THREE MEN ON ONE GALLOWS

OLD JOSEPH RABER'S MURDER AT LAST AVENGED BY THE LAW.

Wise, Brandt, and Hummel Hanged Yesterday at Lebanon—Each Freely Confessing His Part in the Conspiracy to Kill Raber for the Insurance on his Life—One of the "Blue-Eyed Six" Acquitted of the Charge.

LEBANON, Pa., May 13.—With to-day's executions of Henry F. Wise, Israel Brandt, and Josiah Hummel, five men in all have been hanged for the murder of old Joseph Raber. Frank Stichler and Charles Drews were hanged Nov. 14 of last year. George Zechman, the sixth of the batch of backwoodsmen who were arrested for the crime, obtained a new trial and was acquitted a few days before Stichler and Drews were hanged. Wise's counsel went to the Board of Pardons. Brandt, Hummel, and Wise were doomed to disappointment, however, and their death warrants were issued.

A few weeks ago Brandt and Hummel made an effort to tunnel the walls of their cells and escape, but they were frustrated. Poison was found secreted in Brandt's cell, and it was taken from him. Wise became very devout, and was a constant reader of the Bible. He was very penitent. The utmost precaution was taken to prevent poison being smuggled to them. All the relatives bid farewell to the condemned yesterday. It is generally believed that Hummel made a confession to his pastor, because he asked him if it was necessary to do it to obtain forgiveness.

Last night Wise broke his long fast and went for his counsel to draw up a document relative to an insurance policy. Only a few visitors were admitted to the cells this morning. All the prisoners were early astir, and Wise could be heard singing a hymn before the others were up. Brandt sang a German hymn of his own composition, but Hummel was gloomy, morose, sullen, and silent. The gallows was erected this morning in the jail yard. It is the same structure upon which Drews and Stichler were hanged last November. It is dark gray in color, and the knob of the spring is located in front, so that the Sheriff can spring it as he descends from the gallows platform.

Wise drank a few cups of chocolate this morning and resumed his singing. Then came a rap at his cell door, and Hummel and Brandt were announced. "We have come," said Brandt, "to forgive you all you have done."

Wise smiled and asked: "Well, what did I ever do to you?"

Those were the first words these men had exchanged since their conviction in April, 1879. Hummel and Brandt made no reply, but withdrew in silence. Wise was very cheerful to the last, and when asked how long his speech on the gallows would be, he said not long. He was dressed in a dark striped suit, and a buttonhole bouquet of delicate white flowers was fastened to the lappel of his coat. He walked to the gallows smilingly and ascended firmly. He crossed his hands, leaned back, coolly surveyed the small crowd good naturedly, and in the Pennsylvania German spoke as follows: "Well, I have not much to say. In the first place I told who got up this thing, and I told the truth. Then I told how I got into it, and that was the truth. Then I said how Hummel got into the conspiracy, and that was the truth. I can say no more. All in all I told the truth, and I go to my Saviour with these words on my lips."

The reason Wise was first brought out alone was the Sheriff thought he might say something which the other prisoners would not like, which would result in trouble on the scaffold. A hymn was then sung and the Rev. Mr. Hay offered prayer. Both knelt their heads just touching the ropes. Wise prayed as loudly and as fervently as the preacher. Then Brandt and Hummel were brought out; they looked gloomy and trembled. Both ascended the gallows very firmly, however, but paid no attention to Wise. They, too, were dressed in black and wore buttonhole bouquets. All knelt in prayer, led by the Rev. Mr. Shantz of Myerstown. Wise again was loudest in his appeal to heaven. After another hymn and the reading of Scripture the men were manacled. Brandt and Hummel spoke not a word. Brandt became sullen and a cloud of anger passed over his countenance. The stump of his left arm was bound to his breast and his right arm was fastened to a strap about his waist. The white caps were drawn at 11:20, and Sheriff Crail sprung the trap.

The three bodies dropped together. The fall was about three feet. Hummel's neck was broken, but the other two were strangled. Death was pronounced at 11:25. 11:28, and 11:29. Hummel died first and Wise first. The customary horrible contortions did not take place, and there was not much struggling. The bodies were taken down, placed in ordinary coffins, and handed over to friends. The gallows was taken down at once. The funerals will take place on Sunday.

Hummel and Brandt both made confessions to their minister this morning a short time before they were taken to the scaffold. They admitted that they had insurance on the old man's life, but that they did not kill him. They had Drews to do it, thinking that they could not be prosecuted for murder. They died professing to forgive every one as they hoped to be forgiven.

Cove Bennett to Go on the Stage.

A company is being organized to appear next season in "A Gentleman from Nevada," the play now being presented at the Fifth Avenue Theatre. Cove Bennett, who was recently tried and acquitted in Jersey City on a charge of murder, has been engaged to act Capt. Crosby. This character, an important one in the plot of the piece, is that of a young officer in the British army, who commits a forgery in order to help his affianced wife's mother out of financial difficulty. He escapes him from punishment that Mr. Polk, as Christopher Columbus Gull, humorously distinguishes himself. Capt. Crosby is a different part to play for Bennett than any other excuse for his criminality, yet makes him figure as a gentleman. Cove Bennett has had some experience as an actor.

Prize Fighters Returning.

Mike Donovan, on his return to this city yesterday, went to the Compton Hotel to see the stakeholder, John Scanlon, and make arrangements to fight Rooke, who will be in this city tonight. Billy Borst, Rooke's principal backer, Mike Coburn, and Charles Darling, on their return from Canada, left the train at Rochester and went to Auburn Prison to see Joe Coburn, and will be in this city to-day. Ryan started from Troy today for the Morton House, in Erie, to meet his trainer, Joe Taylor, where he will take up his quarters until he starts for the battle grounds in Canada on Tuesday next, to face Joe Goss, and contend for the heavy-weight championship of America and $2,000.

The Infernal Machine Explosion.

Señor Hipolito de Uriarte, the Spanish Consul-General, was at his office yesterday attending to his duties as usual. He carried his left hand bandaged, but was not suffering so severely from the effects of the explosion on Wednesday night. It is said that he has been discovered as to the sender of the infernal machine that so nearly cost the Consul-General his life. A detective visited the Post Office yesterday, but the postal authorities knew nothing beyond what has already been published.

A Powder Mill Explosion.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 13.—The Mahoning Powder Mill near Ashland exploded this morning at 10¼ o'clock, killing Elwood Benseman and injuring five others. It is not known whether any more have been killed or not, as the mill is on fire and cannot be approached.
