EDISON'S ELECTRIC LIGHT.

SAID BY HIS FRIENDS TO BE PRACTICALLY PERFECTED.

Almost Ready for Exhibition—The Men Who Supply the Money for the Inventor's Experiments—The Steps that Edison has Taken

The stockholders of the Edison Electric Light Company held their annual meeting yesterday in the office of the company, in the Drexel Building, and reelected the following trustees for the ensuing year: Norvin Green, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company; Tracy R. Edson, James H. Banker, Robert L. Cutting, Jr.; Grosvenor P. Lowrey, Robert M. Gallaway, E. P. Fabbri, Dr. James O. Green, J. F. De Navarro, Henry Villard, Nathan G. Miller, Thomas A. Edison, and Lewis Roberts. Mr. Norvin Green is President of the company. The composition of the Board of Trustees is nearly as it was when the company was organized on Oct. 16, 1878. Since then Dr. Jas. O. Green, J. F. De Navarro, Henry Villard, and Lewis Roberts have been included in the Board, in the places of Geo. R. Kent, Geo. W. Soren, Charles F. Stone, and Geo. S. Hamlin.

After the meeting it was learned from C. Goddard, secretary of the company, and from Tracy R. Edson, that the company has had a perfectly quiet existence thus far. It is only organized as a company because of the legal requirements that affect it. It is in reality an association of private persons who are furnishing Thomas A. Edison with the means to prosecute his experiments with electricity. Its capital is $300,000, and its purpose to produce light, heat, and power from electricity. The company has had no dealings with the public except to answer a myriad of applications for the Edison light. The reply has invariably been made that when the light is perfected, the widest publicity will be given to the fact. The company hopes to make a good deal of money from the light. But if the Edison light should prove to be no better than the electric lights that are now in use, the company "will die a natural death." It will not endeavor to sell any other than a perfect light. That is why we have kept so very quiet," said Secretary Goddard.

Mr. Goddard said that the late panic in gas stock was caused in a peculiar and roundabout way. Mr. Edison sent an enthusiastic telegram to a friend in Paris, and the friend telegraphed it to a friend of his in Birmingham, England. The Birmingham recipient of the news was delivering a lecture when he received the telegram, and he read it aloud from the stage. The press of England took up the cry of "Cheap light," and sent it back to this country. Here the stockholders of the company at first kept silence, but afterward endeavored to discourage the progress of the sensation. Mr. Edison's laboratory in Menlo Park, N. J., was besieged by newspaper men, and gas stocks went down. That they have not returned to their original figure is due to competition between the companies rather than to the influence of the prospective electric light. "The public imagined," said Mr. Goddard, "that all that needed to be done was to turn off the gas and turn on the electricity; whereas the electric light then existed only in the mind of an inventor. There is a long distance between the mental and the mechanical completion of such a project as Mr. Edison's."

Tracy R. Edson met the inventor, Thomas A. Edison, in the street on Friday last, and to him Mr. Edison announced that his light is completed, and nothing remains but to perfect the arrangements for exhibiting it. The exhibition is to be given in Menlo Park. As Mr. Edison reveals himself in the steps of the inventor's progress were: First, to divide a current of electricity so that it would feed many lamps; second, to find an indestructible "point" for the burner; third, to determine an economical shape and plan for a lamp; fourth, to invent the machinery for the production of the vacuum in which Mr. Edison's light is to burn, and, lastly, to perfect the mechanical accompaniments of the light and the lamp. All except the last step have been successfully brought about, Mr. Edison says. He would not say what discoveries Mr. Edison has made in the course of his experiments; nor whether the point for the burner is of platinum or contains platinum. He thought that Mr. Edison would not like to make this knowledge public. No date is set for the exhibition of the new light.

UNPROVOKED MURDER.

A Negro Shot Dead in a Public Street by a Drunken Desperado.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 11.—A cold-blooded murder was committed in South Baltimore at about 1 P. M. to-day. The victim was Wm. A. Robinson, a colored man, and the murderer is Geo. Trust, employed as a baker at the city jail. Robinson lived in Anne Arundel County. He came to town this morning in a wagon, accompanied by his mother, whom he left about noon and went down High street. He was met by Trust, who was drunk. Trust, it is said, asked him whether he was a Democrat or a Republican, and upon Robinson replying that he was a Republican, without further words or provocation, Trust, with an oath, pulled a pistol from his pocket, and shot the man. The ball struck Robinson in the forehead, slightly on the right side, penetrating the brain, and causing almost instant death. Trust ran, but was captured a few minutes after the shooting. Robinson sank to the ground on the spot where he was standing when he received the shot, and expired. Robinson was 27 years of age. Trust had been drinking for some days past, and those who know him say that he is extremely reckless when intoxicated. A colored man named Gray said to a reporter that he was present at the shooting, and that at first Trust pointed the pistol at him, but he dodged, and the man then shot Robinson.

Trust was lying huddled up on a bench in his cell asleep in a drunken stupor when the voice of a reporter awoke him. His appearance is that of a bloated inebriate.

"Did you ever see this man before?" the reporter inquired.

"What man?" said Trust, he hiccoughing and staring vacantly.

"The man you shot awhile ago?"

"I didn't shoot anybody," said he doggedly.

"Well, then, did you ever see before to-day the man whom you are charged with having killed?"

"No," replied Trust.

"What was he doing?" inquired the reporter.

"Nothing," replied Trust. "I tell you I ain't anything about it, and I don't intend to answer your questions."

Trust is a married man, but childless.

BUELL'S LAST HOPE VANISHED.

To be Hanged on Friday for the Murder of Caroline M. Richards.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 11.—To-day the Court of Appeals at Albany handed down a decision in the case of the People agt. Myron A. Buell, sentenced to death for the murder of Caroline May Richards last summer, affirming the judgments of the Over and Terminer and the General Term. There is no hope left for the condemned young man, save the very shadowy chance of interference by the Governor. Gov. Robinson has never yet granted a respite to any capital convict, save to give him an opportunity to appeal to the courts. As Buell's case has been passed upon by all the tribunals, this precedent is of no service to him. In all human probability, Buell will be hanged in Cooperstown on Friday next. The gallows used will be the Chenango County instrument, built under the direction of Sheriff Hill for the hanging of Felix McCann. Like his predecessor, Sheriff Clark has decided opinions regarding the attendance at hangings, and very few persons will witness the execution of the death sentence on the murderer of Caroline May Richards.

The Fortune of a Centre Market Butcher.

John B. Jansen died in March, 1877, leaving a will dated July, 1875, bequeathing all of his estate, valued at $50,000, to his brother, Joseph Jansen. His two sisters, Mrs. Sutter and Miss Victorine Jansen, to whom he was supposed to be greatly attached, were left wholly unprovided for. They began a contest of the will before Surrogate Calvin yesterday. John and his younger brother Joseph were for many years partners as butchers in Centre Market. John was about 55 years of age when he died. He was a bachelor, and lived with Joseph and his family up to the time of his death. His sisters charge that Mrs. Joseph Jansen obtained undue influence over their brother.

Mr. John Sutter, a son of Mr. John B. Jansen's sister, testified that after his uncle retired from business he busied himself chiefly with his birds, of which he had an immense number of various kinds. He had also a number of other pets, which he kept together in a room in his house. He hired a boy to assist him to take care of them. The witness further testified that his uncle often gave him money when he was a schoolboy, but never in the presence of Joseph Jansen, and that in the summer of 1875 Mrs. Joseph Jansen said that neither he nor his mother need ever expect any of John's money after his death, as she and her husband "had it all fixed."

Kate Kinderdanz, a nurse employed for some years by Mrs. Joseph Jansen, testified that when John was dying his sisters were not allowed to see him alone, and his sister-in-law was not permitted to enter his room. The Surrogate ruled out this testimony.

Diphtheria in Brooklyn.

Diphtheria prevails in Brooklyn to an extent that has alarmed the Health Board, and yesterday afternoon a conference was held by President Otterson, Sanitary Superintendent Raymond, Registrar Wyckoff, and Inspector Griffiths. The disease was found to be centred in the lower part of the Seventh Ward, between Flushing, Willoughby, Nostrand, and Kent avenues. There were 35 cases of deaths from it last week, and in the last three weeks there had been 108 cases. Undertakers have been instructed that the bodies of all persons dying of the disease must be buried within twenty-four hours after death, and that the funeral services must be private. Children are forbidden to attend school from houses in which there are persons sick with diphtheria.

LARGE FIRE IN THE NINTH WARD.

Hot Work After the Firemen had been Summoned to Abingdon Square.

Fire burst from the windows in the great five-story brick building facing Abingdon square at 11½ o'clock yesterday morning, and, extending along the south side of Bank street, from Bleecker to Hudson, raged for about two hours, defying the firemen's efforts to subdue it. The building was occupied by manufacturers of paint, cabinet workers, printers, and others in whose business quantities of inflammable material were used. The fire had its origin in the mixing room of the Asbestos Paint Company, in the second story, nobody seems to know just how. A workman says that the first he knew of it the room behind him was in a blaze, and he had to run for his life, with his hair, beard, and clothes badly singed. A few minutes later the upper stories of the entire building were enveloped in flames and shrouded in clouds of black smoke from the paint works. Fire engine companies 1, 3, 13, 14, 18, 19, 20, 24, 27, 30, and 33 were soon pouring streams into the burning buildings, and hook and ladder companies 3, 5, 8, 9, and 12 were on the ground.

Effective work was done by the water tower, a new invention, in use at this fire for the second time in this city. By means of it the nozzle of a hose is elevated from 50 to 100 feet in the air, and from this elevation a stream can be turned in any direction.

The fire raged for two hours, and then the firemen got it pretty well under. By 3 o'clock it was practically extinguished.

The same building caught fire on Saturday evening last in a corner room in the fourth story, at which time it was damaged to the extent of $6,000.

The block that was on fire yesterday, extending from Bleecker to Hudson street, was composed of two buildings, of which the one on the Hudson street side was erected only a year ago. The other was fifteen years old, and was formerly occupied by Coleman & Polk, marble sawyers. The buildings are owned by Mr. Peter M. Wilson, who estimates his loss at $15,000; his insurance is $13,000. The three upper stories were utterly destroyed with their contents, and the lower stories and basement are so badly drenched that the stock and machinery in them are almost worthless. One of the firms that occupied a basement is that of Doremus & Bro., sons of Prof. R. Ogden Doremus. They were making oleomargarine. The principal firms in the buildings were the New York Calcium Light Company, the Lyons Asbestos Paint Company, Logan & Forbes, steam printers; Joseph R. Thomas, cabinet worker, and George Lyttle, Central Steam Laundry. The losses and insurances are as follows:

	Loss.	Insurance.
Peter M. Wilson, owner	$15,000	$13,000
Doremus & Bro., butter	200	None
Calcium Light Co.	500	None
Asbestos Paint Co.	1,000	None
Dwight Roberts, machinist	1,500	None
Joseph R. Thomas, cabinet	12,000	None
G. Lyttle, laundry	3,000	1,500
Baker, butter	500	None
D. Yale, butter and eggs	250	None
Day, honey and jelly	250	1,000
Passaic lager beer	300	1,000
F. Bender, cider	300	Unknown
W. Lock, printer	7,000	5,000
F. Kummerich, machinist	5,000	None
Sugar Gravel Paper Co.	2,000	1,000
Kenyon & Gull, plumbers	250	None
Total	$67,100

Mr. Lyttle also loses 150 rare pigeons. Antwerps, carriers, and other kinds, all of which perished in the smoke and flames.

WAS HE CLUBBED?

The Story Told by Thomas McGinnis in the Chambers Street Hospital.

An apparently industrious and truthful young man entered the Chambers Street Hospital on Sunday afternoon, with a lacerated wound on his scalp. He gave his name as Thomas McGinnis, and said that he was 19 years of age, and resided at 144 West Ninth street, Boston. He came to the hospital in company with a hackman, who said that he had taken McGinnis from Pier 28, North River. The story that McGinnis told the hospital attendant who dressed the gash on his head was that he was coming off the Providence boat when a policeman on the pier, who was driving back a crowd, felled him to the ground with a blow of his club. McGinnis appeared to the attendant to treat his clubbing as a matter of course. He was advised to prefer a complaint against the policeman, but the hackman who was with him told him that if he did he would be locked up as a witness. McGinnis subsequently quitted the hospital, but went to it again on Monday morning, and had his wound dressed again. The attendant was somewhat disinclined to believe the story of McGinnis, because of the attitude of indifference he assumed, but shortly after he had gone from the hospital on Monday a physician called, and said that he had been sent by a policeman to learn the extent of McGinnis's injuries. The name of the physician could not be ascertained, neither could that of the hackman, who refused to tell who he was or to disclose the name of the policeman.

Pier 28, North River, where the clubbing is supposed to have been done, is at the foot of Murray street. At the hospital it was said that the policeman whom McGinnis accused of clubbing him was named Burns.

SHOOTING IN LEONARD STREET.

After a Quarrel Between a Couple who had Lived as Husband and Wife.

In the Chambers Street Hospital, yesterday, Coroner Woltman took the ante-mortem deposition of Harriette Savilia, who had lived at 44 Baxter street as the wife of George Smith, a cook for the steamboat Bridgeport. Both are colored. They had quarrelled and separated. On Saturday evening last Smith persuaded the woman to accompany him to Mrs. Waters's at 128 Leonard street. On the way he begged a reconciliation, and on her refusal he drew a pistol and threatened to kill her. After reaching Mrs. Waters's room the woman took a seat on a sofa, and Smith sullenly retired a few feet and leaned against the door. At length shot her. The ball entered her right breast. After he had discharged his pistol Smith went down under the staircase, saying that he would blow her brains out if she descended. Two women who were in the room at the time of the shooting remained there until 2 A. M. on Sunday, not daring to go down stairs while Smith kept watch below. But at 2 o'clock they attracted a policeman's attention by shouting from the window, and he assisted the wounded woman to the Chambers Street Hospital. Her wound is supposed to be fatal. She is 27 years of age. Smith has fled.

A Bark Unaccountably Abandoned.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—Capt. Flaherty of the Red Star line steamer Zeeland, which arrived at this port from Antwerp to-day, reports that on Nov. 8, in latitude 43° 3' north, longitude 61° 35' west, he picked up the bark Royal Arch of Sunderland, which had been abandoned by her master and crew. The bark was loaded with salt and general merchandise, and her sails, masts and rigging were all in proper shape, she had only two or three inches of water in her hold, and her pumps were in good working order. Capt. Flaherty could not tell from what point the bark hailed, or what her destination was, and no reason can be assigned for her abandonment by her own crew. A volunteer crew of the 6 st mates and seven seamen of the Zeeland was put on board of her, and Capt. Flaherty directed his officer to take the bark to New York, where he thinks she will arrive to-morrow.

Resigning in a Body.

The town of Hempstead is without a Board of Excise, the members of that Board having resigned in a body. On Monday they met to transact business, and Counsellor George A. Mott informed them that an effort was to be made at the next County Court to have them indicted and removed from office for granting licenses to all applicants without the applications being signed by twelve freeholders, as is required by law. The members of the Board, without delay, sent their resignations to the Board of Supervisors.

Victory for the Chilians.

A telegram received by the Chilian Legation from Chili (via France) says that the Chilian forces have landed in the port of Pisagua (Peru). They met with a strong and absolute resistance on the part of the allied enemies' troops, but the latter were defeated by the Chilians, who occupied the place.

Personal Notices.

AMERICAN HEIRS TO ENGLISH PROPERTY—THE HYDE ASSOCIATION.—The decision of the High Court of Chancery of Great Britain was made last January to the effect that "money in the Bank of England belongs to the heirs, and is to be so invested right as money is not real estate, and the income the heirs, whether in England or any other country, are entitled to their share."

This decision caused the organization and incorporation of the above named association. At their meeting held at 186 Front st., last Saturday, at which the Hon. N. Denison, Master in Chancery, three members were chosen to represent the association in England, viz.: Geo. W. Attoe, First Vice President; John Hyde Parrott, E. of Brooklyn, N. Y., Second Vice-President, and H. E. Parke, Secretary of the Interior. The first two named will sail on the Algeria of the Cunard line on Wednesday, Nov. 26, and on their arrival in England will commence an investigation of the thirty eight estates in the Bank of England which have lines and lineal branches in the heirs in the United states. The other two delegates will remain in New York for a short period to collect additional genealogical information, and will also procure Attorneys in England to present the claims of all who have placed in the hands of that association the evidence, so that they can get their portion of these estates, which is now in money in the Bank of England, and which is amounting every seventy millions of dollars. The Attorneys will be in England at the time of their arrival, Hughes's Hotel, London.

The creation of the Chancery Court is an important one, and always to be kept in the United States several million pounds sterling, which for many years have been held in the Bank of England for the lineal and collateral heirs, in default of law, which has now been decided by all the lawyers and personal property in consequence.

Gov. Attoe will take the place of the deceased, several hundred specimens of rich minerals from New Mexico and Texas, books and natural history curiosities, over two hundred photographs of Indians and Rocky Mountain scenery, which he will present to museums in London and Manchester, where he has been invited to lecture on the resources of New Mexico, his home, on the great divide between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.
