MAD DOGS IN ORANGE COUNTY.

The Raid of a Rabid Spitz Through the Villages of Unionville and Westtown.

WESTTOWN, N. Y., April 17.—On Sunday last a Spitz dog belonging to a farmer named Johnson, who lives on the road between Amity and Pine Island, began to act so strangely that it was suspected that he had been bitten by the dog which passed through here from Sussex County, N. J., one week previous. Before the dog could be secured he sprang upon two children who were in the room with it, and bit both of them in the hands, and then bit their mother in the foot, she, however, receiving no injury on account of the thickness of her shoe. The dog started from the house, and was next seen near the house of Andrew Yerkes about a mile from Unionville, N. Y., where it attacked David Berry, a farm hand. Berry loosened a valuable shepherd dog belonging to Mr. Yerkes, and set him on the rabid Spitz. Three fights ensued, in which both dogs were badly bitten. The Spitz dog then left the premises. Mr. Yerkes tied his dog up, and as it showed signs of madness, he shot it the next day.

From Unionville the dog came toward Westtown, biting many dogs and cattle on the way. It made a tour of this village, biting dogs belonging to Mr. Stewart, Levi Aldridge, C. D. Johnson, Mrs. David Sayre, and J. D. Sayre. At Mr. Sayre's place the dog attacked the hired man, who kept the animal at bay with a pitchfork. The dog then ran through the stable and into an apartment under the barn used for storing tools and farming implements. Here it was kept imprisoned until Mr. Yerkes got his gun and shot it. It is thought that the dog bit a great many other dogs on his travels, and an organization to exterminate all the dogs in this neighborhood is growing in favor, and soon will be started. None of the persons who were bitten has as yet shown any signs of hydrophobia. They are all under careful treatment.

Several other mad dogs have made raids in this neighborhood within a few weeks past. A dog ran up through Sussex County, biting one man and many dogs. The same animal made its appearance afterward near Florida and Warwick. Another dog ran through Sussex County to Port Jervis, where it ran into a house and attacked a dog. Scalding hot water was poured over the animal, and it fled. Still another dog travelled from Unionville and this village toward Port Jervis, going through Mt. Salem and Colesville. Its career was finished by hanging, the animal falling from a loft in which it was tied.

THE GROTON CENTENNIAL.

Programme of the Proposed Celebration—Partisanship of the Committee.

NORWICH, Conn., April 17.—The committee who have in charge the proposed celebration in September next of the "Battle and Massacre of Groton Heights," at a recent meeting, perfected a programme of exercises for the first day. It is to be a counterfeit reproduction of the events that made the day memorable 100 years ago. At an early hour in the morning a detachment of troops of the Connecticut National Guard are to be landed on the New London side near the lighthouse, and near Eastern Point on the Groton side of the Thames. They will pursue the line of march followed by the British under command of Benedict Arnold in 1781. They are to fire volleys of musketry and make attacks on the same points, which are to be defended by volunteers, as in the past. In the afternoon of that day the committee recommend that Gov. Bigelow, the orator of the day, and other speakers, be escorted by soldiers and citizens to a large tent to be erected on Groton Heights. The exercises at this point will begin with music, two vocal and two instrumental pieces. The oration will be delivered by Gen. Joseph R. Hawley, and will occupy one hour, after which there will be addresses by President Garfield, Gen. Hancock, Horatio Seymour, Robert C. Winthrop, Gen. Grant, and other distinguished guests, each speech to be not longer than twenty minutes. In the evening electric lights will be displayed in New London and on Groton Heights. The programme for the second day has not been arranged.

Much unfavorable comment has been stirred throughout the State by the small partisan Republican spirit displayed in the deliberations and actions of the committee in charge, and several sharp criticisms have been published by descendants of the men who perished in the Groton battle. It seems to be the determination of the executive body to run the celebration in accordance with the narrow rules of the "political" machine, and to make of its anniversary a Republican love feast. Among other things which have given offence to the press is the apparent intention of the managers to advertise in Republican newspapers only.

Street Cleaning in Brooklyn.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: Last year it was Brooklyn with its extraordinary death rate that commanded the attention of the whole country. Now, however, the heavy rains having swept much of the filth from our doors, attention is diverted to New York.

Brooklyn has suffered much in the past in consequence of the sins of political gamblers, but a dark day is in store for her again unless the warning voice is heeded.

When the five-year street cleaning contract was to be let last winter, and a citizen not of the favored Ring put in the lowest bid, there was delay in accepting it, and he was warned that he would be held to the strict letter of contract. Knowing the power of the officials, he retired from the contest. New proposals were called for, and when the present contractor put in his bid he was promptly accepted.

Many have wondered whether the specifications were prepared expressly to deter outsiders from making bids, and to reward special friends. All streets are to be cleaned on the contract says once a week; and yet it is apparent that the officials never intended to have them cleaned more than two or three times a year. Very many of the streets have not been even brushed over since last fall, and few, if any, of them more than once.

Rumor says that there is a clever little scheme on foot by which the contractor is to be allowed to throw up his five-year contract, with a view of having a Senator bring in a bill to double the allowance for street cleaning, after which another member of the Ring is to have the contract with a new deal.

Are not officials who audit bills for street cleaning once a week when they know the work has not been done fit subjects for an investigation by the Grand Jury?
