CATHARINE LEE'S HARDSHIP.

THROWN INTO A CELL AND TAKEN TO COURT WITH A BROKEN LEG.

Arraigned for Drunkenness and Sentenced to the Island—Fainting. She Attracts the Attention of a Keeper to her Suffering.

A truck stopped in front of the Essex Market Police Court, yesterday morning, and Policeman Patterson, assisted by other policemen, carried into the court room Catharine Lee of 649 Water street. The woman screamed and groaned, and could not be induced to stand up. She was placed on the floor, where she lay moaning and apparently helpless. Justice Morgan asked Policeman Patterson what was the matter with the woman. The policeman said she was drunk, and he made an affidavit to that effect. Justice Morgan fined her $10 and sentenced her to the Island for six months. When the policemen attempted to raise her to her feet she broke out again in piercing screams. She was taken to the Warden's room, where she fainted.

Keeper Matthew Daly said later to a SUN reporter: "I heard the woman scream, and saw Policeman Patterson drag her through the prison courtyard. He threw her down on the floor of my office, and when I asked him what was the matter with her, he said she was 'an old bum,' and had got six months. The woman did not look like a 'bum,' and I never recollected having seen her. When she recovered consciousness I asked her what was the matter with her, and she said her leg was broken, and that her husband had done it; that the police had treated her brutally, and locked her up all night, although she told them, when she was arrested, that her leg was broken. I sent at once for Dr. Leahy of 8 Prince street, the prison surgeon. I did so because I felt that the woman had been terribly abused. I did not know her, although I have been here over thirty years. When Dr. Leahy came he said that her leg was broken at the ankle, that inflammation had set in, and that the woman was very low. By his orders I telegraphed for an ambulance from Bellevue Hospital. The surgeon in charge examined the woman, and said it was a wonder that the bone of her broken leg had not protruded. Before the arrival of the ambulance I sent Court Messenger White to notify Mrs. Lee's two daughters, and one of them, a respectable-looking woman, saw her as she was being taken into the ambulance."

Sergeant Snyder of the Madison street police said: "At half-past 11 on Monday night Policemen Patterson and McMahon brought Catharine Lee to this station. They were accompanied by her husband, Michael Lee. Policeman Patterson charged the woman with being drunk, and her husband said that she spent all his earnings on drink. She complained that her leg was broken and kept screaming. Her husband said that she was in the habit when arrested of 'putting on' that her leg was broken. She refused to allow any of us to examine her limb, and was then locked up for the night."

Policeman Patterson said: "At a quarter past 11 on Monday night I found Catharine Lee sitting on a step in front of King's buildings in Madison street. She was screaming and making a noise. Her husband was arguing with her. I told her to go home with him, or I would have to lock her up. She said she would not go home with him. He charged her with being drunk, and said that last Saturday he gave her $20, and she had spent all but $2 in drink. As the woman would not move, I had to arrest her. She then said her leg was broken, and charged her husband with throwing her down. He denied this, and, as she would not walk, I got a hand cart and, with the assistance of Officer McMahon, took her to the station. This morning she again refused to walk, so I got a truck and took her to court. Justice Morgan seemed to know her, and sentenced her to six months' imprisonment."

Capt. Petty said: "I was in the station house when the woman was brought in. When she complained of having her leg broken, I asked her to let me look at it, but she refused to let any one do so. Her husband insisted that she was shamming, and that she was a drunkard. She did not look like a drinking woman, although she might have been drinking. Of course, as she would not allow any one to examine her, and the officer said she was drunk, we had to lock her up."

Mrs. Ryan, a married daughter of Catharine Lee, lives at 43 Montgomery street. Ellen McGowan, another daughter, lives with her brother and sister at 649 Water street. Both showed great distress at the cruel treatment of their mother. They said Michael Lee, their stepfather, was married to their mother eleven years ago. Almost from the first he began to abuse her. Seven years ago, they said, he broke her arm, and four years ago he gouged her eye. For four months past she has not lived with him, being supported by her children. Michael Lee, they said, was not allowed to call upon them, owing to his brutal conduct. On Monday Mrs. Lee spent the day with Mrs. Ryan. She left her to go to Ellen McGowan's home at 649 Water street, to prepare supper for her children. In the evening she called upon a Mrs. Boland, in Monroe street, and then her husband followed her. He began abusing her and beating her, her daughters say, and she left the Boland's at 11 o'clock, intending to return to 43 Montgomery street. She had not had anything to drink up to that time. Although beaten by her husband, she could never be induced to make a complaint against him. Ellen McGowan, who saw her mother carried into the ambulance, was so distressed that she could give no connected story.

Catharine Lee was too ill last night to be seen. Michael Lee, who is employed by Stevedore Webb in Market street, could not be found.

A Hancock Centenarian.

Yonkers has a whole-souled Democrat, who says, if necessary, he will crawl all the way to the polls to vote for Hancock and English. He is Capt. Isaac Benkie, who is in his 102d year. His first wife was an aunt of Chauncey M. Depew, and he is a brother-in-law of Major John Paulding, one of Andre's captors.
