TRAGEDY ON AN ENGLISH RAILWAY.

A Man Murdered and Robbed and his Body Thrown Out of the Car Window.

LONDON, June 28.—When the Brighton Railway express train was stopped for the collection of tickets outside of Brighton yesterday a man named Arthur Lefroy was found in one of the carriages wounded on the head and bleeding. He said that his fellow travellers were a countryman and an old gentleman, and that soon after passing Croydon he heard a shot and was stunned. Lefroy came back as far as Croydon, a station just outside of London, near the Crystal Palace, where he left the train and called the police officers on duty at the station to his aid. His face was wounded and bleeding, and his clothing torn. He said that he had been on a little spree, had drank too much, and had injured himself by attempting to walk about in the carriage when the train was in such rapid motion. His plausible manner so imposed upon the police, and he backed it up so well by a douceur of half a crown, that one of them assisted him from the station to a house near Croydon, which he said was his home. Later the body of Mr. F. J. Gold, a retired business man, who had been to London to collect rents, was found in the Balcombe Tunnel, with his throat cut and his body stabbed in several places. Afterward the carriage which Lefroy occupied was found to contain evidences of a desperate struggle. Two bullets were imbedded in it, and it was saturated with blood. With these discoveries the tardy suspicions of the police officers were excited, and they went to Lefroy's house only to discover that the bird had flown, leaving no trace of his exit or scent of his whereabouts. The police officers then remembered that Lefroy bore on his person marks of having been engaged in a severe fight; that his throat was scratched and wounded, and that there were marks of a pistol wound in his head. It has been ascertained, however, that he had in his possession a gold watch numbered 16,261, made by Griffiths, the celebrated watchmaker of London, and that this watch was the property of Mr. Gold. A collar belonging to Mr. Gold has since been found in the tunnel, but the watch and £40 which he was known to have in his pocket are missing. No trace has been discovered of the third man, who is supposed to be a friend and countryman of Lefroy. A notice has been issued stating that Lefroy will be accused of the murder of Mr. Gold. He is a newspaper reporter, aged 22, and his real name is Henry Mapleton. Some articles, such as Hanoverian tokens, were found on the person of Lefroy, and also beside the murdered man, which plainly connect Lefroy with the tragedy. It is supposed that the murderers will endeavor to escape to France or to the United States. A description of Lefroy has been telegraphed to all the outgoing ports.

This tragedy recalls the murder of Mr. Briggs by a German named Muller under almost similar circumstances. Mr. Briggs was travelling by rail to London, and chanced to be the only occupant of the carriage, except Muller, who killed him, robbed him, took the hat and some of the clothing of his victim, made his way to Liverpool and thence to the United States, where he was arrested, while wearing the hat of the murdered man, brought back to England, tried, and hanged. English railway carriages are peculiarly fitted for the commission of such crimes. They are divided into compartments to accommodate four persons, and are locked by the guard on the inside when the train starts. The only means of communication with the guard in case of illness, accident, or assault, is by breaking a thin piece of glass set in the side of the carriage, and pulling an alarm bell, which gives a signal to the engine driver that something is wrong. On the London and Brighton road, immediately after the trains leave Brighton they pass through several long and perfectly dark tunnels, cut through the high chalk hills, and it was while going through one of these places that Mr. Gold was murdered, and his body thrown out of the car window.

THE PERIL OF A LADY AND CHILD.

A Runaway at Fort Hamilton—A Brave Coachman Badly Injured.

The family of George W. Perkins, President of the Mercantile National Bank, removed to Fort Hamilton a few days ago. Yesterday morning his wife and young child were out riding in a Victoria carriage, driven by their coachman, William Thompson. They had occasion to cross the old Coney Island Railroad track. A train was standing on the track, and Thompson pulled up his horses. A bystander told him the train would not start for five minutes, and he drove on. As the horses were crossing the track the sound of escaping steam from the dummy engine frightened them, and they wheeled suddenly and dashed off at right angles to their course. The carriage was whirled against a house, and one of the fore wheels was wrenched off. The body of the carriage hung low between the fore and hind wheels, and when the carriage broke loose Mrs. Perkins was able to maintain her position in it, and to retain her hold of the child. The driver's seat was so high that the careening of the carriage hurled him off upon the ground. When the wheel was torn off the wrench to the fore axle broke the pole between the horses. As they plunged forward the remaining fore wheel was thrown forward by the dragging of the broken end of the axle, causing the carriage to twist constantly to one side as it bolted over the earth.

Thompson did not let go his grip on the reins, and was dragged along by them beside the wrecked carriage. An unknown man ran at the top of his speed behind the carriage shouting to Mrs. Perkins, "Stay in the carriage. Don't jump out."

Notwithstanding the careening and the terrible jolting caused by the broken axle she had courage and strength enough to stay in the carriage.

After running about 250 yards the frenzied team ran into a tree, one horse on each side of it. The harnesses held, and before they could extricate themselves they were caught by the bits and held. When Thompson was picked up his fingers had to be pried open to release the reins. He was dazed, and was covered with blood. It is said his injuries, internal and external, may prove fatal. Several times he was heard to mutter, "Save the child."

Neither Mrs. Perkins nor the child received any bodily injury, but the peril she went through and the sight of the bleeding coachman proved to be a severe shock to her nerves. She was confined to her bed yesterday afternoon. Mr. Perkins was at the bank at the time of the accident, but he hastened down to Fort Hamilton on receipt of the news.

Sam Lee's Desperate Assailant.

On Monday evening Policeman Wheeler saw John Keenan, 20 years old, knock down Sam Lee, proprietor of a laundry in West Twenty-seventh street, at the corner of Hudson and Gansevoort streets. Sam Lee called out that he had been robbed, and Keenan fled. The policeman caught Keenan at Fourteenth street and Eighth avenue. Keenan broke away from his captor, and, stepping back, placed his hand in his hip pocket as though he were a weapon. Wheeler's pistol was out in an instant. He caught Keenan by the collar, and, putting the pistol to his head, said:

"Stop, or I'll shoot you dead."

Keenan, although he felt the cold steel against his temple, said coolly:

"Shoot and be ——."

Another policeman arrived at this moment, and Keenan was marched to the Charles street station. In the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday Justice Morgan held him in $2,000 bail on a charge of highway robbery preferred by the Chinaman.

Overworked Steamship Firemen.

Frank Powers, President of the Steamship Firemen's Protective Union, said yesterday that he was going to invite the attention of the United States Government to the charge made by the union. The green hands employed as firemen on American coastwise steamers are dying from overwork and exhaustion. Being used to lighter work on the German steamers, from which many of them have deserted to get the higher wages offered to non-union men by the coastwise lines, they sink, Mr. Powers says, without a knowledge of the arduous labors required of them. In addition to the two reported suicides from the Niagara at Havana, on her last trip, two firemen, he said, had jumped overboard from the Chalmette of the Morgan line on her last trip to this port, and the steamer Western Texas of the Mallory line, which arrived yesterday, reported the death of one fireman from exhaustion on her passage out. In some instances, Mr. Powers said, the engineers had been obliged to go down to the fire rooms and shovel coal, the green hands being unable to do the work themselves.

Accused of Child Murder.

Coroner Keller, in Brooklyn, yesterday caused the arrest of Rosina Santelina, an Italian woman of 65 Adams street, on a charge of causing the death of her new-born infant on the night of June 24. The woman was too ill to be locked up, and she was sent to the City Hospital in charge of a policeman. The child's body was found in the possession of Vincenzo Conterno and Michael Radito early last Monday morning as they were about to cross the Gowanus Canal in a Gowanus ferry. It was evidently their intention to sink the body in the East River, as they had it tied up in a sack and weighted with flatirons. The men claimed that the body was left upon their stoop, and that, fearing it would cause them trouble, they concluded to adopt this plan of getting rid of it. They were held by Justice Walsh for violating the Health law. Yesterday they were locked up on a charge of complicity in the alleged murder.

$3,500 for a Grain Trimmer's Fall.

In November, 1878, John Garrity was injured by the fall of a pile of lumber in the between decks of the bark Kate Cann, at the Atlantic Docks, Brooklyn, while he was trimming a cargo of grain. He employed John J. Allen and Patrick Ready to libel the vessel, claiming $10,000 damages. Mr. Garrity's injuries are now known to be permanent. The case was tried before Judge Benedict in February, 1880, and in the fall of that year a decree was granted in favor of the libellant for $3,325.30. The owners of the vessel appealed, and yesterday Judge Blatchford of the United States Circuit Court affirmed the decree of Judge Benedict, with interest and costs, which will amount to about $5,000. The case is the first in which the court has held that a vessel is liable for injury to a person with whom it has no privity of contract.

Soft-Soaping her Employer.

Four days ago Alfonso Rummell of 37 West Tenth street employed Elizabeth Ormes as a servant. Her conduct was bad, and he told her yesterday that he no longer required her services. Thereupon she emptied a pan of soft soap over him. She was committed to the workhouse for two months.

A SUBSTITUTED CHILD.

A Waif Placed in the Arms of a Wealthy Brewer's Wife at her Infant.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—A surprising revelation has been made here in connection with the litigation over the estate of Joseph Uhrig, a wealthy brewer who died in 1875, leaving a fortune worth over half a million dollars, which included Uhrig's Cave, a famous resort for beer drinkers, of which class St. Louis in its German population has many thousands. Joseph Uhrig left his property to his widow and two putative children, August Uhrig and Mrs. Josephine Lademan. The former ran through most of his property and died in 1879. His widow, Josephine Uhrig, set up a claim last week to the whole of the estate, averring that she was the sole heir. In the hearing of this application it was developed that August Uhrig was not the wealthy brewer's son, but that when he was a day and a half old he was substituted for a child just born to Mrs. Joseph Uhrig, and that the deception was practised in order to bring back to reason the brewer's wife, who had become delirious, and was unconscious of the death of her child at its birth. While Mrs. Uhrig was still delirious, although conscious enough to miss her child, Joseph Uhrig, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Mary Ann Klausmann, and the Rev. Father Fisher, went to St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, where they found a boy child a day and a half old, just the age of the one that died. On the representation of Father Fisher this child was surrendered to Mr. Uhrig, on his promise to adopt it and treat it in every respect as his own. No inquiries were made as to the parents of the child, and Mrs. Uhrig's name was not given at the asylum, full confidence being felt by all parties in Father Fisher's judgment and representations. No deed of adoption was ever made, but the child was taken to Mr. Uhrig's house and passed off as the one that had died. Many years later Mrs. Uhrig was made acquainted with these facts, and she declined to hear any particulars, and would never talk about it. The child grew up as the son of Joseph Uhrig, and he was so characterized in the will of Mr. Uhrig.

Mrs. Josephine Uhrig admits that she knew that her husband was not really Mr. Uhrig's son, for, being his cousin, she held out against marrying him until she was told that he was not a blood relative. She always believed, however, that August was legally an adopted child.

CLERK, COURT OFFICER, AND LAWYER.

Mr. Heimberger Tells Why he Made a Little Scene at Essex Market.

While an examination was going on yesterday in Justice Smith's private room at Essex Market Police Court in the case of Rose Tuska against Michael Miller, Assistant Clerk Victor Heimberger saw Court Officer Simmons, who had arrested Miller, standing at the door, and ordered him out.

"It's my prisoner," responded Simmons, "and I have a right here."

Clerk Heimberger stepped into the court room, called Sergeant Long, and ordered him to remove Simmons.

Mr. Heimberger is the clerk against whom were preferred charges of misconduct which, on complaint of the Board of Police Justices, were quashed on Monday night were unfounded. He said he had ordered Simmons away because Simmons had been urging prisoners to employ certain lawyers. "Now, one case," said Mr. Heimberger, "where he advised a complainant who was a friend of mine, to employ Lawyer Fraser. I made a complaint against him. Today this man Miller was arrested by officer Simmons, and he tells me that Simmons advised him to engage Lawyer Osborne, who, Simmons said, would get him out. He did so, and before the case was called had paid a $10 fee. It is time this practice was broken up."

Court Officer Simmons denied having recommended a lawyer to Miller. He said he had had no hand in the complaint made against Mr. Heimberger, and did not understand why he had been ordered out of the room.

A Steamer Explodes her Boilers.

CINCINNATI, June 28.—The steamer Phaeton, while racing with the steamer Handy this afternoon at 1 o'clock, exploded her boilers, and the boat was torn to pieces. The chimneys of the Handy were blown off. The accident occurred four miles up the river from here. Both boats were filled with passengers. The following are the names of the killed: Cash Naylor, engineer, Manchester, Ohio; Samuel Reynolds, porter, Maysville; Joseph Carr, deck hand (colored), Maysville; and Joseph Miller, deck sweeper. A passenger, whose name is unknown, is also supposed to have been lost. Among the injured are D. B. Smith of Cincinnati, Bascom Cooper of Manchester, Mr. McArthur of Chicago, Tim Sovers, fireman, fatally, and John Cobb of Marietta. Most of those injured were badly scalded. The Phaeton was a small side-wheel steamer, valued at $5,000, in local trade between Vanceburg and Manchester.

Incidents in Texas.

GALVESTON, June 28.—In a difficulty about a woman in Hempstead, Texas, between "Doc" Mitchell and ——Walker, two freedmen on Quall's plantation, Saturday night, Walker was fatally stabbed, the woman had her throat cut, but will recover, and Mitchell escaped. Sheriff Mitchell has lodged in jail in Brenham, Texas, "Pete" McDonald, D. McDonald, and "Nick" McDonald, who murdered Mr. Martin at Belknap, and robbed his store. Goods they had with them were recognized as stolen goods, and a reward for cases stolen in Grayson County. It is feared that an attempt will be made to lynch the prisoners.

JACKSON, Texas, June 27.—Dr. H. J. Averger was completely disemboweled by a negro with a razor. He cannot recover. He was a member of the State Legislature.

Advance in Lumber.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The Lumber Dealers' Exchange yesterday advanced prices all along the line from 50 cents to $1 per thousand, the latter advance being on thick clears and selects; ten and twelve inch stock boards, box boards, nearly all kinds of flooring, rather heavy sizes of siding, and flooring strips. The advance of 50 cents is on siding, beaded ceiling and common, and cull boards. Fencing battens advanced 4 cents and shingles 25 cents.
