MARKETMEN IN DISCUSSION.

OPPOSITION TO THE PROPOSED NEW FULTON MARKET.

Mr. Dorlon's Argument Against it—Dealers in the Washington Market Forming an Association for Their Mutual Protection.

The Sinking Fund Commission devoted another session yesterday to the consideration of the proposal of the Fulton Market Association to erect a new building on the site of the Fulton Market if the city will let them the land for twenty-one years. Mr. Dorlon, of the firm of A. & P. Dorlon, who have a stand in the market, spoke against the Market Association's project. Ninety per cent. of the standholders, he said, were opposed to the scheme. It was inaugurated and urged by a few of the wealthy standholders. The small dealers feared that if those persons got control of the market, there would be nothing to prevent them from charging the standholders whatever they chose. Mr. Dorlon denied that the market was in bad condition. It had been recently repaired, and a little more work on it would put it in good order.

Ex-Alderman Bryan Reilly said that the market should not be leased. Those who wished to get the property would establish a monopoly that would result in raising the price of provisions.

Mr. John H. Strahan, counsel for the Market Association, asked whether Mr. Dorlon knew that the Board of Health had condemned the Fulton Market building as a nuisance. Mr. Dorlon replied that he did not know it.

"Then you had better inform yourself," Mr. Strahan said. "For what I tell you is a fact."

At this Mr. Dorlon drew himself up to his full height, and asked: "Don't I look like a healthy man?"

Mr. Strahan was forced to admit that Mr. Dorlon appeared to be sound in body. Thereupon Mr. Dorlon said: "Well, then, I'm a living illustration of the fact that a new market is not needed."

The members of the Sinking Fund Commission smiled, and then, on motion of Recorder Smyth, postponed the further consideration of the project until Saturday, the 24th inst.

Nearly 300 wholesale and retail dealers in and around Washington Market met yesterday and adopted a constitution creating the Washington and West Washington Marketmen's Protective Association of the City of New York, its object being to protect the rights and interests of all owners and lessees of stalls; to correct abuses detrimental to the public; to take measures to secure market property, or prevent its sale for other than market purposes; to consolidate politically their interests; to protect, aid and endeavor to elect such men as might secure them; and in case the market property should be sold for other uses, and the rights of members ignored, to contest the case in the courts, and to secure awards for each member. John Kay acted as temporary Chairman and A. Morrison secretary. A proposition to admit storekeepers in the neighborhood of the markets to membership was negatived, but a readiness to cooperate with them was manifested in case they formed an association of their own. A question upon the necessity of incorporation was raised and postponed until the next meeting, on Thursday, at 1 o'clock, when officers will probably be elected. The association was created on account of the late institution of Gansevoort Market, on the North River, near Twelfth street, where all farmers are now required to take their produce.

Mr. John Nix said that legislation must be availed of in the matter, and that no one could go to Albany with a fair and square measure without buying it. He regarded the Gansevoort scheme as a speculation and said that certain officials and others had bought property in its neighborhood with a view of profiting by the probable rise. The farmers were now taken from Washington Market, and the next move would be to gobble up the stall owners. He thought that an attempt would soon be made to force West Washington Market up to Manhattan Market, twenty blocks above Gansevoort, which had proved a failure. Retail dealers would all starve there, on account of its being inconvenient to the mass of householders. The speaker considered that Vanderbilt had his eye on Washington Market as a site for another down-town freight depot. His power almost controls the State of New York, and it will be very difficult to resist him. Farmers should unite with the association to do so. There were five hundred farmers in the neighborhood of Gravesend, Long Island, who had expressed a readiness to sign a petition for remaining down town. Gansevoort Market now accommodates but four hundred wagons, and in the summer season over one thousand are sometimes seen at a time near Washington Market. It was to be hoped that all property owners from that market to Canal street would join in the movement.

A BANK AS IN A BANK.

The Boston "Ladies' Deposit," which Pays 96 Per Cent. a Year Interest.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—The Herald to-day gives an account of a novel banking institution bearing the title of "The Ladies' Deposit." Its prospectus, printed on a little patch of cheap red paper, says that the Deposit is a "charitable institution for single ladies, old and young," and contains the following startling proposition:

> Interest, at the rate of eight dollars on a hundred per month, is paid every three months in advance. The principal can be withdrawn upon call, any day except Sunday.
> No deposits received from persons owning a house.

The Herald reporter was not able to get all the information that he wished at the "Ladies' Deposit," though he visited that institution in petticoats, and, according to his own account, very naturally conducted himself in his character of a woman. He could not learn from the manager, Susan Crandall, how the concern could afford to pay 96 per cent. a year on deposits, or what disposition was made of money received that made it so valuable. Nevertheless, he saw a depositor come in, and saw her advance interest paid over to her in the manner stipulated.

Later in the day a reporter for a commercial agency called at the "Ladies' Deposit," but he could not learn much more. He was told that Mrs. S. E. Howe was President of the concern, and that the money deposited was not loaned, but employed for charitable purposes. It could not be learned how the Deposit could afford to pay such a high rate of interest, the President replying simply, "Excuse me, that is my business."

It is said that the questionable character of the business has been the subject of attention by the authorities, who have decided that, as no complaints have ever been made by persons claiming to have been swindled in any way, and as the "bank" does not claim public patronage, they are not called upon to interfere.

Although their business is conducted upon an apparently preposterous basis, and with the utmost secrecy, the fact that the managers solicit no business, but receive money only from those who come voluntarily, is said to exempt them from legal responsibility should any one fail to receive principal and interest according to agreement. It is remarkable that such a business as this has been going on in the heart of the city for nearly two years, with an apparently increasing number of depositors.

NUGENT'S COUNSEL SURPRISED.

The Accused Ex-Policeman Confronted with a New, and Third, Indictment.

Policeman John Nugent, lately of the Mercer street police, was arraigned, yesterday, in the General Sessions, upon an indictment charging him with complicity in the robbery of the Manhattan Savings Institution. As Clerk Moser called the name of the first juror of the large panel in attendance, Assistant District Attorney Russell said that he desired to have some time, half an hour, in which to examine some information that had just been given to him. At the end of this time the Grand Jury filed into the court room, and Foreman King presented a new indictment against Nugent. It is the third.

Nugent's counsel said: "This action on the part of the prosecution is a surprise. [Nugent certainly appeared surprised.] We came here prepared to defend ourselves against a prosecution based upon the second indictment found against Officer Nugent. Yet here we are confronted with a new indictment found within the last few minutes."

"The only difference," Mr. Russell rejoined, "between the indictments, previously found and this indictment is, that the newly found indictment charges that Nugent and his accomplices entered the bank at night instead of in the day time, as had been charged. I have no objection to your Honor granting the counsel for the prisoner time to examine the new indictment."

Judge Cowing granted an hour for the examination. Then Nugent's counsel demurred to most of the counts in the indictment on technical grounds. Judge Cowing overruled the demurrer, and ordered that a jury be impanelled. After several hours a jury was obtained and sworn. Mr. Russell will open for the prosecution to-day.

Lynched in Front of a Church.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 12.—On Saturday afternoon, at Beallsville, Montgomery County, George Peck, a negro, attempted to entrance Miss Lillie Hoyes, daughter of a well-known citizen of the town. He was arrested, tried, and placed in jail. Yesterday an excited crowd gathered around the jail, took the negro out, and hanged him to a tree in front of the Presbyterian church, where he was dead.

A Cold Wave in the West.

The weather is colder in the West. During the last twenty-four hours the thermometer has fallen as follows: Chicago, 27 degrees; Indianapolis, 28 degrees; Madison, Wis, 41 degrees; St. Louis, 20 degrees.

ARRAIGNED AS FORGERS.

Williams, Ogle, and Gilligan Pleading before Justice Kilbreth to the Indictment.

James Williams, William Ogle, and Andrew Gilligan, arrested on Saturday night for alleged participation in the Wall street forgeries, were arraigned before Justice Kilbreth yesterday. They were fashionably dressed, and they seemed indifferent to their arrest, without appearing to affect bravado. James Williams, alias Big Kentuck, is a tall, good-looking man of 60 years. His head is large and his hair snow white. He is quiet in demeanor. Age has, however, begun to tell on him. He has, besides, served several terms of imprisonment. The detectives say that on Sunday night the other men were overheard threatening the old man with vengeance should he make a confession, but the detectives yesterday obtained a confession from Williams that led to the arrest of several others. Part of the confession refers to a shooting affray in a dance house in Sixth avenue about a month ago, which arose from a dispute in the division of $11,000 said to have been obtained from the Bank of the Republic.

The principal business yesterday consisted of the formal drawing up of the affidavits of Daniel R. Young of Furse & Young, brokers of 45 Wall street, who purchased the bonds and gave their check for the amount and whose checks were forged, and of Mr. McIntosh, cashier of the Phenix Bank, who paid the checks. Mr. McIntosh was not willing to swear positively to the identity of the prisoners.

Justice Kilbreth was closeted for over an hour with the detectives, after which he asked the men what they had to say. Ogle and Williams, through counsel, pleaded not guilty, and were held in $10,000 each. Gilligan, through counsel, asked for an immediate hearing, claiming that he was not in the city at the time the forgeries were committed. Justice Kilbreth remanded him until 4 o'clock to-day when he will be heard.

JESSE BILLINGS'S PERIL.

The Prosecuting Attorney Forcing Him to a Second Trial—His Counsel Opposing it.

BALLSTON, N.Y., Jan. 12.—At the opening of the Circuit Court this morning District Attorney Ormsby gave notice that on Monday next he should move the trial of Jesse Billings, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife. Mr. L'Amoreaux of counsel for George Washington Jones, the Billings alibi witness, made an argument in favor of giving the Jones case precedence. The Hon. N. C. Moak, in behalf of the people, contended that neither the Court nor counsel for the defence could control the order in which the District Attorney should move criminal cases. The people were ready in both cases, but would not consent to try Mr. Jones until some disposition had been made of the Billings matter. Judge Potter said he would render a decision on Monday. Mr. Jones, a banjo-playing waif from North Carolina, swore that, while fishing on the Hudson River, he saw Jesse Billings drive to the residence of Justice Washburn, and heard the fatal shot fired a third of a mile away, before Mr. Billings left the Washburn House. The jury stood eleven for acquittal and one for conviction in the first trial of Mr. Billings. After their disagreement Mr. Jones was convicted of perjury. Mr. L'Amoreaux, counsel for both Mr. Jones and Mr. Billings, has secured a new trial for Mr. Jones. The prosecution evidently mean to force Mr. Billings to trial while Mr. Jones is under indictment, thus diminishing the value of his testimony, and the defence are anxious, if possible, to clear the banjo player before Mr. Billings is again brought to plead at the bar.

The will of the late Dr. Jesse Billings of Northumberland, disposing of an estate valued at upward of $75,000, was admitted to probate to-day. Over one-half of the property is bequeathed to his son, Jesse Billings, Jr., for use during his lifetime.

BURGLARY AT MIDDAY.

Almost a Cartload of Goods Taken from a Store in Third Avenue.

Burglars broke into the dry goods store of L. Freund & Co., at 944 Third avenue, on Saturday forenoon last, between 11 and 12 o'clock, and took away silk and satin goods valued at about $1,200. Saturday being the Jewish Sabbath, the store was closed from 11 A. M. to 3 P. M. Mr. Freund was the last to quit the store. Just before doing so he sprang the burglar alarm. Its clanging attracted a crowd of boys, and he stopped its motion, but neglected to reset it.

When the employees returned to the store at 3 P. M. they found a door broken open that led to the store from a hallway. A jimmy was found just inside the store. In the rear of the store goods were found scattered over the counters and floor. The burglars had evidently worked at their leisure, for they selected the choicest pieces of silk and satin.

Dolly Green, 9 years old, told Mr. Freund yesterday that at about noon on Saturday, while she was standing at the hall door, two well-dressed young men went into the hallway. A few minutes later she saw them trying to open the store door. The girl was taken by Mr. Freund to Capt. Mount of the Fifty-first street police station, where she gave descriptions of the men. Two young women in an adjoining store gave descriptions of a young man whom they saw standing in front of Freund & Co.'s store at about the time the burglary was committed.

One Janitor too Many.

Trouble exists in the public school on Seventy-fifth street near Third avenue over the question as to who is the janitor of the building. The incumbent is Eugene O'Neil, a former sergeant of the First New York Cavalry. He has been janitor for two years, and avers that he has always performed his work well. The salary is $1,250 a year, but out of this help must be paid. In December last for reasons unknown to O'Neil the Board of Trustees removed him and appointed John L. Vosburgh in his stead. O'Neil consulted with a lawyer, who advised him to stick as he could not be removed without cause. O'Neil applied to the Trustees, of which Mr. Pomeroy is Chairman, and Hon. B. Perkins Inspector, and reminded them of six children dependent on him. No attention was paid to his appeals. Then O'Neil determined to stick it out. The term of Vosburgh began on January 1. He demanded possession of the janitor's apartments in the school and was refused. He presented his demands daily. He says he was advised by the trustees to force his way in, and Vosburgh went to the school with his son yesterday morning, and began to take the lock off the janitor's door. James Schubert, a nephew of O'Neil, interfered and struck Vosburgh in the face. Policeman Quigly arrested Schubert and took him to the Yorkville Police Court. Justice Patterson dismissed the case, saying he had no proof that Vosburgh had a legal right to force his way in the building.

Inauguration of Gov. Foster.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Gov. Foster was inaugurated at the State Capitol to-day at 2 P. M., in the presence of a large assemblage, military and civil, gathered from all parts of the State. The effect of the military parade was marred by a snow storm, the streets being filled with slush and mud. Gov. Bishop introduced his successor in a few words as the chosen ruler of the State, and Gov. Foster delivered a brief inaugural address, saying that he had little to add to the recommendations made by his predecessor. He emphasized Gov. Bishop's suggestions touching the subjects of penal institutions, insane asylums, Board of State Charities, State Reformatory, and Ohio River navigation, dwelling particularly upon the necessity of giving the Governor power to exercise in using the Executive power of pardon with criminals. He thought that protection of society demanded that criminals should be made to bear the certainty of conviction, coupled with the certainty of punishment, instead of Executive clemency. He recommended the establishment of an Advisory Board of Pardons. This was rather pointed, as Gov. Bishop had been severely criticised by Democrats for the last few months at the rate of nearly one pardon in every two days, extending over sentences for life down to sentences for two years.

The Pork Packers' Strike.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—All the indications for a week past have been pointing to a speedy dissolution of the Butchers' Union, and the return of the strikers to work on the terms dictated by the employers. The latter have been gradually augmenting their forces, until they now have enough of the deserters from the Union and of unionized workmen to take care of the limited number of hogs which come in daily. They will accept unconditional surrender from the Union men as recognizable by being taken back. The packers this morning report their old employees coming back in good numbers, signing papers of resignation from the Union, and asking to be put to work. A meeting of Union men held at Stock Yards today, lasting several hours, appointed a committee to wait on the packers and ask permission to retain membership in the Union in case they went to work. There was a decided inclination in favor of terminating the strike in one way or another. There were about 6,000 at the meeting, and if their request is granted, all will immediately try to get work.

A State Almost without a Debt.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 12.—The Legislature convened today, with a full attendance. Gov. Gear's biennial message shows a State debt of $845,495, the payment of which he recommends at maturity, July 1, 1881, to free the State entirely of debt. He also recommends a change in the date of holding the State elections to coincide with the national date for Congressional elections.

Suicide in Jail.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Jan. 12.—Joseph Halfner of Andalusia, Bucks County, was committed to jail last Sunday evening on the charge of murdering Jacob Gerber by shooting him in an altercation about board money. Halfner's wife and child called to see him this morning, but when his cell door was opened he was found dead in bed, having cut his throat from ear to ear.

Fatal Fight about a Dog.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—While William Milliken and Henry Crane of Belleville, Ind., were fishing about a dog on Saturday afternoon, Elwood Milliken came to the assistance of his father and fatally stabbed Crane. The murderer escaped without arrest.

Killed in Jumping After a Ferryboat.

Christopher Reinhardt, 24 years old, of Greenpoint, jumped after the 6:15 boat at the Thirty-fourth street ferry, yesterday. The boat was about ten feet from the bridge, and Reinhardt fell against the stern and was killed.

Sarah Smith Stafford's Funeral.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 12.—The funeral services for Sarah Smith Stafford, the daughter of Lieut. Stafford, who fought with John Paul Jones in the Bon Homme Richard, were held this afternoon. Thousands of persons visited the residence and church. A wreath of flowers from Mr. Hayes and the flag of the Bon Homme Richard lay on the coffin. A letter of condolence was received by the family from Mr. Hayes and another from his son. It is said that Miss Stafford's grandfather, Capt. Smith, who was also in the famous sea fight, rescued the flag of the Bon Homme Richard, which had been nailed to the mast by Capt. Jones as the vessel was sinking, and after her crew had been transferred to the captured Serapis.

Among Hardened Thieves.

In the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday David Manus, a tailor, of 62 Sixth avenue, accused Annie George, aged 14 years, of stealing $10 from his money drawer. She is a small girl, with long light hair. She had spent part of the money for trinkets and given part to a boy. She acknowledged taking the money, in a way that showed that she did not appreciate the seriousness of this offence. Justice Duffy expressed his regret at having to commit her. "There ought to be some institution," he said, "where we could send such cases. It is hard to place her among hardened thieves."
