PICKING HUCKLEBERRIES.

HOW AND WHERE THE TOOTHSOME WILD FRUIT IS GATHERED.

Men, Women, and Children Turning Out and Gathering the Berries upon the Steep Mountain Sides of New York and Pennsylvania.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., July 14.—Orange, Sullivan, and Ulster Counties in this State, and Pike and Monroe in Pennsylvania, supply New York city with more than half the huckleberries consumed there. Thousands of bushels of these berries are shipped daily from points in this vicinity, via the Erie, Port Jervis and Monticello, Ulster and Delaware, New York Midland, Hudson River, and Delaware and Lackawanna Railways, and by the Hudson River boats to New York, Boston, Albany, and points west. The picking of these berries furnishes remunerative employment to hundreds of families, some of which make from $6 to $10 a day, according to the number of pickers in a family. The granite sides and broad brow of the Shawangunk, so great a wilderness of crags and tangled bushes to most people; the mild ridges of the lofty Pocono; the solitary peak and weird ravines of the Moosic, and the less prominent but equally wild ridges and peaks that characterize the physical structure of the counties above named, furnish a much richer harvest to many people than the more inviting meadows and cultivated acres of the fertile valleys do to their happy and contented possessors. In these mountain fastnesses grows in luxurious profusion every variety of the "toothsome huckleberry," from the early low-bush "sugar blue" to the immense "swamp huckleberry," that thrives on bushes frequently ten feet high. The season is now at its height for the choicest varieties, and the mountains from Paltz Point, in Ulster County, to the furthest elevation of the Pocono, in Monroe County, are being stripped of their harvest by hundreds of expert pickers. In Ulster County, probably, the picking of huckleberries has been reduced to a more scientific calling than in any of the other regions. Early every morning the villages along the Shawangunk are now turning out whole families of men, women, and children seeking favorite localities in the mountains for the day's pickings. Ellenville and its neighboring villages probably send out the greatest number. A family of pickers will frequently include the gray-haired grandfather down to the grandchild just able to make its way up the hills. Before sunrise the vicinity of Buttermilk Falls, near Ellenville, presents a busy scene. Picturesque groups of berry pickers are hurrying up the "Mountain Road" and another rugged mountain path known as the "Knee Breaker," eager to reach High Pint, the Ice Cave, Log House, Horse Shoe, Sam's Pint, and scores of other well-known spots where the black treasures grow profusely, before the sun is high in the heavens, and its intense rays make the journey one of greater difficulty. The men pickers, and many of the women, have a box made of light wood, which they strap to their backs like a knapsack. This box holds a bushel of berries. The berries are picked in small pails, from which the boxes and large receptacles are filled. Tubs are frequently carried up the mountain by pickers, to be filled with berries and carried home, generally on the heads of the pickers. George Brown, a stalwart negro, and one of the most skilful huckleberry pickers, astonished the villagers one day last week by coming down one of the steep Shawangunk paths carrying a tub full of berries on his head, a bushel box full strapped to his back, and a twelve-quart tin pail, heaped with berries, in each hand. His wife and four children followed, all heavily laden with the results of the day's work on "the Pint." The skill and rapidity with which most of the pickers fill their pails and baskets, and the power of endurance manifested by the women and children in carrying their burdens home are truly marvellous. Good pickers average from twenty to forty quarts a day. Favorite resorts in the vicinity of Ellenville for the pickers to rest and eat their luncheon are the "Spring," the "Hobbygesht," and "Resting Rock." The summits that many of the pickers seek in the trips are from 600 to 1,000 feet high, and the thought of climbing these rugged peaks is sufficient to appal the uninitiated.

The ridges along the Port Jervis and Monticello Railroad afford convenient and profitable picking grounds. "Democratic Ridge" yields its thousands of bushels a year, and "Squire" Morris of Forestburgh formerly made a nice income by setting up a "hotel" in the woods on the ridge and catering to the berry pickers.

The chief shipping place of huckleberries in Pike County is Shohola, sixteen miles west of Port Jervis. The berries are brought to that station for a distance of fifteen miles back in the mountains, chiefly by women, who carry their great baskets, boxes, and pails on their heads the entire distance. It is no uncommon thing for some of these Pike County female mountaineers to go out in the morning, pick all the berries they can carry, walk ten miles with them to the station, sell them, and walk back home again between breakfast and supper. Not infrequently they will be accompanied by three or four mild-looking children, each bearing its quota of the berries. These people generally take their price of their berries "out in trade," of which pickled pork and tobacco are not the least important articles. Chauncey Thomas, the Shohola storekeeper, buys all the berries of the Shohola region. A shipment of 300 bushels at a time is not an unknown quantity in the huckleberry trade of Shohola station.

The berry pickers of the Moosic Mountains, on the borders of Pike, Wayne, and Lackawanna Counties, are made up of miners' wives and children and the families of mine and railroad laborers. They ride by the score on the long coal trains that run on the gravity railroads, clinging to the sides with one hand and holding their baskets and pails in the other. There is great peril in this means of riding, as the trains dash through narrow rock cuts, along the faces of high cliffs, and around the sharpest of curves. The pickers, large and small, old and young, have become skilful in this method of travel, however, and it is seldom that any are hurt. The trains climb to the summit of the mountain, which is 2,000 feet above the sea, and the pickers alight and scatter about the ridges. They frequently select points twenty miles away from home, and it sometimes happens that they are unable to get on the trains as they pass the places where the road has again been sought at the close of the day's picking. Then long and tedious tramps through the woods to reach the "head" or "foot" of some plane where the cars can be mounted are necessary. Sometimes, however, the "runners" of trains are kind hearted and accommodating enough to check their trains so that the tired and laden pickers may get to their perilous perches on the sides of the cars. Once in a while belated pickers are compelled to accept the alternative of a night in the woods or a walk of ten or fifteen miles home. The Moosic Mountains are subject to visits from violent storms of thunder and lightning, and these carry terror to the pickers, who are mostly of a superstitious nature. Last season four women who had sought refuge among the rocks from one of these storms were killed by lightning.

The terries in all the regions this season are unusually large and fine, in spite of the fears that were entertained that the widespread forest fires of this spring had destroyed all the bushes. Berries are bringing in Scranton and other Moosic towns from 7 to 9 cents a quart. In the other regions they are 5 and 6 cents.

THE ROPEMAKERS' STRIKE.

What the Men are Waiting for and Say they Expect to Get.

The three cordage factories in Bushwick, L. I., known as those of Wall's Sons, Waterbury & Co., and the Lawrence Rope Works, employ, when in working order, about 1,000 operatives, consisting of men, boys, and girls. The men who do the skilled work have been receiving a uniform price of $1.37 per day, the boys from $3.50 to $4.50 per week, and the girls, who work by the piece, attending at the spinning wheels, 10 cents per hundred pounds. The girls, when steadily at work, earn from $4 to $5 per week.

For some weeks past the operatives have been dissatisfied with the wages paid them, and called a meeting of the Ropemakers' Protective Union. The union has about 700 active members, and at the meeting held in Humboldt Hall, in Montrose avenue, on the 8th inst., nearly all the members were in attendance. It was then decided that a committee should wait upon the employers, and demand an advance of 25 cents a day for the men, for the boys an advance of $1 and $1.50, according to class, and for the girls two cents per hundred. On the 9th inst. this demand was made, and met with a prompt refusal. The operatives then quit work in a body. The non-union operatives, being in sympathy with the union, shortly afterward followed their example. Since then the strike has continued, and at a meeting of the union yesterday it was unanimously decided to hold out until their demands were acceded to.

The strikers say that since they have quit work a great many operatives from New York and surrounding cities have come to Brooklyn, in answer to advertisements for operatives, and that they nearly all refuse the wages offered them.

Another meeting of the Ropemakers' Protective Union will be held at 8 A. M. to-day, in Humboldt Hall, for the purpose, it is said, of strengthening the organization and raising funds to enable it to continue the strike. The managers of the factories say that they cannot afford to pay any more than the present rate of wages.

The Stock Finders.

Lawyers Algernon S. Sullivan, Dos Passos, and Purdy, with their clients, Lawrence R. Jerome, Jr., E. M. Patchell, and William McIlhiben, were all at the Tombs Police Court yesterday. Justice Duffy then opened the formal examination of the men implicated in the Bravoto-Jerome A. & G. stock case. The messenger boy Seixas, Mr. Theodore J. Sands, Mr. James Betts Metcalfe, and Inspector Byrnes occupied their places in the gallery. Then Justice Duffy adjourned the case to this morning.

ACCUSED OF ASSAULTING GUESTS.

The Proprietor of a Broadway Hotel Held for Trial in $500 Bail.

Louis W. Parker, proprietor of the Parker House, Broadway and Thirty-third street, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued from the Yorkville Police Court charging him with assault and battery. Mr. Parker was arraigned before Justice Flammer. The complainant was Charles Parsons, Jr., of 99 Park avenue.

Mr. Parsons said that on Saturday afternoon he entered the restaurant of the Parker House to dine with a friend, Frank B. Wesson of 46 East Twenty-sixth street. At the end of the second course they sent for a package of cigarettes. The waiter brought the cigarettes, but informed them that smoking was prohibited in the restaurant. Leaving their hats and canes on their chairs, they went outside and sat on a step, six feet from the door, to finish their cigarettes. They had been there but a short time, said Mr. Parsons, when Mr. Parker came out and said: "You dirty vagabonds, get off this stoop."

Mr. Parsons said that Mr. Parker then kicked him violently in the back, nearly knocking him into the street. Mr. Parsons was too astonished to resist, and he assures Mr. Parker of kicking him again. Mr. Wesson attempted to interfere, and was seized by a waiter. After considerable delay the young men secured their hats and canes and went away, not knowing whom their assailant was. They afterward returned, pointed him out, and were told it was Mr. Parker.

James Hayes, a cab driver, corroborated Mr. Parsons's story, and said that he saw him kicked by Mr. Parker.

Parker made a general denial. He said that he was so crippled by rheumatism as to be physically unable to kick. He saw the young men smoking and blocking the doorway so that no one could pass by, he said, and he tapped them on the shoulders and asked them to move. He accuses them of having sworn at him, and says that Mr. Parsons struck at him. He warded off the blow and went inside. Mr. Parsons, he says, followed him, seized a chair, and would have struck him if a waiter had not interfered.

Cashier F. C. Seabold and two waiters corroborated Mr. Parker.

Justice Flammer held him in $500 bail.

FOUND WITH HIS SKULL BROKEN.

The Fate of a Newark Policeman who was Waiting by the Railroad Track.

Policeman Zachariah O. Mallette was found unconscious at the foot of the Newark and New York Railroad embankment, between the St. Charles street and East Ferry street bridges, in Newark, at 3½ o'clock yesterday morning. His skull was crushed in two places. He was seen on his post at 2½ o'clock, when he promised to meet Policeman Edward S. Earl on the railroad track an hour later, and go with him to answer roll call at Police Headquarters. Policeman Earl went to the place of meeting at 3½ o'clock, and found Policeman Mallette lying unconscious in a pool of blood. He had the injured man taken to Police Headquarters, where Police Surgeon Reed said the injuries would prove fatal.

It is thought that Mallette sat down on the embankment close to the railroad track to wait for Earl, and that he fell asleep. At 3 o'clock a freight train from New York passed the place where Mallette was found. The engineer says he saw a man sitting on a tie near the East Ferry street bridge with his forehead resting on his knees. He is certain that the locomotive did not strike the man. Capt. B. W. Hopper, the station agent at Broad street, investigated the case yesterday afternoon, and agrees with the engineer. His idea is that Mallette was asleep when the train came along, that he was aroused by the noise and threw his head backward, when he was struck by the iron box of one of the car wheels or one of the iron steps, and hurled down the embankment. No blood, however, was found on any of the iron boxes or steps, and the authorities are therefore unable to say just how Mallette was injured. He is 39 years old, and has a wife and one child.

George Bliss and the '68 Naturalizations.

The taking of testimony for the defence in the matter of the charges against John I. Davenport, growing out of the arrests of holders of naturalization certificates of 1868, who sought to vote on them in 1878, was before the sub-committee of the United States Senate, known as the Wallace Committee, yesterday. The committee sat in the Postmaster's room. Senators Wallace, Blair, McDonald, and Hoar were present. The fifth member, Senator Garland of Arkansas, was absent. George Bliss was a witness for Mr. Davenport. He said that he had resided in New York for twenty-five years, and that for the past twenty years he had given close attention to the subject of naturalization in the state courts. He exercised the jurisdiction in proceedings in the Superior and Supreme Courts in 1863, and was present when the oaths were administered to witnesses by Judges Barnard, McCunn, and Sutherland. Mr. Bliss said that he believed that most of the certificates of 1868 were fraudulently and irregularly issued, and he explained why he was of that opinion. Senator McDonald examined him at length.

Court Calendars This Day.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.—Nos. 14, 25, 41, 90, 152, 173, 174, 175, 185, 192, 202, 203, 204.

BRIEF MENTION.

Judge Donohue granted an absolute divorce yesterday to Catherine Meyer from Julius Meyer, cause, adultery.

Jackson Russell, the young son of Samuel Rusell of Franklin Township, N. J., died on Tuesday from excessive bathing.

The Committee of Nine of the United States Grand Jury examined four persons as to the Seawanhaka disaster yesterday.

Cleveland, N. J., made one shipment of 52,000 quarts of blackberries one day recently, which yielded a return of over $3,000.

Fifteen boys who were captured while bathing in the East River were fined small sums in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday.

Pleuro-pneumonia has made its appearance among the cattle near Elizabeth, N. J., and several cows have died from the disease.

The schooner J. P. Ross, bound for Taunton, Mass., struck a rock at Hell Gate, yesterday, and now lies sunk off College Point dock.

Jane Parcell, 60 years old, died at 10 East Eleventh street on Tuesday, from cholera morbus, produced by eating fish that had been kept too long.

The first colored man ever drawn on a jury in Queens County is now on the petit jury of the County Sessions. His name is Elkanah Jackson, and he lives in Flushing.

The Rev. Mr. Baird of this city, whose daughter, Miss Miriam Baird, mysteriously disappeared from Patterson, Putnam County, learned yesterday that she was safe with friends.

The body of an unknown man, about 25 years old, dressed in a dark suit and a white shirt, containing steel stays, was found yesterday in the Atlantic Basin, in Brooklyn.

Capt. Jesse Howland of Red Bank, N. J., recently caught in his pound net a shark 11 feet long, and weighing over 1,000 pounds—the largest that has ever been caught there.

James Hunting of Madison, N. J., has presented to the Washington Headquarters a bottle containing a piece of Washington's coffin, and a withered lemon which grew on a tree which Washington planted.

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth Diller, daughter of Dr. Jacob W. Diller, who died from injuries received on the Seawanhaka, on which her father was lost, will take place at St. Luke's Church, in Clinton avenue, this afternoon.

Many of the people who passed through Chatham street yesterday stopped to look at the approach of the Brooklyn Bridge, which could for the first time be seen through the space left vacant by the removal of the old State Zeitung building.

Moses Rosensen, 9 years of age, of 275 North Second street, Williamsburgh, was run over by car 21 of the North Second street line yesterday afternoon, and fatally injured. The driver, George Harris, of 226 Jackson street, was arrested.

Mr. Charles Ludlum, now visiting at Cape May, is the only survivor of a company of 200 men who assembled at Pierce's Point, Cape May County, in 1813, to guard the shore against the incursions of the British, whose fleet lay in Delaware Bay.

Police Commissioner Nichols has qualified, and he began to act as treasurer of the department yesterday. The banks holding the Street Cleaning Bureau employees' back pay have agreed to recognize him, despite Mr. Voorhis's protest, and the hands can be paid to-day.

According to the official figures in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, 140 persons died from the direct effects of intemperance in the first six months of the present year. Of these only 25 were single, and those who were married or had been married numbered 88, 23 being widows or widowers.

The complaints against Joseph Hughes and James Frawley, in the matter of the drowning of Ellen Fitzpatrick and Elizabeth Mullen off the Battery on the evening of June 7, by the upsetting of a rowboat by the steamboat Eliza Hancox, was yesterday dismissed by the Grand Jury.

The members of the Hoboken Turtle Club enjoyed their toothsome dish at Gabe Case's hotel in Central avenue yesterday. President S. A. Chedsey presided. Sixty gallons of soup, to which 350 hard-boiled eggs were added, appeased the appetites of the sitters. Speeches and songs followed.

A delegation of property owners called upon Mayor Howell yesterday and asked him to veto the resolutions of the Brooklyn Aldermen giving a liberal franchise to the Brooklyn Elevated and Atlantic Beach Railroad. They claimed that the road would ruin much property, and would not benefit the city.

William Baylan, 13 years of age, of 55 Oliver street, was picked up from Pier 23, East River, last evening, by a playmate, and was rescued by Edward Kelly. At about the same time Kelly's co-laborer, John Thomas, rescued Joseph Cudden, aged 11, of 16 Roosevelt street, who fell into the river from Pier 22, East River.

John Schmittler of Blossville, who was convicted, on Wednesday, in the Queens County Court of Sessions, of manslaughter in the fourth degree, in having caused the death of his hired man, George Reinhardt, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Armstrong to three years and six months in the Kings County Penitentiary.

The census returns from the Second District of Riverhead, Suffolk County, L. I., show that there are twenty-seven persons living in the district over 80 years old, and several over 90. The largest family is John Galverton's, which consists of himself and wife and twelve children, the oldest of the children being 18 years and the youngest eight months.

Controller Kelly was yesterday authorized to issue $131,000 of bonds to pay assessments; $54,000 of bonds whose proceeds are to be expended in the improvement of the small parks on Fourth avenue, between Sixty-seventh and Ninety-third streets, and $22,000 of bonds to pay the salaries of District Court clerks who were appointed in 1879 and after ward removed.

Isaac Metzger, 23 years of age, a servant, employed at 276 Second street, Williamsburgh, attempted to light the fire yesterday morning by using kerosene. The oil ignited and the can exploded, setting fire to her clothing. She ran into the street. A cabman threw herself into the gutter. A passer-by ran from a neighboring store, and extinguished the flames. She was severely burned, and was removed to the St. Catherine Hospital, where she lies in a dangerous condition.

BROOKLYN'S POLITICAL MUDDLE.

Who is to Control the Police, and who is Excise Commissioner?

The muddle in the Brooklyn Police Department was not changed yesterday, although the lawyers were busy preparing papers necessary to have the injunction granted by Justice McCue restraining Gen. Jourdan from acting as the single head of the department vacated, on the ground that all of the appointments necessary under the new law have been made. Police and Excise Commissioners Pyburn and Leich continue to control the department, while Excise Commissioners W. L. B. Stears and Herman Coleli, who hold their certificates of appointment, and have filed their bonds, have no offices and transact no business. The Democrats claim that the reappointment of Capt. Stears by Auditor Aumemman and Comptroller Steinmetz is no more legal than the first appointment, notwithstanding the fact that a vacancy exists now, while it did not exist then. The point raised, which will doubtless prove the one that will be used in the courts, is that the Auditor's power to join with the Comptroller and Mayor in making the appointments ceased upon the expiration of thirty days, and that the power to appoint now rests solely with the Comptroller and Mayor.

Mayor Howell yesterday refused to approve of Mr. Stears's bond, which had been filed with the City Clerk, because the Auditor's name was upon it. He claimed that the name did not belong there, and that it was not a proper bond. He promised to talk with the Comptroller about approving a bond which did not bear the Auditor's name, but did not agree to approve it if it was offered. The Police Department is anxiously awaiting the turn of affairs at headquarters.

Legal Services for the City.

The bills of the lawyers who made the argument before the Supreme Court last fall in relation to the appointment of the Democratic inspectors of election were presented to the Board of Apportionment yesterday. The bill of Field & Dorsheimer was $10,000, and that of E. W. Stoughton, $2,500.

Mayor Cooper moved that the bills be referred to Comptroller Kelly. He had, he said, been told by Gov. Cornell that he would not have signed the act of the Legislature authorizing the payment if these claims had he not been assured by ex-Lieut.-Gov. Dorsheimer that the bills would not exceed $5,000.

The bills were thereupon referred, and then the bills of Townsend A Weed and Aaron J. Vanderpoel, who argued Police Commissioner Sidney P. Nichols's suit against the Mayor were presented. Sheriff Reilly's bill for $12,000 for legal expenses incurred in his defence in the impeachment proceedings before Gov. Robinson is also before the Board.

National Yachting Association.

Hornell, Oshkosh Y. C. For three years—W. H. Dilworth, New Jersey Y. C.; D. Hull Rice, Seaton Bay Y. C.; Robert Ammon, Quaker City Y. C.; H. F. Griswold, Chicago Y. C. The association will give a regatta in New York bay on Monday, Aug. 9.

Excise Money to Charities.

The Board of Apportionment yesterday gave $908.57 of excise money to St. James's Home for Children, $2,893.43 to the Ladies' Deborah Nursery and Child's Protectory, $6,309.86 to the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, $1,252.28 to St. Ann's Home for Destitute Children, $6,482.05 to the Association for the Benefit of Colored Orphans, $2,915.43 to St. Stephen's Home for Children, $1,056 to the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, $1,056 to the Nursery and Child's Hospital, $417.43 to the Asylum of St. Vincent de Paul, $5,936.43 to the Asylum of Relief of St. Dominick, $15,180.57 to the Institution of Mercy, and $778.50 to the Home for Fallen and Friendless Girls.

Elder Lowery's Mission.

Elder Peter Lowery, President of the Tennessee Manual Labor University, is in this city trying to collect subscriptions for paying a debt of $5,000. The institution is for the education of colored boys and their training in useful employment. It is near Nashville, and 300 acres of land have been purchased. Elder Lowery has letters of recommendation from Gov. M. Kellogg, Dr. Brown, and others, and he is now at 103 West Twenty-seventh street.
