which is respectfully submitted:

THE MINORITY REPORT.

A minority of the Special Committee reported the following:

We heartily concur with the majority upon each and every conclusion they have reached and reported upon, and to that end have signed the majority report; but, in our opinion, the majority stop short of the extent to which they were authorized by the evidence to go.

The evidence inculpating the Comptroller in an effort to bribe the Hon. P. D. Davis of Baker and the Hon. Lewis Strickland of Clinch, members of the House of Representatives, is to our minds conclusive.

These representatives, with others, as a special committee, had investigated the conduct of the Comptroller in reference to the sale of wild lands, and had made a report reflecting severely upon his official conduct. The Comptroller had himself prepared a letter in which his official conduct was justified, and which he had persistently and frequently urged these and other members of the Committee to sign.

Hinton P. Wright, whom the evidence shows was without means or credit, was a professional lobbyist prior to the sitting of that committee, and was a frequent visitor of the Comptroller's office, suddenly becomes an incessant visitor and establishes it as his headquarters; he attaches himself to Messrs. Davis and Strickland, claiming them as his intimete friends; he is furnished by the Comptroller with the letter written by himself with instructions to procure their signatures, and to this end frequently urges these gentlemen to sign it. On the 14th day of July W. L. Goldsmith sends to Hinton P. Wright $17.50 to pay a pressing debt. On the 15th day of July Wright enters the Comptroller's office, who being absent he calls upon Wm. A. Wright, a clerk therein, to advance to him two dollars and a half ($2.50), to be repaid by the Comptroller-General, for the purpose of hiring a carriage to take the Hon. P. D. Davis to ride. The money is advanced by the clerk, and on the next day, without his having mentioned the matter to the Comptroller-General, it is repaid him by W. L. Goldsmith.

Hinton P. Wright procures a carriage and, having invited the Hon. P. D. Davis and others to accompany him to Wolff's beer garden, stops at the store of John M. Hill & Co., orders from them a bottle of their best whiskey, with directions that their bill should be sent to the Comptroller's office; on their refusal, threatens them with the loss of the patronage of the Comptroller's office. After arriving at their destination and indulging in social amusements, Hinton P. Wright approached the Hon. P. D. Davis, and as a friend urged him to sign the Goldsmith letter, and to influence and induce him thereto, offered him, first, $100, then $250, and a suit of clothes, drawing at the same time from his pocket a bank check book for the purpose of giving a check for said sum. After the Hon. P. D. Davis had indignantly refused the proposition, Hinton P. Wright immediately urges that W. L. Goldsmith was not privy to this transaction.

On the next morning the Hon. Lewis Strickland, by appointment with W. L. Goldsmith, enters the Comptroller's office, where he is met by Hinton P. Wright, who at once approaches him with an artfully framed offer of $100 if he would sign the Goldsmith letter. Before their conversation had terminated W. L. Goldsmith enters, and, with Wright, retires to a private room; immediately on their entering Wright retires from the room and W. L. Goldsmith hands to the Hon. Lewis Strickland the letter aforesaid and asks if he is going to sign it?

The evidence taken by your Committee shows that the Comptroller-General was a defaulter to the State for many thousands of dollars not only on account of his connection with the Wild Land office, but also from insurance fees and taxes collected by him. Prior to the report made by the Wild Land Committee, W. L. Goldsmith had made an irreproachable character. His defalcations had never before been suspicioned. If the report of the Wild Land Committee could have been suppressed, or its effect weakened or changed as to his official acts, his defalcations might have remained undiscovered; but, if that report was sustained, it was the opening wedge that led to a thorough investigation and discovery of all his defalcations, irregularities, and illegal official conduct. Therefore we recommend the following additional charge to be included among the articles in the majority report, viz.:

ARTICLE.—That W. L. Goldsmith, Comptroller-General as aforesaid, did, through the agency of one Hinton P. Wright, on or about the 15th and 16th days of July, 1879, offer and endeavor to bribe and corrupt with money and other things of value two of the members of the House of Representatives, namely, the Hon. P. D. Davis of the county of Baker, and the Hon. Lewis Strickland of the county of Clinch.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
