STRIFE AMONG BRETHREN.

WAR BETWEEN PASTOR AND SESSION OF A NEW ROCHELLE CHURCH.

The Presbytery Invoked to Settle the Trouble, the Nature of which is Rather Vague —Pastor Hoes Cuts the Knot by Resigning.

Not long after the Rev. R. R. Hoes went from New Jersey to take charge of the Presbyterian church in New Rochelle, two years ago, there were evidences of dissensions in the congregation, which have steadily increased since. For six months past the feeling has been bitter, and the congregation has been divided into unequal factions. No specific charges against the pastor have been made, but he has been charged by one faction with selfish designs and a persistence in seeking to have his own way, which has aroused all the antagonism of the other side, who wanted their own way too in certain matters of church administration and policy. The matter was taken before the Westchester Presbytery months ago, and a committee was appointed to find out what was the trouble.

Mr. Hoes seemed to be supported by a large majority of his congregation and a minority of his session. The Session numbered five elders, and it was said by Mr. Hoes and his followers that with so small a number it was difficult to get a quorum at the meetings. The Session accordingly was petitioned by the congregation to choose two or more additional members. This proposition Mr. Hoes is said to have made in order to get a Session friendly to himself. The five elders composing the Session were W. L. Cowdrey, Charles G. Miller, Simon Lester, E. I. Roosevelt, and Benjamin Renaud. Mr. Cowdrey was the recognized leader of the opposition to the pastor, and his followers were Messrs. Miller and Lester. Messrs. Roosevelt and Renaud, supported Mr. Hoes.

With a certain class Mr. Hoes made himself very unpopular by appearing before the Westchester County Grand Jury against some liquor dealers. It is said also that he has been shadowed by detectives when he has come to New York, but no grounds for specific charges against him have been found.

Meanwhile, with the continuance of this ill feeling, his own supporters have remained devoted. In May last they appealed to the Session of the church for an increase of the number of elders. The Session, by a vote of 3 to 2, decided that it didn't want to be enlarged, especially while the general sentiment of the congregation was unfriendly to the Session. The petition of the church was accordingly denied, and the supporters of the Rev. Mr. Hoes then appealed directly to the Westchester Presbytery to have the Session increased. The matter was discussed, and the Presbytery finally determined that the Session might do as it thought best about increasing its numbers. At a canvass of the church at that time the factions stood 109 to 36 in support of the pastor, while the Session, which really held all the power, was 3 to 2 the other way.

Two weeks ago a special meeting of the Presbytery was held in New Rochelle, and a committee was appointed to intimate to the Rev. Mr. Hoes that it was the nearly unanimous opinion of the Presbytery that his resignation would conduce to the peace and harmony of the church. The Presbytery also determined not to sustain the appeal from the decision of the Session in regard to increasing its numbers. The Presbytery had thus supported the divided Session as against the wishes of the majority of the congregation, and so the Rev. Mr. Hoes decided to back out of the contention and resign. But at a public meeting held last week resolutions were adopted sustaining the pastor in his position, and requesting him to withhold his proposed letter of resignation. The Presbytery was also asked to meet again to reconsider its action of a fortnight ago. And it was further intimated that the resignation of Messrs. Cowdrey and Miller, the leaders of the Session, was the only thing which would bring about peace.

In compliance with the request the Presbytery met in the house of the Rev. Mr. Hoes's church in New Rochelle yesterday. A number of the friends of Mr. Hoes were present as interested spectators. Nearly the whole morning session was spent in a discussion over the minutes of the meeting two weeks ago. The Rev. Mr. Phraner of Sing Sing proposed to make no record at all of the resolution of the last meeting asking for the pastor's resignation. He said he understood that Mr. Hoes was now disposed to resign, but he was anxious to do so of his own accord and free will. There was a long debate upon the question whether minutes were minutes until they had been approved formally, and, if not, whether they could not be changed as much as was desired before their adoption. Dr. Phraner's motion was adopted with a single dissent, and the minutes as thus amended were adopted. A minute in which the Presbytery signified its disapproval of some of the actions of the Session was stricken out.

Mr. Hoes seized the first opportunity to speak. He is a man of about 30, and young looking. He took a paper from his pocket, and read a short speech, saying that under the circumstances he could not trust himself to speak without his notes. He said that within twenty-four hours after their last action he communicated to the Session his purpose to resign, but he felt stung by the manner of the Session in taking advantage of his absence to act against him. Now that the reference to the matter in the minutes had been dropped, he still felt it his duty to resign. He said he thought that the Session, if it had heard his side of the difference, would agree with him that he had done what he had believed to be right to maintain the constitutional rights of his people, as long as seemed wise or profitable. While he knew the majority of the people were opposed to his resignation, he still thought that it was best for him to go. He then proposed that his pastorate end with his annual vacation, to begin in four weeks, and closed his address with expressions of good will and affectionate regard for his church and people. His voice broke, and his eyes filled with tears as he read, and when he sat down his sympathetic friends in the rear of the church buried their faces in their handkerchiefs and wept, some of them audibly.

The Rev. Dr. Phraner said that part of the speech relating to the time of ending the relations was not satisfactory. In the present state of disquiet in the church he did not think Mr. Hoes ought to preach for four Sundays more, and moved the appointment of a committee of conference to determine with the pastor and the Session when the resignation should take effect. He proposed that the resignation take effect at once, the salary to continue until fall.

Mr. Hoes said he had no favors to ask of the Presbytery, and that his self-respect would not allow him to receive any sort of recompense for services not rendered. There was an attempt at applause among Mr. Hoes's friends at this.

At the noon recess the Committee on Conference met. As they entered the church to report, an elder started the hymn:

Bless'd be the tie that binds.

The committee then reported that they would recommend that the pastorate of the Rev. R. R. Hoes terminate on the second Sunday of September, being communion Sunday, and that the services meantime be under the control of the Session, who may be at liberty to invite any member of the Presbytery to conduct the services, except on the communion Sunday, when the pastor shall be allowed to preach his farewell sermon. They also recommended that the Trustees continue the salary until Nov. 1.

Mr. Hoes himself said he cordially accepted and approved the report, and it was adopted.

During the morning session a paper had been handed in and not read. In the afternoon a committee to whom it had been referred reported that it was a petition signed by about 100 members of a congregation of 140. After expressing their love for their pastor and church, the petitioners set forth that the action of the Presbytery when it last met, although intended to produce harmony and peace, was nevertheless a mistake, because of a partial statement of the case by the Session, and asked for a further hearing, with a view to adopting some measures to produce harmony and remove the stigma cast on the pastor.

The petition was followed by a request that a committee of the petitioners be allowed the privilege of the floor to state their case. This was opposed sharply.

Brother Sawyer said that if the committee was heard members would reply, and say things they'd be sorry for.

Mr. Dickson of Yonkers, in behalf of the petitioners, said the breach was widening, and a majority of the congregation was rallying around the pastor, showing the mistake of the Presbytery. The people were anxious to remain in the Presbyterian church, and it remained with the Presbytery to save this church. The petition was finally sent to a committee to lie for two months, but after the committee had been appointed to receive the petitioners, they withdrew their paper, and while Mr. Cowdrey, the leader of the anti-Hoes faction was speaking the petitioners left the church.

There is serious talk now that the congregation will abandon the Session and the church building and form a Congregational society, with Mr. Hoes as pastor.

The Killing of Billy the Kid.

CHICAGO, July 19.—A despatch from Las Vegas to the Times says that the coroner's jury on the body of "Billy the Kid" returned a verdict of justifiable homicide, coupled with a statement that Pat Garrett deserved the thanks of the whole community for ridding the country of the desperado. The Kid was a beardless youth of 21 years, and born in New York. His boast was that he had killed a man for every year of his age, which is probably true. Sheriff Garrett receives the reward of $500 from the Territory, and $200 will be raised for him by the relieving people.

Death of an Old Scout.

KANSAS CITY, July 19.—James Bridger, an old scout and companion of Fremont, after whom Fort Bridger was named, and the first white man to follow the trails across the plains, is dead, aged 76.

HOPES OF THE AMERICAN HEDGESES.

A $250,000,000 English Estate on which they Have Set their Longing Eyes.

Various branches of the Hedges family in the United States are much exercised by a story that they are to get a big slice of an English estate of $250,000,000 recently decreed by the Court of Chancery to the American heirs of Sir Charles Hedges. The story is that the proberty was left one hundred years ago to the heirs of Sir Charles's brother Joseph, who had emigrated to America, with the restriction that the division should not be made for 100 years. Meantime the English Hedgeses held possession and use of the property. The time for the division having arrived, it is claimed that the American heirs of Joseph Hedges are to be put in possession of their inheritance when they can prove their descent. A number of the Hedgeses who claim to be heirs recently had a meeting at Paris, Ky. Another man who claims to be an heir is Joseph Apple of Chicago, formerly a sewing machine agent in Washington.

The veteran claim agent John Pitts Jayne of Murray street was found yesterday by a SUN reporter engaged in investigating the case. Mr. Jayne said that he had found that Sir Charles, who was Secretary of State to King William III. and Queen Anne, died in 1719, after having twice married. He had five sons and one daughter, Anne. The daughter married Sir Edward Smith. Sir Charles Hedges's second wife, Eleanor, died in February, 1833. His son by her, John Hedges, Esq., was Secretary to the Prince of Wales. His son by her, William Hedges, died in May, 1734. He was one of the Commission of the Peace for Kent. Little is known about Joseph Hedges, the American settler. There are several branches of the Hedgeses in various parts of the United States. Some of them settled in Yates County, New York, some at Madison, N. J., in 1749, and a descendant, in 1776, is recorded as marrying Polly Wilkins of Madison. There is a long account of the Hedgeses in Littell's "Passaic Valley Genealogy." Still another family of Hedgeses settled in Easthampton, L. I., in 1649. The Christian name of the first American settler is somewhat in doubt, and Mr. Jayne has not yet been able to determine which of the American families is nearest to the Joseph Hedges who was Sir Charles Hedges's brother.

A Pathetic Scene in a Brooklyn Tenement—A Babe Dying in its Brother's Arms.

Early yesterday morning, on the second floor of the tenement at 78 John street, Brooklyn, a policeman found Bernard McClancy and his wife Ann, both on the floor helplessly drunk, and six ragged children scattered about the room. The oldest child was twelve years of age, and the youngest was clasped in its father's arms, and seemed to be dying, but the father was too drunk to be aware of its condition. The policeman called in one of the neighbors to look after the family while he went to the police station. Upon his return he found the eldest boy washing about the room with the baby in his arms. He said that it was asleep, but the policeman found upon taking it up that it was dead.

"Tain't dead," said the boy, "I know it's sleep, 'cause I sung it to sleep."

When the lad discovered that the child was really dead, he sat down in one corner and wept. The father and mother recovered sufficiently from their stupor, and seemed unaffected when told that their child was dead.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was notified to care for the other children, who were half starved. The father and mother have for a long time been addicted to drink.

Pug Dogs in the Property Clerk's Care.

Policeman Schenck of the Fifth street station met James Fogarty in the Bowery yesterday morning carrying two English pug dogs, and, after questioning him and getting replies that he deemed unsatisfactory, arrested him. At Essex Market, Fogarty told Justice Smith that he had procured the dogs on a commission for P. J. Sharkey of 135 Fourth avenue, from a fireman of the steamship Arizona, who had brought them over on the last trip of the steamer. Justice Smith desired more light on the subject, and sent Fogarty and the officer to the Arizona to bring the fireman to court. The steamer had just left her pier, homeward bound, when they got there. The pugs were sent to Property Clerk St. John at Police Headquarters to await the Arizona's return.

Brooklyn's Increasing Death Rate.

The death rate in Brooklyn took another upward turn last week, and now stands at 38.33 in every 1,000 of population, which, on the basis of 19 as a normal death rate, is twice the natural rate. There were 479 cases of death, being 25 more than in the previous week, 53 more than in the corresponding week in 1880, and 107 more than in the corresponding week in 1879. There were 159 fatal cases of children of infantile, 14 of diphtheria, 17 of meningitis, and 21 of marasmus. There were 292 cases of death of children under 5 years of age, and 219 of children under 1 year of age.
