A LIVELY BURGLAR CHASE.

Three Cracksmen Discovered at Work on a Safe, and One of Them Wounded.

A bold attempt was made to rob the jewelry store of Jacob Morch at 110 Broadway, Williamsburgh, early yesterday morning. At a few minutes before 5 o'clock Roundsman Nicholson, Policeman Brown, and Private Watchman Daily discovered three men at work on the safe which stands in the rear of the store. They made preparations to capture the burglars. Daily was stationed outside, while Nicholson and Brown forced an entrance through a glass shop next door to the yard, and then sprang over the fence. The windows in the rear of the jewelry store are protected by iron bars, but two of these had been wrenched out, leaving a space large enough for a man to pass through. The policemen, in approaching the window, alarmed the burglars, who rushed toward the front part of the store. The door was padlocked and bolted, while the two windows were protected by large plate glass. One of the men sprang to the window and seized a large bronze statue and hurled it through the window, sending a shower of broken glass over Watchman Daily, who was standing outside revolver in hand. With a shout of "Follow me, boys," the man sprang through the window, followed by his two pals. Daily attempted to use his revolver, he said, but was unable to cock it. Nicholson and Brown returned through Harris's glass shop and gave chase.

Policeman Forbes, seeing the three men rushing toward Fourth st, ed, opened fire upon them with his revolver. It is thought that one of them was hit. Roundsman Nicholson ran down Broadway to Third street, and through Third street to Grand street. Returning through Second street, he saw two of the burglars, and as he approached they separated. He followed one of them, and overhauled him at South Third street. The man attempted to draw his revolver, but Nicholson was too quick for him, and the man was arrested. At the Fifth Precinct station he gave his name as Adrian Leroy. He was recognized as a noted New York cracksman who had recently served a term in prison. At Justice Kenna's court he pleaded not guilty, and refused to say anything in regard to the burglary, or who his companions were.

Thomas Irving, while entering his detective agency, at 95 Fourth street, a few hours after the robbery, found an overcoat and under coat on the stoop. They were both saturated with blood, and were supposed to have been the property of the burglar who was fired at by Policeman Forbes. He had evidently thrown them away in his flight.

The burglars had forced their way through a vacant store at 75 Fourth street to get to the rear of Morch's jewelry store. They had succeeded in drilling a hole through the safe before being discovered. A complete set of fine burglars' tools were found lying beside the safe. Mr. Morch said the safe contained $40,000 worth of diamonds and other valuables.
