YOUNG CORCORAN'S WITNESSES.

The Attempt to Prove that he had no Hand in the Killing of Lee Teep.

The smooth-shaven, industrious young man who sits beside the prosecutor in the trial, in the General Sessions, of John Corcoran, charged with the killing of Lee Teep, is William D. Guthrie, who represents a law firm that acts as counsel of the Chinese Government in the United States. The Chinese interpreter, who sits on the other side of Mr. Beecher, is said to have been retained by the same firm. Mr. Beecher derives most of his information in the case from Mr. Guthrie, who has before him voluminous memoranda believed to have been supplied by private detectives. Mr. Beecher closed the case for the prosecution yesterday, just after Recorder Smyth ascended the bench.

Ex-Assemblyman Peter Mitchell opened the case for the defence. The defence would be, he said, a double one—proof of a mistake as to Corcoran's identity, and of an alibi.

Joseph Scott of 210 Mulberry street testified that he and Corcoran went to Newark early on the morning of Sunday, April 24. They returned to this city at about 8½ P. M. He parted with Corcoran at Spring and Marion streets. He went to a barber's, and, returning to Spring and Marion streets about an hour afterward, he met Corcoran and several other young men. After some conversation, they parted for the night. Scott acknowledged that he had spent a year in the House of Refuge for pocket picking.

Robert Martin testified that Corcoran and Scott visited him, in Newark, on the 24th of April.

William E. Small, a shoemaker, in the employ of Hannan & Reddish, testified that he and Corcoran sat on the stoop of A. Bonne in Spring street, near Marion, on the evening of the 23d of April. Two young women desired to enter the house, and Corcoran stood up to allow them to pass. Mr. Small, in a loose way, passed Corcoran out on the sidewalk. Corcoran fell against one of three Chinamen who were passing the stoop. The Chinamen thrust their right hands into their trousers' pockets, as though they intended to draw weapons. Corcoran, who had heard of the killing of Lee Teep, a few nights before, fancied that the Chinamen intended to avenge his death, and ran to an alleyway in Crosby street, where Policeman Hart arrested him.

Mr. Guthrie slipped a page of memoranda into Mr. Beecher's hand, and Mr. Beecher asked:

"At recess, yesterday, did you not go with a number of the young men of your neighborhood, including one 'Paddy' Gleason, to a neighboring saloon?"

"I went to the saloon, but I didn't go in," was Small's reply.

"Skipping that bit of hairsplitting," Mr. Beecher went on, "did you not say to Gleason: 'Officer Hart is a ——.' ——. He swore hard against Corcoran. He has come back on the gang, but I'll make a liar of him when I go on the stand?" Small looked down, contusedly, and then he said, hesitatingly:

"I don't remember saying anything of the kind."

"Will you swear that you did not?"

"I can't remember."

"Now, sir, is it not a fact," Mr. Beecher continued energetically, "that Gleason said to you: 'You want to stick to one thing, and the gang will get Johnny out?'"

Again Small hesitated and then answered: "I don't remember anything except that Gleason told me to stuck to one thing."

Jacob Gruger testified that he met Corcoran at Elm and Spring streets at 8:30 on the evening of the 24th of April. He was with Corcoran until 10:30. They spent most of the time walking with Corcoran's sister and cousin. Corcoran had no differ[illegible] with any Chinaman either at about 9:15 or any other time during that period.

The trial was adjourned.

ALLEGED FORGED RECEIPTS.

The Suit of Gen. W. T. Sherman's Aunt Against a Retired Methodist Preacher.

The Rev. Daniel H. Stone, a retired Methodist preacher, and now a lawyer in this city, was sued, with his wife Ruth, in the Kings County Supreme Court, by Britannia Sherman, who alleges that she employed Mr. Stone in January, 1879, as a lawyer to foreclose a mortgage for $1,300 made by Edward Tyler, and instructed him to bid in the house for her in her name if it seemed likely to be sold for a less sum than the amount due. She alleges that instead of doing as instructed, Mr. Stone bid in the house in his own name, and took a deed to himself as the sole purchaser. On Aug. 28, 1879, he mortgaged the land and premises to Margaret Hendrickson of Jamaica for $1,500.

Mr. Stone, who appeared a number of times in the court, is about 84 years old. He was dressed in Broadcloth, and wore a white neckerchief. His defence was that he was not at the sale of the property, but that the property was bid in by the plaintiff's attorney of record in his name and without his knowledge; that Lemuel Baldwin the plaintiff's agent, was present, and that Mr. Baldwin subsequently agreed that he (Mr. Stone) should take the deed in his name, repair the house, pay the taxes, and hold the property until some future time when it could be sold to better advantage for the plaintiff. Mr. Stone also alleged that he had paid to Lemuel Baldwin the amount for which the property was bid in, in all $1,850, and he produced three receipts purporting to be from Mr. Baldwin. One was for $1,000, another for $450, and the third for the remainder which was due.

Mr. Baldwin claimed that these receipts were forgeries. Justice Gilbert called for these exhibits, and held them in his possession until yesterday, when he turned them over in a sealed envelope to the Clerk with the endorsement:

"The Clerk will keep this package, which contains exhibits in this case, sealed, until the Court orders it to be unsealed."

In respect to Mrs. Sherman's complaint he entered the following:

"Judgment declaring defendant Stone a trustee ex maleficio of the premises, and ordering him and his wife to convey same to plaintiff free and clear of the mortgage made by him on payment of his advances, or to pay the plaintiff the amount due on such mortgage and interest, less such advances."

Mrs. Sherman, who resides in Brookfield, Conn., is the aunt of Gen. W. T. Sherman.

Street Commissioner Coleman's Warning to the Men in his Bureau.

Commissioner Coleman of the Street Cleaning Department has issued the following order, with directions to foremen to read it to the street sweepers and cart drivers, and to inspectors to post it in the dumps:

DEPARTMENT OF STREET CLEANING, 51 CHAMBERS STREET.

It having been alleged that some of the foremen have been receiving pay from the men for the purpose of keeping them on the work, and, further, that some of the inspectors on the dump have been receiving pay from private parties for the purpose of allowing them to use the dumps of this department to deposit cellar dirt and other material that did not legally come under the care of this department, and that some of the ash-cart men have been receiving pay from private individuals for doing the work that the city was paying them for doing, let it be understood that any employee of this department who is found guilty of either of the above offences will be summarily removed whenever it be established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that such practices exist.

J. S. COLEMAN, Commissioner of Street Cleaning.

Celebrating with Prayer, Speeches, and Song.

The North Dutch Church, in Fulton street, yesterday signalized the twenty-fourth anniversary of its mission work by a noonday prayer meeting somewhat more protracted than usual. The meeting was well attended. It was led by Lay-Missionary J. C. Lamphier, who was largely instrumental in establishing the noon prayer meetings at the beginning of the mission, nearly a quarter of a century ago. The Rev. Andrew J. Park occupied the pulpit, and several gentlemen spoke of the good work the mission had done.
