THE GREAT STALLION TROT FOR $10,000

Seven Heats Contested—A Great Amount of Money Won and Lost.

From the Chicago Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 4.—The great $10,000 stallion race has been trotted and won, the victor turning out to be, after one of the most remarkable contests on record, the black stallion France's Alexander, owned by Mr. W. C. France of St. Louis, and driven by Gus Wilson. Ever since the entries closed two months ago the actions of the various horses named to start have been watched with great interest. Before the trotting season commenced Monroe Chief's chances were thought to be the best of any of those engaged, but when Robert McGregor and Alexander began trotting so brilliantly, the one in the East and the other in the West, there was a general feeling that the race lay between them. As Santa Claus, the California wonder, had not started in a race since coming east of the Rocky Mountains, although entered in several, and, although he was closely watched by keen eyes, no one had seen him go even half a mile at full speed, consequently all were equally in the dark as to his merits. As the Eastern and Michigan circuits drew to a close it became evident that McGregor and Alexander were the best stallions that had appeared in public, and when the sports began arriving here a few days ago the impression was general that one of them would certainly win. The making of slates was then begun, and it is known that at least two were formed this morning. However, all calculations were set at naught by a heavy shower of rain which fell about 8 o'clock, and rendered the track a mass of sticky mud, which was so deep that at one time there were serious thoughts of postponing the race; but the sun finally came out, and by dint of much harrowing, the track was in fair condition by 3 o'clock, though fully three seconds slow. In view of these facts, and the further fact that the horse that finally won fought for and was first or second in every heat, the time made is simply remarkable. As before stated, the rain broke all the slates, every driver thinking he could win, and backing his own horse. Even if the race had not been such a desperate one, the pool selling before the first heat showed that everything was on the square. At the start Santa Claus was favorite, and Hickok, his driver, expressed the utmost surprise to the Tribune man that such should be the case, but the fact is that Orrin, though his horse could not win, backed him, and came near taking away the $5,000 first money.

Crawford was backing his horse freely, and the Monroe Chief party put not a few dollars on that horse. Whatever else their differences may have been, they were all agreed on one thing, that Alexander was certain to be beaten, and must be at all hazards, no matter who took the race. This scheme looked well on paper, but the only horse that was left out of all the combinations took the cake, and the backers of the other animals have nothing but bitter memories and unpaid hotel bills to-night. The faith felt in the ultimate victory of McGregor is shown by the fact that from the first heat to the last he was always favorite, although in the last three he was decidedly the poorest horse of the party. Over $20,000 were bet in this city alone on the race, but the St. Louis crowd, who were here in force, stuck manfully by Alexander, and are opulent to-night in consequence.

Mr. France, the owner of Alexander, said to-night that the horse did not stop at the finish of the second and third heats for want of stamina, but because the noise of the cheering startled him. "I won a hard race," said Mr. France, "because my horse was in condition, and I did not divide the purse or one cent of it with anybody."

The judging was of the very poorest description, and the McGregor party claim that in the fourth heat Alexander twice fouled McGregor on the homestretch and that Wilson went into the stand and apologized, saying that it was not intentional. Had this be it been given to McGregor the race would have been over, and much bad feeling has been excited by the decision giving it to Alexander.

The crowd in attendance fell short of expectations, numbering only about 7,000.

When the horses came out they were greeted by cheers. Wedgewood drew the pole, McGregor second place, Santa Claus third, Hannis fourth, Bonesetter fifth, Monroe Chief sixth, and Alexander the outside.

After seven ineffectual scorings, the word was given to a wretched start. Santa Claus going to a break just before the wire was reached, the starting judge ringing the bell and crying, "Go!" at the same time, which caused some confusion among the drivers. Gus Wilson took advantage of the situation, and sent Alexander along very fast, beating Bonesetter in a brush around the turn for the pole. By this time the rest were badly strung out, and, as Alexander passed the quarterpole, in 34½ seconds, Bonesetter was two lengths behind him, McGregor third, three lengths away, Hannis fourth, Monroe Chief fifth, Wedgewood sixth, and Santa Claus last. By this time the drivers of all but McGregor, Bonesetter, and Santa Claus, saw that they were beaten, and laid up. Alexander went to the half-mile pole easily in 1:09¼, the position of the others being unchanged, but on the lower turn McGregor passed Bonesetter and made a play for Alexander. He came very fast, and overhauled the black horse half way down the homestretch, but just inside the distance was driven to a break, and never caught until the wire was passed; Alexander winning handily in 2:19. Bonesetter a good third, and the others as per summary.

The speed shown by McGregor at the close of the heat caused a change in the betting. He being made favorite against the field at $50 to $80. When the horses were sold out McGregor brought $40, Alexander $30, and the field $30. In another pool McGregor brought $30, Santa Claus $23, and the field $30, the boys evidently being confident of defeating the St. Louis horse. A little better start, but not a good one by any means, was effected in the second heat. Alexander led around the first turn, McGregor making no effort to lead him during the first part of the mile, relying on superior speed at the finish to win the heat. Alexander led McGregor by an open length at the quarterpole, Hannis being a good third, Bonesetter fourth, Santa Claus, who acted tired, fifth, Monroe Chief sixth, and Wedgewood last. Santa Claus was evidently being driven for the heat, but did not seem to have much speed, the others outfooting him easily enough, while Splan was lying back with Wedgewood for a desperate struggle at the end of the race. At the half-mile pole the positions of the first three horses were unchanged, but on the lower turn Crawford and Turner began moving up on Alexander, and when fairly into the homestretch were on his wheel. Hannis seemed to have all the speed necessary for Turner to place him just where he chose. They came head and head from the distance stand, an idiotic patrol judge who had joined them at the head of the stretch, galloping right alongside of McGregor. When within fifty feet of the wire Alexander began to quit, and although Wilson applied the whip vigorously he did not respond, and McGregor beat him out a neck in 2:19. Hannis a close third, Santa Claus fourth, Bonesetter fifth, Monroe Chief sixth, and Wedgewood last. The betting was now $50 for McGregor and $30 for the field.

The start was the best of the race, all the horses being on even terms, with Bonesetter trotting at the pole. Alexander captured the pole at the first turn, and led McGregor a length at the quarter, with Hannis, Monroe Chief, and Wedgewood bunched behind him; Santa Claus, who broke at the first turn, bringing up the rear. From the half to the three-quarter pole Hannis was sent for all he was worth, and succeeded in leading McGregor half a length, but could never catch Alexander. He broke on the lower turn, McGregor now taking up the fight with Alexander. Gus Wilson sent the black horse pretty well to the middle of the track as he swung into the homestretch, but Crawford came along on the outside of him and won the heat precisely as he had the previous one by Alexander quitting when within fifty feet of the wire. The time was 2:18¾, and the positions of the other horses as given in the summary.

The betting was now $50 to $11 on McGregor against the field, but the fourth heat put a decided damper on the spirits of those who had backed Crawford's horse, and for the first time in the race Santa Claus came to the wire on even terms with the rest, and, although on the extreme outside, had trotted into second position before the turn was reached. McGregor having surrendered the pole to Alexander by reason of a bad start. He was a close third, however, being right with Santa Claus when the quarterpole was reached. Down the backstretch the California stallion was within half a length of Alexander, and going around the lower turn both went up to the black, but McGregor broke and fell back a length. Santa Claus and Alexander came along together, the black trotting more gamely than in any previous heat. McGregor trotted very fast on recovering from his break, and was in the thick of the fight again at the distance stand. At this point Santa Claus broke and when McGregor had Alexander beaten he also went into the fair, but ran under the wire a neck ahead of Alexander in 2:19¾. After a long consultation the judges awarded the heat to Alexander, the decision being received with tremendous applause by the crowd. Before the start for the fifth heat the pools sold $20 to $8 on McGregor over the field, the knowing ones not thinking it possible for McGregor to lose. The start was a very good one, Santa Claus having a trifle the best of it but before the turn was reached McGregor shot out and took the lead, closely followed by Alexander and Santa Claus. Hickok was sending the latter for all there was in him, and Crawford was doing the same with McGregor. On entering the backstretch Alexander made a break and took a head of a length from McGregor. All the rest except Wedgewood, who made a bad break at the quarter, came well up, and so close together that it was impossible to tell which of them had the best of it. At the lower turn they were scattered all around, Alexander, Bonesetter, and Wedgewood excepted. The race down the homestretch between Alexander, Santa Claus, and McGregor was an intensely exciting one, every horse coming home under the wire. Inside the distance the wheels on the sulkies of McGregor and Santa Claus became entangled, but no harm resulted, the two going under the wire head and head, Santa Claus being a nose in front of McGregor, who beat Alexander a neck only for second place. Time, 2:21. When inside the distance of the last heat a shaft of Bonesetter's sulky broke, upsetting McCarty out. The horse was at once brought to a stand, and beyond this injury to the sulky no harm was done. For the sixth heat only McGregor, Santa Claus, and Alexander started, the rest being ruled out for not winning a heat in five. Santa Claus and Alexander went away very fast, but Alexander broke at the first turn, swerving so much that Hickok was forced to pull Santa Claus back considerably. Once clear of McGregor he set sails after Alexander, and after a long chase got to his wheel at the three-quarter pole. Once safely around the lower turn Hickok began sending Santa Claus along, and was on even terms with the black before half the homestretch had been traversed. Both came fast, but inside the distance Alexander broke twice, and lost the heat by half a length in 2:23. McGregor a not over-good third. It was now considered a foregone conclusion that Santa Claus would win the seventh and deciding heat, the horses being called up a little before 8 o'clock. Both McGregor and Alexander trotted around Santa Claus on the first turn, and led him three lengths at the quarterpole. Going down the backstretch he closed the gap, and at the lower turn had McGregor beaten; but, notwithstanding all Hickok's efforts, he could not overtake Alexander, who came on steady and true, and ended the hottest race trotted in many a year by winning the heat in 2:25¾.
