RUINED IN WALL STREET.

The Flight of J. P. Jackman after Losing $100,000 in Speculation.

The failure of Jackman & O'Hara, manufacturers of cloaks and suits at 27 White street, was announced yesterday. It is the result of losses suffered by the senior partner through speculation in Wall street. It is believed that he has fled the country. Mr. Patrick H. O'Hara, the remaining partner, made an assignment yesterday for the benefit of the creditors to Morgan J. O'Brien, attorney, of 150 Broadway. The firm were very well known in trade, having been established since Jan. 1, 1876, stood high, were regarded as a very successful house, and were supposed to have made considerable money. John P. Jackman, the senior partner, had entire charge of the finances of the firm, and everything seemed to be in a flourishing condition up to Friday, the 19th inst. On the next day Mr. Jackman did not appear at the store, but a letter was received by a friend from him dated New York, Aug. 19. It was as follows:

SIR: The firm of J. & O'H. is no longer able to meet its obligations, and their paper will go to protest tomorrow. The capital was all lost by me in Wall street. Up to this time I have kept the concern going by floating paper, but that could not last. The fault is all mine, O'Hara not knowing anything about the matter. He does not know of the impending failure, as I could not tell him.

J. P. JACKMAN.

Mr. O'Hara, as soon as he learned the state of affairs, borrowed money and took up the paper referred to in the letter, expecting to be able to go ahead with the business; but after an examination of the books, of which Jackman had heretofore had sole charge, he found that the firm were hopelessly involved, and it would be impossible to meet the difficulty. The creditors were accordingly notified of the suspension, which was followed by the assignment.

Mr. Jackman left the store as usual on Friday, the 19th inst., went to his boarding house, and went away from there at a late hour, taking, it is said, only a valise. No word has been received of his whereabouts, but it is generally supposed that he fled to Europe on one of the steamships which sailed last Saturday, as he has relatives in Ireland, whence he came about fifteen years ago. Nothing definite is known as to whether he lost all the money in Wall street speculations, or whether he took a portion of the funds with him. It was learned yesterday from friends of his that he had been operating in stocks for a long time past, and a few months ago he lost $16,000 on one operation; but in what particular stock or office was not ascertained. It is thought that the entire amount absorbed by him will reach at least $100,000, but the exact figures will not be known for some time. As far as has been ascertained, the firm's liabilities for merchandise are $16,000; on notes, $14,000; and for borrowed money $7,000. The assets consist of accounts and stock nominally valued at about $25,000. There is due $6,791 to H. W. Collender, the father-in-law of Mr. O'Hara, for borrowed money, and it is said he has been secured by a chattel mortgage. The creditors express great sympathy for Mr. O'Hara, and many offers of assistance to resume have been made. It is probable that such an arrangement will be made.

Mr. O'Hara said, in the store yesterday, that he was completely taken by surprise by his partner's acts, as he had not the remotest idea that anything was wrong. Mr. Jackman had entire charge of the finances, and he was led to believe that the firm was prospering and was making money. The profits for the past five years, he thought, were upward of $100,000. He drew very little from the firm, and thought the capital was kept intact. He did not know of his partner's speculations until the letter above mentioned gave him the information. He could not say how much had been lost by Jackman, but he thought it must be between $75,000 and $100,000, and it might even exceed the latter figures. He had not been able to learn what brokers were with whom Jackman did business. As Jackman had entire control of the finances, he made many notes in the firm's name, which he had discounted, and he used the proceeds in his speculations. An expert would be put on the books at once, and as soon as a statement could be prepared it would be submitted to the creditors. He had no information regarding his partner's whereabouts, but believed he had sailed for Europe.

Mr. O'Brien, the assignee, said yesterday that the firm's liabilities were about $38,000. A large part of the assets were in unfinished goods and raw material.

PHYSICIANS AND PLUMBERS.

The Latter Propose to Get up a Course of Instruction for the Former.

A few weeks ago a letter was sent to Mr. George H. Mead, Secretary of the Association of Master Plumbers, by Mr. John Buckingham, manager of the New York Trade School at Sixty-eighth street and First avenue. The letter stated that the school proposed to continue its lectures on various points affecting the sanitary results of plumbing, and asked for the sympathy and endorsement of the Association of Master Plumbers. The Plumbers' Association have made a tart reply. The following passage is said to occur in the letter, which is at present withheld from publication:

It is the intention of our association before next winter to open a school for the practice of medicine and surgery. Lectures will be delivered by prominent professors on various subjects to be designated by the faculty. Illustrations will be presented at each lecture, showing the improved method of extracting lead from the system.

Among the subjects enumerated specifically were the following: "How to Make Physicians Plumbers." "How to Make Plumbers Physicians." "Compound Fracturing Cement and Putty Applications." "Theoretical as Against Practical Plumbing."

Mr. George H. Mead of 11 East Fourteenth street said yesterday:

We have been away from the city for some time, and have no detailed account of the doings of the association. However, if the reply sent by the plumbers is what it is said to be, I feel called upon to condemn it in the strongest terms. If there is to be a battle of the physicians and the Board of Health against the plumbers, the plumbers must inevitably go to the wall."

THE DROUGHT IN ILLINOIS.

Wells and Streams Dry, Pastures Burned, and All the Late Corn Ruined.

SULLIVAN, Ill., Aug. 26.—There was a slight rainfall last night, the first for several weeks. The ground was so dry and it absorbed so fast that the difference was scarcely perceptible this morning. The drought has ruined all the late corn. The hedges and stubble fields are so dry that sparks from passing trains set fire to them. It is almost a daily occurrence for fences, hay, and, in some cases, buildings to be burned along the railroads. The wells and streams are going dry, and the farmers are fearful that they will be compelled to move their stock. There are good indications, however, of rain to-day.

YORKVILLE, Ill., Aug. 26.—The great drought continues. The pastures are literally burned up, presenting very scant grazing for stock. The farmers are cutting up corn and feeding it to the stock. The corn and potato crops are seriously affected.

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 26.—A careful inquiry among the farmers of this county (Vermilion) in regard to the corn prospects shows that a much larger acreage was planted this year than last, and that the long drought has injured all the corn on high grounds, while on low, marshy grounds the yield will not be much more than half the average.

A Boys' Club House in a Stable.

James J. Jones of 224 East Eighty-fifth street owns a stable at 226 East Eighty-fourth street. For some time past gangs of boys have frequented it. They set up into the loft and play cards and smoke until they become tired, when they crawl into the hay and sleep until morning. Mr. Jones has been greatly alarmed fearing that the boys would set fire to the place. On Thursday night, after the boys were all comfortably quartered for the night, an officer entered the stable and arrested them. The boys, five in number, were arraigned before Justice Gardner in the Harlem Police Court on Friday. He gave their names as Robert Collins, aged 15 years, of 116 East Eighty-eighth street; John Crowley, aged 15 years, of 226 East Ninety-second street; Patrick Smith, aged 16 years, of 158 East Eighty-eighth street; Michael Finnegan, aged 14 years, of Ninety-fifth street and Fourth avenue; and James Delmore, aged 14 years, of Ninety-first street and Fourth avenue. He labored admonished and a severe lecture to the lads, and committed the ringleader in default of a fine of $10.

The Fall Rifle Matches at Creedmoor.

The Executive Committee of the National Rifle Association, at an adjourned meeting yesterday, completed and adopted the programme of matches for the fall meeting at Creedmoor, to begin on the 13th of September. The programme includes twenty matches, with many valuable prizes, among them a $500 trophy, presented by Senator William W. Astor, to be competed for in the New York State National Guard match. Secretary Donaldson presents a $285 trophy as the first prize in the American championship short range match. To the match instituted in all the Brooklyn and Bay regiments, McKenney for two good medals valued at $50 each, and ten silver medals each day.

The Sherwood prizes will be presented as formerly.

It was decided by the committee that there should be no handicapping of professionals during the fall meeting. The prizes in each match are to be distributed in the grounds.

The Catalonia in Seagoing Condition Again.

The new Cunard steamship Catalonia, that arrived in this port from Liverpool on Wednesday with a damaged shaft, sailed at 4 days overdue, and sailed on her return trip to-day. The injury which she sustained on the outward voyage was not as serious as was at first supposed, her shaft being not broken, as reported, but merely slightly bent. It was easily returned, and captain Cook decided to make a good voyage and sail for Liverpool. The steamer's passenger list, however, made an indifferent showing, only about thirty-five cabin passenger having been engaged up to last night.

THEODORE ULKE'S SUDDEN DEATH.

The Career of a German who was a Revolutionist of 1848.

Theodore Ulke, for the past fourteen years a maker of telegraphic instruments in the factory of L. G. Tillotson, 143 Centre street, was found dead in the yard of his landlord, John Ricke, at 141 Walker street, at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. There were gashes over the right and left eye, but they were not large enough to cause death, and it is supposed he died of apoplexy. He was heard to go into the yard about 11 o'clock the preceding night. His body was cold when found.

Mr. Ulke has an eventful history. According to the statements of some of his friends, his father, who is now living, is the Count Ulke von Eulenberg of the province of Silesia. His brother, Leo Ulke, residing at Twenty-third street and Eleventh avenue, denied this, and told the following story of his brother's life:

"My brother was 56 years old. He was born in Frankenstein, province of Silesia, and was one of seven brothers. My father was the proprietor of a printing and lithographic establishment, and was also well known as a poet and musician. He was the patron of struggling musicians and artists, and almost impoverished himself assisting them. He is now taken care of by rich relatives. Four of us, Henry Ulke, an artist at Washington; Julius Ulke, a photographer at the same place; Theodore, and I, were compelled to leave Germany after the failure of the revolution of 1848, because of our connection with the movement. Before the civil war here Theodore worked in a steam gauge factory in New Orleans. He was afterward a soldier in the Confederate army. He was a musician and an artist of some ability."

Mr. Leo Ulke refused to say much in regard to the ancestry of his family. It was learned from other sources that an uncle of the dead man is a Bishop in Breslau. One of his brothers, a German officer, was killed in the Franco-German war, and his only sister is the wife of Leopold Meyer, the musical director. Henry Ulke, the Washington artist, was educated by the Princess Albert of Prussia.

Some of Theodore Ulke's fellow workmen say that he told them that he was with Mosby, the guerrilla, during the war. He was constantly making mechanical models and toys, studying and drawing when not otherwise engaged. In his room were found, besides numerous drawings, sketches, and a painting by his mother, a miniature model of Sebastopol just as it was at the time of its storming. It is mounted with guns, which can be discharged by a mechanical device. The deceased will be buried in Evergreens Cemetery to-day.

MR. STUART DISCHARGED.

The Decision of Justice Courtney upon the Charge of Embezzlement.

Justice Courtney, in Brooklyn, yesterday, in the case of ex-Secretary George W. A. Stuart of the Brooklyn Board of Education, who was accused of having embezzled $10,000 by means of fraudulent warrants, decided that there was not sufficient evidence to hold Mr. Stuart for the Grand Jury, and Mr. Stuart was accordingly discharged. Mr. Stuart smiled, bowed to the Court, and shook hands with Assistant District Attorney Backus. Mr. Stuart was at once surrounded by his friends, who congratulated him. Mr. Backus said that Mr. Stuart's discharge by Justice Courtney would not prevent the next Grand Jury from indicting him for embezzlement. Mr. Stuart seemed as placid over his discharge as he was over his arrest.

The new Secretary of the Board of Education is making a report upon the financial condition of the department, which, it is said, will show that while the Board has been spending about a million dollars a year, the monthly reports of the Finance Committee do not, when taken together for a year, cover more than a fraction of that sum. As an example of the loose way in which business has been done, it is said that three warrants were drawn for the payment of one bill; that seven warrants have been drawn since 1870 amounting to $2,845.82, including the one for $2,465.40 alleged to have been drawn for a mythical person, which have never been called for, and $1,000 remains over the amount ordered paid to teachers. The accounts, as they stand, show only $475,565.08 to the credit of the Board, while there should be the sum of $507,181.39, thus showing an apparent deficiency of $31,565.72. There is now only $5 in the treasury for the purchase of fuel, while the contracts outstanding form $12,000 liabilities.

Things are in such bad shape that the Finance Committee will recommend in its report that the Mayor and Comptroller be requested to ascertain if any money can be had to meet the necessary expenses for the remainder of this year, so that the Board may be kept free from debt.

An effort is to be made to establish a sound business system of conducting the finances of the Board, and to adopt a plan to prevent stealing by subordinates.

The Wounded South Windham Burglar Recovering.

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 26.—Ned Lyons, the wounded South Windham burglar, lies in a pleasant quarter of the Willimantic poorhouse. He will not admit that he is Lyons, and he keeps his own counsel strictly. He is slowly getting well. The gaping wound, which many persons think was as dangerous as that of President Garfield, has been treated by local physicians only. It has suppurated satisfactorily and is healing. One is unable to see his bed, as he is propped up by cushions against dampness. His clothes have been cleaned and repaired and are on exhibition at the tailor's shop. A cluster of curious persons are about the shop windows from morning to night, looking at the bullet hole through which the charge of thick shot and tack nails passed, is about four inches in diameter. The suit is of black material, and was made for a man of 5 feet 7 inches in height. Nicoll of New York made the suit, and the tailors swear by his name. The treatment of the tailor has been very kind. He was given beef tea at first, and soon afterward beefsteak, and anything else he wished. He has had no morphine. His recovery has been remarkably rapid.

A Philadelphia Brewery Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Early this morning Henry Mueller's brewery, at Thirty-first and Jefferson streets, was burned. The fire originated from a tank of oil in the carriage house attached. It burned for three hours and gutted the entire establishment. Two alarms of the value sounded, but there was some delay in the arrival of the engines, owing to the alarm wires being out of order. The roof, and the floors, fell into the cellar against the west wall, and two firemen were near the top when the ladder frame in hall and the men fell to the pavement, followed by a burning mass of debris. The other men rushed into the burning pile, and soon drew out the two men. Two others were injured by the falling bricks and burning timbers. Their names are Frank Cannon, foreman, John Irons, Wallace, and Edward Clements. Their injuries are serious. There were about five thousand barrels of beer destroyed and $20,000 worth of machinery. The loss will foot up about $60,000; insurance $34,000.

Deficient Crops in Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 26.—The Hon. W. H. Ragan, President of the State Board of Agriculture, says that the crop in the central and southern portions of the state will not be one-half the average, but in the northern part it is somewhat better, and there will be about a two-thirds crop. All the areas are suffering in a like degree, and there is little hope of rain in a very few days in many counties of the state, nearly all the corn will be cut for fodder. The wheat prospect is bad, and fall crops are in a bad way. Potatoes promised well, but in the last few weeks, the drought has had a telling effect upon them, and they will fall below the average. The prospect for hogs are being raised on account of the scarcity of corn.

Alive with Two Bullet Holes in his Head.

OSWEGO, Aug. 26.—At 6 o'clock on Wednesday morning Eli Cole, alias Aiken, a hotel keeper at Hannibal, bought a revolver and a box of cartridges. Then he went into his bath and shot himself twice in the head. The first ball entered his head forward of the right ear and passed under the integument. The other entered the back of the neck and passed up into the head. The sight of both eyes is destroyed, but the surgeons think he will live. He is married to a brother who found him to take the revolver and finish the job.

Lynchers After a Supposed Murderer.

SOUTH ARKANSAS, Col., Aug. 26.—The dead body of a man named McCorkey was found at Mears on Wednesday night under circumstances which indicated murder, and evidence pointed strongly to Charles Stone, a colored laborer, as the murderer. Stone disappeared from the place soon after the finding of the body, and he was arrested on the way. A number of McCorkey's friends followed after them, but the authorities had started him away. Fifty armed men scoured the streets here last night for Stone, with the intention of lynching him.

Fatal Gunpowder Explosion.

PORTLAND, Aug. 26.—One of the buildings of the powder manufactory of Watson, Burrell & Co., at Warren, Me., containing nearly a ton of fine sporting powder, exploded about noon yesterday, demolishing the building, blowing in the ends of the packing house and of the other buildings filled with powder, though neither exploded. Samuel Mank of Warren, who was at work in the building, was blown nearly 40 feet, and instantly killed. Loss from $6,000 to $10,000.

Expressing a Boy from Ireland.

OSWEGO FALLS, Aug. 26.—Six years ago Mr. and Mrs P. Doyle returned to Ireland on account of the former's ill health. A year ago he died, and Mrs Doyle returned home. This morning their son Eddie, aged 8 years, arrived by express from Kilkenny. Pinned on his back was a tag marked "To Amos Youmans, Fulton, N. Y." "Care of Great White Star line." And also a railroad ticket from New York marked "Put this passenger off at Fulton, N. Y."

Suicide of a Forsaken Wife.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 26.—Three weeks ago C. T. Burke arrived here from Little Rock with a lady companion. Yesterday his wife and two little children came to the city and his lady companion, a Miss Carter, followed, followed by Little Rock. Mrs Burke offered to take her children to school, and left the house for a room and took to a mixture of laudanum. When discovered she was beyond recovery.

A Safe Blown Open and Robbed.

WHITEHALL, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The safe of Lewis Burgess at Hagaman's Great Lake George, was blown open last night and $3,500 in money and $2,000 in interest certificates taken.

MILKMEN ARRESTED.

Dr. Newton Throws 8,000 Quarts of Skimmed Milk Into the Street in Jersey City.

Some time ago the New Jersey State Inspector of Milk, Dr. Newton, visited the milk depot of the Erie Railway, in Jersey City, and dumped several thousand quarts of adulterated or skimmed milk that he found in the cars into the street. The Inspector found that the practice of bringing skimmed milk to the city was still kept up, and he determined to make another raid. Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock he visited the same depot with a number of policemen, and when most of the milkmen had loaded their wagons he began operations. His force was not large enough to capture all the milkmen, as some of them ran away, leaving their loaded wagons standing in the street; but he succeeded in turning about 8,000 quarts of skimmed milk into the street. He arrested six of the milkmen: August Reeser of 436 East Thirty-ninth street, this city; Frederick Graft, 734 Ninth avenue, this city; William Muller, 95 West Houston street, this city; James Howard, Johnson street, Brooklyn; Oscar S. Chutenburg and Frank E. Jackson of Hoboken. Justice Davis fined them $50 each. They paid their fines. They were warned that if they were caught repeating the offence they would be fined $100 apiece.
