SHEPHERD COWLEY'S CASE.

NO CHARGE AGAINST HIM WORTH TRYING IN A CHURCH COURT.

Report of a Church Committee of Inquiry into the Reports against his Character—His Civil Trial and Sentence Reviewed.

The Right Rev. Horatio Potter, D. D., LL. D., Bishop of New York, in January last appointed the Rev. J. H. Relance, D. D., the Rev. James Mulchahey, D. D., the Rev. C. C. Tiffany, Mr. Daniel B. Whitlock, and Mr. E. H. Cushman as a committee to inquire into "certain rumors and allegations" affecting the character of the Rev. Edward Cowley, a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the diocese of New York. After several sessions, the Rev. C. C. Tiffany resigned, and the Rev. Dr. Gallaudet was appointed in his place. This committee has just submitted an exhaustive report to Bishop Potter, accompanied by a mass of stenographic reports of evidence and the opinion of the committee thereon.

The committee did not consider the conviction of Mr. Cowley in the Court of General Sessions in February, 1880, and his sentence to twelve months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $250 sufficient cause to present the Rev. Mr. Cowley for trial under the canons of the Episcopal Church. They thought it would be a dangerous precedent to accept the findings of a civil court as sufficient in themselves to require the presentment of a clergyman for trial by the courts of the Church. They were satisfied that the conviction of Mr. Cowley in the General Sessions could only be regarded as prima facie evidence looking to guilt, and not to be taken by a Church court or by a committee of inquiry as conclusive of his guilt. The committee concluded to hear not only the evidence presented in court against Mr. Cowley, but all available evidence on the subject. They say they took pains to let it be known that they desired all persons having anything of importance and pertinent to the case to say for or against Mr. Cowley to come before the committee and say it. Some of the witnesses who appeared against him in court did not appear, and the committee say that endeavors to secure their attendance were rudely resented by persons representing some of the witnesses referred to. The committee took testimony from persons who had lived in the Shepherd's Fold, and from persons who had visited it frequently and freely.

The committee say that they were not guided solely by the mass of testimony in favor of Mr. Cowley, nor by his voluminous rebuttal of the charges, but that they had before them much testimony to his disredit, and seriously considered the record of the court in which he was convicted of cruelty to the inmates of the Shepherd's Fold. Upon all the evidence the committee concluded that Mr. Cowley could not be convicted of "immorality" in the sense in which that word is used in the canon under which an accused clergyman would be tried. The committee admit that there was much evidence of Mr. Cowley's quarrels with persons associated with him in the conduct of charitable institutions, which showed that Mr. Cowley had not been conspicuous among his associates for winning ways, but had displayed a rare aptitude for creating alienations and making enemies. All this, however, was not criminal, and Mr. Cowley had won a reputation for kindness and fidelity as a missionary on Blackwell's Island.

The committee could find no adequate proof that Mr. Cowley had been habitually guilty of abusing and beating the children of the Shepherd's Fold, and found much to discredit the rumor of such cruelty. The committee also regard as effectually disproved and untrue the charge that Mr. Cowley made money out of the Shepherd's Fold and invested it in Massachusetts. The committee find as a fact that the food supplied to the children of the Shepherd's Fold was slight and cheap in character, as compared with food commonly found on tables of private families, and on even four acres in condition, having consisted chiefly of bread, milk, beans, rice, with an occasional supply of meat, and now and then of fowl. The committee say that good authority affirms that a healthy child, sufficiently fed on such fare, cannot properly be said to be starved. As to the quantity of such food supplied, the committee say that there was plenty of bread, but the supply of milk was inadequate. The evidence before the committee does not enable them to state the precise quantity of all the articles of diet supplied, but they are satisfied that the evidence in the Court of General Sessions, under which Mr. Cowley was convicted, underrated the quantity of beans supplied. The committee lay stress upon the fact that neither the parents nor guardians of the inmates nor the inmates themselves complained that the inmates of the Shepherd's Fold were starved or did not have enough to eat. The lady visitor of the Home for the Friendless testified that the children of the Shepherd's Fold were in all apparent respects like the children of the Home."

In regard to the children that were in a diseased and emaciated condition, the committee say that those children had been taken or brought out of the most degrading conditions of city life, and admitted into the Fold in a filthy, diseased, and otherwise miserably wretched condition. The case of one Kulausky, known as Louis Victor, the committee admit does seem to convict Mr. Cowley of the most atrocious cruelty. They admit that the child in his sickness needed nursing and nutrition which the head of the Shepherd's Fold had it not in his power to supply; that Mr. Cowley was deeply culpable in not having at once, on when the sickness of the child became serious, relieved himself of the responsibility which he ought to have felt, by placing the child in a fitter place.

The report concludes as follows:

Based on carefully reviewing and weighing all the evidence at their command, the committee find no direct evidence in the direction of the Shepherd's Fold, or in the treatment of the children, or of any one charged, committed to his care as guardian of the Shepherd's Fold, he was insulted and actuated by a motive or purpose properly criminal, or in any way sufficient to impute such children, or any one of them, and therefore, under a deep and solemn sense of responsibility to God, the Church they in this case represent, and to society at large, and after a very long, and laborious and careful inquiry, come to assert—that the recently prosecuted charges against the committee are compelled to retain from presenting the Rev. Edward Cowley for trial in a court of the Church for crime.

Outlawry in Arkansas—An Editor Killed.

LITTLE ROCK, July 22.—The outlaw troubles in Perry County have broken out afresh. A few weeks ago Judge Harris and J. L. W. Matthews, editor of the Fourche Valley Times, were ordered by a "select" band of outlaws to leave the county. Affairs had reached such a crisis that Gov. Churchill sent Gen. Newton, commander of the State militia, to the scene to investigate. A truce was temporarily effected, which was broken last night by the cowardly assassination of Mr. Matthews in front of his office. Eighteen buckshot took effect in his left side and arm. Matthews and his clerk, who had been out to the well for water, were returning to the office, the clerk being the lead and on the eve of opening the door, Matthews being just behind, when the shot was fired, and Matthews fell. A man was seen running off, but he could not be recognized. A judge was left at the residence of Judge Harris advising him to leave the county.

Unveiling a Confederate Monument.

CULPEPPER, Va., July 21.—Notwithstanding the rain fall during the entire forenoon, the unveiling of the monument to-day to the Confederate dead drew an immense crowd of persons, variously estimated at from 6,000 to 8,000. The procession formed at noon in front of the armory, headed by the Culpeper minute men, and was a mile long, extending to the Confederate cemetery, where the ceremonies took place under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. Addresses were made by Col. Fitzhugh, ex-Gov. Kemper, the Hon. John Goode, and Gen. Walker. The speakers were introduced by Maj. James Field. After the ceremonies were over the procession returned to town, where a sumptuous dinner awaited the visitors which was served by the ladies, all the public buildings and private residences were handsomely decorated.

Shooting Through a Man and Killing a Horse.

LITTLE ROCK, July 22.—Robert Costello yesterday and and mortally wounded a man named Gatherings near Arkansas City. Costello had missed some hogs, and accused Gatherings of killing them. While Gatherings was ploughing in a field Costello fired at him from a thicket on the edge of the field. The ball passing through, and striking and killing a horse that was hitched. Costello, his brother, and father-in-law, Dan Newman, have been arrested and bonded over to await the result of Gatherings' injuries.

The Storm in the Northwest.

CHICAGO, July 22.—The storm last night is reported to have blown down and ruined the crops in several places. In Wisconsin many buildings were struck by lightning and destroyed, but no loss of property is noted. The La Crosse division of the Milwaukee and St. Paul road was washed out near Melrose, delaying trains. The storm also extended over parts of Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan. In Ashley Ill., Barger & Son's flouring mill was burned with 6,000 bushels of wheat, loss $10,000. At Richmond, Ind., Gustav Rambo was killed by the lightning while crossing a field.

Ravages of the Army Worm.

CHICAGO, July 22.—The oat crops in Grundy and Will counties, Ill., have been half destroyed by the army worm, which has however, mysteriously disappeared. Several farms in Hibbard Township, Iowa, have been visited by the worm. One farmer lost fourteen acres of oats and ten acres of timothy. In Marshall County, Iowa, a small black or light brown worm is eating everything green before it.

Fears of an Indian Massacre.

SANTA FE, July 22.—All the employees at the Navajoe Agency have left the agency, owing to the threatening attitude of the Indians and fears of a general massacre. It is believed at the agency that Indian chiefs have left that agency. Last night the agency was left without either interpreter or guard to protect the property.

Flocking to see a Big Turtle.

FIRE ISLAND, July 21.—A big turtle, seven feet long, four feet wide, and weighing about 800 pounds, was caught in a net in the ocean near here by Manhasset fishermen. It was taken inside the bay and made fast to the wharf. Thousands are flocking to see it. The oldest fishermen here have never seen anything equal to it.

EG. JOHNSON'S SURPRISE.

Honors Thrust Upon Him while Starting Race Horses in Saratoga.

The Hon. Egbert M. Johnson of Cincinnati, commonly called Eg. Johnson by those best acquainted with him, is considered by many to be the handsomest man on the turf. While starting race horses on the Saratoga course the other day, he received a despatch announcing that he had been nominated by the Democrats for Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio. Before starting the horses for another contest Mr. Johnson telegraphed his friends in Ohio that they might consider him entered in the political race.

Mr. Johnson is a character on the race course, jolly, genial, and at times almost comical. He is wealthy, and very fond of the noble sports of the turf. He serves as starter on the best courses in the country without pecuniary reward, for the mere love of the business. When he steps into the starting box with the flag in his hand, his pleasant features assume an earnest expression. He watches the jockeys with keen eyes like a pedagogue who knows that a sharp lot of boys are around him ready to improve every opportunity for mischief. On occasion he becomes an emphatic orator. No matter how much time it may require, he will never send a field of horses away until he sees them moving up on what promises to be even terms. Jockeys who persist in disobedience have to pay the penalty. He issues his commands in a clear voice: "Hughes go back to the line or I'll suspend you." "Costello, bring your horse up with the rest, or I'll fine you." "Evans, if you break away again before the flag drops you'll not ride again for a week." These and similar injunctions are enforced at times until the owners of leading stables are unable to avail themselves of the services of their best riders in important races. Then Eg. receives a double damning from owners and jockeys. Sub riders come to the front in these emergencies. They are strong admirers of Mr. Johnson.

Nothing annoys Mr. Johnson more than to be charged with having made a poor start. He often bets freely on the horses, but never permits his money to influence him in his duties.

Once after a start in a fractional race from the back stretch, in which the favorite had the worst of it, he came across to the reporters' row, saying, "Gentlemen, did you ever see a horse get as far away as quick as the winner did? They were coming are evenly when I lowered the flag, and I'm blessed if he didn't shoot out and lead them ten yards before they passed the post with the favorite last, and I had $500 on her."

A New London Mystery.

NEW LONDON, July 22.—On Saturday evening last two well-known residents of this city were walking in a lonely part of the north end. The street was unlighted and deserted. A covered wagon came toward and passed them, going north on the Norwich road. When forty rods away the team was stopped near a watering trough. A man alighted and fumbled about the harness. He soon mounted his seat, drove a little way, and stopped his horse again. A woman came walking down a side street, her gaze steadily fixed on the strange team. The driver was looking at the woman. She approached the team and spoke in piteous tones, her words being inaudible except one sentence: "They have left me all alone with him. I will be hanged, Frank, or—" The rest of the words were not heard. In a moment the carriage was driven on. The woman was left in the street staring after it. The vehicle had not gone twenty feet before there was a flash, followed by the report of a pistol. The man leaped from the carriage, ran and picked up the woman, carried her to the vehicle, placed her inside, got in himself, and drove rapidly away. While on her way to the carriage the woman groaned loudly. The New London police have worked strenuously to clear up the mystery, but have not obtained the slightest clue to the identity of the actors in the affair or to the meaning of the incident.

Brooklyn's Garbage Contract.

There is much complaint in Brooklyn over the operation of the garbage contract, and householders are almost daily making complaints to Commissioner John French about its execution. Thousands of householders have never had a garbage collector call at their houses. There is no day fixed on which the garbage is to be taken away, and the only way that some find to get rid of it is to pay boys to carry it away, or else to burn it. While the latter method serves well enough in winter, at this season it is not feasible. The contractor is nominally Matthew Smith, but the politicians say that he is only a tool of Hugh McLaughlin, who is really the contractor. The latter draws $10,000 a year from the city, and sublets the right to collect garbage to hundreds who pay well the garbage men, peddlers or farmers, or feed it to pigs, cows, and goats. The Alderman has secured the chairmanship of the committee through which the requisitions of the department which make or break the contract have to go for approval. The Alderman thus keeps them to an extent in his power and prevents any interference with his scheme.

Unlucky in her Experience of Hospitals.

Three weeks ago Augusta Lange, a domestic, was received at the German Hospital as a patient upon the recommendation of the German Consul. She claimed to be troubled with heart disease and other ailments. On Wednesday afternoon the hospital authorities discharged her, believing that her sickness was pretended. She threatened to drown herself. A nurse was sent to accompany her to her sister's home at 533 Eighth avenue. The nurse returned to the hospital and told Superintendent Wendel that Augusta was going toward the East River. Mr. Wiff followed her to seventy-eighth street and Second avenue, where he caused her arrest. Justice Wendel committed the girl to the care of the Commissioners of Charities. She told the Justice that she had been in the hospital at Ward's Island, but had been discharged on the allegation that she was lazy and would not work. She came from Germany fifteen months ago.

Fireworks in Honor of President Garfield.

Mayor Howell of Brooklyn yesterday issued a proclamation designating Thursday evening, July 28, as a time for giving expression to the joyful sentiments of the people over the prospects of President Garfield's recovery. The Mayor directs that the public display of fireworks, which was to have been given on the night of July 4, be given next Thursday night. He authorizes the expenditure of $1,000 for fireworks on the same evening, and will not require permits to be obtained for such displays. Under this proclamation the public buildings will be decorated with bunting, and brilliantly illuminated at night, and there will be a display of fireworks at Fort Greene, on the block bounded by North Eleventh, North Twelfth, Flushing and Kent streets, at Franklin and Leonard streets upon the block bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues, and Tenth and Eleventh streets, and in Tompkins Park.

The Story of Three Well-Dressed Men.

Three well-dressed men walked up the stoop of the residence of Mr. H. S. Bussing at 333 Clinton street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning while the servant was sweeping out the vestibule, and tried to pass her in the hall. She stopped them and asked their business. They said that they had called to see a painting in the parlor. The girl refused to admit them, and threatened that if they did not go away she would scream for help. Then they turned around and went hastily off. One of the men is described as being about 5 feet 8 inches high, with a light with gray moustache and hair. He was slightly bald, and wore gray clothes and a straw hat. Another was 40 years old, and had dark complexion, moustache, and whiskers. The third was a younger man with a light moustache. A general police alarm was sent out.

The Spanish Bank of Cuba Robbed.

HAVANA, July 22.—Two employees of the branch office at Matanzas of the Spanish Bank of Cuba fled, with two accomplices, on board the Spanish steamer Alicante, which one of the accomplices had chartered under the pretence that he intended to fetch cattle from Alvarado, Mexico. The employees robbed the office of $24,000 in specie. The bank officers say that the amount stolen is not yet fully ascertained. The Alicante left Matanzas on the 19th inst.

The police of Havana have captured four counterfeit coiners, with all their machinery for imitating Spanish, American, and Mexican coin.

An Extraordinary Death Rate.

The deaths from infectious diseases in this city in the first five months of 1880 were 1,817. In the same months of 1881, and from the same diseases, there were 2,677 deaths. The record of the first five months of 1881 shows that there died of measles 404, of scarlet fever, 170, of small pox, 4, of diphtheria, 371, of croup, 324, of typhoid fever, 206, of typhoid fever, 7, of whooping cough, 154, of cholera infantum, 1, of cholera, 1, of influenza, 102, of scarlet fever, 204, of small-pox, 212, of diphtheria, 800, of croup, 407, of typhoid fever, 101, of typhoid fever, 1, of cholera infantum, 2, of influenza, 42. It will be observed that the other diseases were made in scarlet fever, small-pox, diphtheria, croup, and typhoid.

An Old Sunday School Teacher Gone.

The funeral of Elizabeth Booth, for nearly twenty years connected with the Sabbath school of Trinity Church, took place yesterday from Trinity Church. Hundreds of her pupils, grown to manhood and womanhood, were present. The class which she taught was in the infant department, and it numbered constantly from 150 to 200 members. Her work was peculiarly successful. The Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix read the burial service.

Suburban Rapid Transit.

The Rapid Transit Commissioners appointed by Mayor Grace determined yesterday that a new elevated railway is necessary to meet the wishes of residents of the adjacent districts. They are allowed thirty days from December to determine by what route the new road shall be built. Then they will have thirty days more to form a company formed to build the road. A meeting will be held on the 27th inst. to hear arguments as to the best route.

A New Company for Coney Island.

The certificate of the incorporation of the Coney Island Fuel and Gas Light Company was yesterday filed with the Kings County clerk, the incorporators being C. Hilton Scribner, Reuben W. Van Pelt, and C. Devereux Wilmot. Its capital is fixed at $300,000, which has been issued to pay for property purchased, and its object is to manufacture gas and electricity for fuel, heat, light, and power.
