HIDDEN IN A ROBBERS' CAVE.

THE PLUNDER OF A FAMILY OF CRIMINALS IN NEW JERSEY.

Men, Women, and Boys Banded Together with Oaths for a Career of Crime—Electing a Commander-in-Chief and a "Prince Appendix" of the "Golden Knights"—The Arrest.

The magnitude and daring of the operations of a gang of outlaws in New Jersey, within a radius of fifty miles of Paterson, during the last three months, has caused much interest. So bold did they become that, not content with attacking private residences and farmhouses, they descended on the stations and Post Offices along the line of the Erie Railroad. Detectives John H. Brown and John Grimes of the Erie were recently assigned to ferret them out, and they have completed their task by arresting a whole family, with one exception. The members of the family have been criminals from infancy, and their children have been regularly trained to follow in their footsteps. Their plundering and thefts have been indiscriminate, attended with violence. Horses and carriages, cows, calves, and sheep, jewelry, silverware, clothing, agricultural implements, and household utensils were all levied upon with a system which showed that a master mind controlled the operations. The family consists of three brothers, with their wives and children. They were descended from a respectable family of Orange County, and still have relatives living in the vicinity of their depredations who are earning an honest living. The heads of the family are Hiram, Peter, and James Hennion. In the band are the wife of James, their son William, a lad of 15; two smaller children of theirs, and Edmund Shaw, a nephew of the brothers, a boy of about the same age as William. Hiram and Peter, after a career of crime, were sentenced to seventeen years' imprisonment for an assault on a little girl in Binghamton. After serving thirteen years their term, with commutation, expired in March, and they left Auburn for New York. They went directly to the house of their sister, Mrs. Shaw, in Fifty-first street, near Ninth avenue. While in prison their brother James had, with his wife, picked up a precarious living in and around Paterson by petty thieving. Mr. Shaw had died and left their sister a widow. Hiram was born for a leader, and had served during the civil war in the cavalry.

After staying three days with their sister a plan of operations on a large scale was matured, and they returned to their old ground. They took with them Eddie Shaw, whose mother left for the West. They crossed the Twenty-third Street Ferry, and went directly to the house of their brother James in Paterson, who was on the alert for their arrival. To get acquainted with the neighborhood, after their long absence, one worked for a week or so in the Standard Oil Works and the other on the Ridgewood and Rutherford branch of the Erie. Then they began operations on a small scale, concealing their plunder at Garrett Mountain, near Paterson. It was early in April when they started out from Paterson to rob all along the road. At a place called Toteaway, on the outskirts of Paterson, they halted and solemnly banded themselves together with fearful oaths, as the boy Eddie confesses. He says they were formed in line by Hiram, and organized as the "Golden Knights." His uncle Hiram was the commander-in-chief of the Golden Knights, and his uncle Peter was dubbed the "Prince Appendix." James, his other uncle, his wife and the children were enrolled in military style as high privates. With a cocked revolver Hiram forced them to sign their names to a paper, and James, who is anxious to turn State's evidence, lays great stress on the fact that Hiram signed for him and the "kids." Preparatory steps were taken to combine with the Sturms gang, also a set of thieves, some of whom have been in jail. James Hennion's wife was intrusted with the negotiations.

"They would have stolen the State if such a combination had been effected," said Detective Grimes.

For some time no suspicion was aroused against the Hennion party, their operations being considered those of the Sturms gang and other parties. Peter had been before arrested for stealing oil-cloth, but he soon joined the party, and for a while they made their headquarters at Lib and Fred Hoeffler's, Edmund was suspected to Toteaway. They now became emboldened and began to plunder indiscriminately. Wanaque, Ringwood, and Slontsburg were the first places visited. At Slontsburg a shoe store was ransacked. A pair of horses and a carriage were stolen at Wanaque to carry off the plunder. A wagon could have been taken, but Hiram said, "We must go into Paterson in style." Some of the boots and shoes were sold, and the other goods concealed. After disposing of the result of several days robbery the horses were let go on the principal street, and were caught as a runaway team. Cows, calves, sheep, silverware, agricultural implements, &c., now began to disappear in all directions. Along the line of the Erie, Mahway, Ramsey, Allendale, and Ridgewood stations were visited, and the Post Offices were rifled. Getting alarmed the gang fled over the mountains back to the vicinity of Ringwood. Here they camped out in the woods for a while, and finally took refuge in a cave which, when they were arrested, was crammed with goods of every description. Here they made preparations for a descent on the Hon. A. S. Hewitt's house, near which their camp was located. Hearing that the authorities were on their track the family moved to a cave at Duck Cedar Creek. While here they robbed Donnell's house at Slontsburg. The house was surrounded at midnight, Donnell and his wife made a stout resistance, but after several shots had been exchanged were overpowered. The plunder, including a cow, two calves, and some poultry taken elsewhere, was conveyed to the cave near Ringwood.

Detectives Brown and Grimes finally got the right trail, through a negro woman who pointed out the hiding place. Aided by a constable from Oakland, they made a raid about daybreak a few days ago. Hiram Hennion, however, had become suspicious, and had given all directions to run for the woods. When the officers was reached it was found full of stolen property, but the inhabitants were missing. After a short search the woman and children were found fishing, and were arrested. Later in the day Peter and James were discovered in the woods. They drew revolvers and kept them at bay, offering fierce resistance, but were overpowered and handcuffed. The boys Edward and William were also captured, but the leader, Hiram Hennion, succeeded in making his escape, although the whole neighborhood turned out with guns, revolvers, axes, and pitchforks to aid in the capture.

The cave was a perfect storehouse, and had evidently been under the charge of Mrs. James Hennion, everything being packed up and neatly and methodically arranged. There were many suits of men's and women's clothing, the latter consisting of silk dresses, and English skin sacques, as well as merino and calico goods. The array of underclothing, sheets, and pillow cases showed that clothes lines had been robbed. Silverware, jewelry, stoves, ploughs, hoes, spades, rakes, knives, forks, plates, &c., were found in abundance. In the commissary line were seventy-eighty jars of preserves, coffee, tea, vegetables, and garden truck. Feathers of chickens and skins of cows and calves were also found.

"Our discovery of them was an accident," said Detective Grimes. "From all we can learn they had only begun operations. They had two hiding places for their plunder, and undoubtedly had confederates to dispose of it. The boy admitted a plan to rob Mr. Hewitt's house, and the robberies this summer would have been enormous. We were actually after the members of another gang."

The family were all locked up in Goshen jail, and will be tried some time next month. The men, except Hiram, have no education, and with the woman refuse to say anything. Peter, when questioned, said:

"I'm a plain farmer. Talk to me about farming and I'm posted. I don't know anything about this matter."

The boy, Eddie Shaw, who is in delicate health, reads and writes, and is more disposed to conversee. He said that they were threatened with death by Hiram Hennion if they betrayed the gang. The detectives say that James is disposed to turn State's evidence. The extent of their robberies can only be conjectured at present. A short time ago, in attempting a robbery at Suffern's, they were attacked by a boodhound owned by a resident. They, however, beat the dog off and effected their escape. A man was sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment in Paterson yesterday who is supposed by many to be Hiram Hennion. He was found asleep in a hotel by a policeman, who attempted to arrest him. He drew a large knife and attacked the policeman, who had to club him severely before effecting the arrest. A shoemaker of Paterson has identified him as the man who tried to sell to him the boots and shoes stolen at Slontsburg.

SOUTHERN MARYLAND RAILROAD

When completed will extend from Washington City to DRUM POINT HARBOR, one of the finest harbors in the United States, and to St. Mary's Harbor, on St. Mary's River, and to POINT LOOKOUT, at the mouth of the POTOMAC RIVER. The entire line of road between Brandywine Station, on the BALTIMORE AND POTOMAC RAILROAD, and POINT LOOKOUT is graded except 12¼ miles between California Station and St. Inegoes. The building of the wharf at Drum Point Harbor is progressing rapidly as possible. The track has been laid and the construction train is now running to a point near Cedarville. A glance at the map will show that the completion of this road from Brandywine to Drum Point Harbor will give the BALTIMORE AND POTOMAC RAILROAD an outlet on the Lower Bay for the Anthracite Coal that comes to it over the Northern Central Railroad.

The entire amount of First Mortgage Bonds which can be issued on the proposed line and branches (including sidings), about eighty-two miles of track, and including WHARVES, WATER FRONTS, DEPOTS, ROLLING STOCK, AND PROPERTY OF EVERY KIND NOW OWNED OR HEREAFTER TO BE ACQUIRED, IS ONLY $4,000,000, of which only $350,000 have been issued, and all of the balance of the Bonds are held by the CITIZENS' NATIONAL BANK of Washington, D. C., in trust, and the Bonds, or the proceeds thereof, can only be paid out by said bank as work is done on said road.
