STRANGLED BY HER APRON STRINGS.

An Alleged Case of Suicide that is Regarded with Suspicion.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning Sergeant Doran of the Leonard street police was notified by Thomas Quinlan, a longshoreman employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, that he had found his wife, Julia, lying dead on a lounge in his room at 74 Watts street at 4 A. M., with a strip of calico tied around her neck. Coroner Ellinger and his deputy, Dr. Goldschmiedt, visited the house yesterday afternoon. The rooms occupied by Quinlan are on the third floor, and are neatly furnished. The body lay on the floor in the centre of the room, the string still around the neck.

Dr. Goldschmiedt made a careful examination of the body and found a large bruise over the left eye that apparently had been made by a blow. No other bruises or other marks of violence were found on the body, and death had been caused by strangulation. A strip of calico torn or cut from a checked apron worn by the woman had been passed twice around the neck and then tied in a double knot under the chin. The cord had sunk deeply into the flesh of the neck, and the face was black and swollen. It was difficult to understand how the woman could have knotted the string so firmly after she had passed it twice around her neck. The woman was fully dressed, even to the shoes, that had not been unlaced.

In answer to the Coroner's questions, Quinlan said that his wife had been drinking heavily for three weeks. They retired at 10 o'clock on Thursday night. She had been drinking during the day, but he did not think she was intoxicated when she retired. He awoke at 4 A. M., and found that his wife was not by his side, but was on the sofa, about four feet from the bed. The body was cold and rigid, and she had been dead some hours. He had had no quarrel with her, he affirmed, and said that she had always been a good wife. Coroner Ellinger considered the circumstances suspicious, and ordered Quinlan's arrest. He will be arraigned at the Coroner's office to-morrow. The neighbors are all agreed that it was a case of suicide, and they say that Quinlan and his wife had lived happily, and seldom quarrelled. Quinlan has been married nine years, and has one child living, a boy, about 8 years old.

THE WORKINGS OF THE NEW CODE.

A Man Charged with Theft Released Because its Requirements were not Respected.

One way in which the new Code of Criminal Procedure may work was startlingly illustrated yesterday in the Essex Market Police Court. Bernard Marks, a clerk for Pawnbroker Godfrey of Chatham street, was brought before Justice Murray in the Essex Market Police Court, charged with the larceny of $140 worth of revolvers. Detective English had made the arrest in accordance with the rules of the Police Department, and had brought Bernard Marks to court. English whispered a few words to the magistrate, who bowed, and a moment later Detective English snapped the handcuffs on the wrists of young Marks.

"Stop that, sir!" loudly exclaimed Lawyer Hathaway. "You cannot handcuff this man and take him out of this court room as a felon without giving him an examination."

Justice Murray asked what was the matter.

"Your Honor," exclaimed Mr. Hathaway, "this prisoner has been brought to this court, and stands charged with an offence. I appear for him, plead that he is innocent, and demand an investigation."

Justice Murray said: "There is no charge here before me. I have nothing to do with that man, and the officers may remove him."

Counsellor Hathaway—Your Honor, in accordance with the provisions of the new code, these officers cannot touch that man in this court so long as he demands an examination.

"I know nothing about the case," repeated Justice Murray. "The prisoner is in the charge of the police, and they are responsible."

Marks was removed by the detective, and at the afternoon session of the court the detective informed Justice Murray that Marks had been discharged from custody by Judge Donohue.

Lawyer Hathaway, in explanation, says: "I obtained a writ of habeas corpus and had the prisoner arraigned before Judge Donohue. There I made solemn asseveration as to the procedure in court. Judge Donohue took up my papers and decided that so long as the prisoner had been arraigned before a police magistrate, and as there was no evidence before him that the magistrate had taken any cognizance of the case, then it was to be presumed that the accused was innocent, and he would therefore discharge him."

Politics in the Seventh District.

A meeting of the General Committee of the Seventh Assembly District, lately expelled from Tammany Hall, was held on Thursday at 5 East Twelfth street. Resolutions were adopted setting forth that, "whereas, John Kelly has expelled from the Fourteenth street building, of which he is the landlord and the boss, the regularly elected committee of the Seventh Assembly District, and appointed instead a committee of his own choosing;" and, whereas, "the real cause was that our Chairman, William R. Roberts, opposed the further use of the organization by Kelly, as though it were his personal property, for the advancement of his personal interests and the gratification of his personal hates," the committee deems it "cause for congratulation that out of forty-three members of this committee only eight were found so recreant to principle and the Democratic party as to accept a place on Kelly's committee of slaves;" and "that having been elected for one year, we will continue to act as the General Committee of the district, and to labor for the success of the Democratic party and Democratic principles."

Grief, the Heat, and Brandy.

Policeman Powers on Thursday night was called into the tenement house at 165 West Fifty-first street, to arrest Mrs. Mary Butler, who was standing over the dead body of her husband, which was in an ice box. She was much excited and struck the corpse several blows in the face. She also attacked her daughter with a chair. The policeman had difficulty in setting her to the Forty-seventh street station house. Yesterday she was arraigned in the Yorkville Police Court. She explained her strange conduct to Justice Power by saying that her husband had died of the effects of the heat on Wednesday and that she, through grief and the heat, had become half crazy. She admitted that she had drunk some brandy, which had also affected her. The Justice discharged her on the promise that she would drink no more.

Ex-Policeman Nugent Bailed.

The first application for admission to bail in a case involving a penalty of more than five years, in accordance with the new code, was made yesterday to Recorder Smyth in the General Sessions. Counsel for ex-Policeman John Nugent, who was committed in the Jefferson Market Police Court on Wednesday, without bail, to await the action of the Grand Jury upon the charge of assaulting an ex-barkeeper in his saloon, in West Houston street, said that the new code required that application to admit Nugent to bail must be made to a Judge of the General Sessions. Nugent, he added, was prepared to give bail in a reasonable amount, and had a responsible bondsman in court. Recorder Smyth fixed the bail at $1,500, and John H. Dean of 123 West Houston street, becoming surety in that amount, Nugent was released.

Barricading a Door to Avoid Arrest.

Detective Schmittberger yesterday arraigned before Justice Smith, in the Jefferson Market Police Court, James Charlton, 22 years of age, against whom Moses Cherry, a trunk maker, of 592 Sixth avenue, preferred a charge of embezzlement. Charlton, who had been in Cherry's employ for several months, three weeks ago disappeared, after collecting $120 belonging to Cherry. Detectives traced him to a house in Sixth avenue, but he escaped them by jumping from a three-story window. Yesterday morning Detective Schmittberger found him in room 9 in the lodging house at 288 Sixth avenue. Charlton barricaded the door with a dressing stand and four chairs. The detective forced his way in and arrested him. Justice Smith held Charlton.

The Body of a Murderer and Suicide.

It was learned on Thursday that John Kempel, who, after killing his wife and setting fire to the house hanged himself in his wagon shed, had a mother residing at Asteria. She was asked what she would have done with the body. She sent word to Undertaker Everitt that she would have nothing to do with it, and that the authorities could do as they wished. A similar reply was received from an association of which Kempel was a member. The body was buried yesterday morning in the Potter's Field at East Jamaica.

A New Sound Steamboat.

A new steamboat of over 3,000 tons burden, built for the Providence and Stonington Steamboat Company, and named the Rhode Island, was launched at Noank, Conn., on Thursday last. She will be brought to New York to receive her boilers and machinery, and for the work on her decorations and interior arrangements. She will run on alternate days with the Massachusetts.

Charged with Stealing a Loaded Truck.

Detectives Keirns and English of Capt. Petty's command yesterday arraigned before Justice Murray, in the Essex Market Police Court, Michael McCabe and William Farrell, charged with stealing a horse, truck, and case of goods. The truck had been left standing for a few minutes in East Broadway, and thieves drove off with it. The accused were held for trial.

Heat and Mortality.

One hundred and sixty-eight deaths were reported to the Bureau of Vital Statistics yesterday. This is double the average daily death rate. About twenty deaths were due directly to the heat, while a large proportion of the others were doubtless accelerated by the same cause. The increased mortality was principally confined to the very old and very young.

Wenzel's Painting and Williams's Ear.

Frank Wenzel, a painter, 28 years old, in the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday, was held in $500 bail on the complaint of William Williams of 543 East Sixteenth street, part of whose left ear he had bitten off. The men quarrelled on Thursday over the merits of some painting done by Wenzel. A fight ensued, in which Williams was bitten.

He Wanted a Drink.

William Crystle of Staten Island occasioned disturbance in Tony Pastor's Theatre on Thursday night. By calling out every few minutes that he was going out to take a drink. He made no attempt to go. A policeman at length took him out. He was fined $10 yesterday in the Jefferson Market Police Court.

CONQUERED PERU.

Discussing Terms of Peace with the Conqueror—Pierola Resigning the Dictatorship.

PANAMA, Aug. 31.—Advices from Lima are to Aug. 19. The Peruvian Congress at Chorillos has held only informal and unimportant meetings lately. It seems to have settled on the terms of peace to which it will accede, and under them President Calderon is acting. There has been a meeting between a representative of the provisional Government and Señor Godoy, at which terms of peace were certainly discussed. This is supposed to have led to Señor Godoy's departure for Santiago, he being the diplomatic representative of Chili in Lima. It is known that the Peruvian Congress is adverse to the cession of territory; but Chili is in possession of the most valuable part of the south, where Chilians outnumber Peruvians three to one; so that, were a vote taken, a change of ownership in the territory would result. In Lima and Callao, as throughout the north, there is a feeling of alarm at the withdrawal of the Chilian troops as a result of peace. The Montaneros would then have full swing, and they would leave the poorer trans-Andean towns and unite for the sack of Lima.

Meanwhile the National Assembly convoked by Pierola has met at Ayacucho, and been formally opened by the ex-dictator in a speech, which showed no abatement of dictatorial pretensions. He begins by declaring Peru to be overwhelmed by misfortune, with its capital in the hands of the enemy, into whose power it fell after the battles of Chorillos and Miraflores, and who now occupies a portion of the coast, while his vessels blockade all the ports. The disasters at the gates of Lima were "simple military episodes," which in no way prevent the war being continued, to which end every measure possible has been adopted during the past six months. Pierola claims that, as dictator, he has acted honorably and patriotically and for the benefit of the country, and that in this conviction, although he has been successful, he resigns the position of dictator conferred upon him by the people, and will retire into private life.

The question of peace with Peru has been frequently before the Chilian Congress, and the opinion seems to be almost unanimous that if terms be not at once arrived at, the bands in the interior should be followed up. The minority urge a close blockade of the whole coast and the withdrawal of the troops to Tacna and Tarapaca, leaving the north in uncontrolled possession of the Peruvians.

Two Daughters Kill their Father.

DANVILLE, Va., Sept. 9.—Near Whitmill, in this county, yesterday, Robert Williams and his wife had a quarrel, whereupon the wife left home, and went to a neighboring magistrate and obtained a warrant for the arrest of Williams. The magistrate appointed Williams's own son as a special constable to execute the warrant. On the arrival at Williams's house with the warrant, the dead body of Williams was found lying upon a bed quilt in the yard. His head had been nearly cut from the body with an axe which was lying beside it. No living person was found in the house, but it was ascertained that two daughters of Williams who had been left with him by their mother when she went for the warrant had fled after having perpetrated the murder, and have not yet been arrested. Williams was an educated man, of good family, but addicted to drink, and dangerous when drunk.

A Big Grape Crop Along the Hudson.

MARLBOROUGH, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The grape growers along the Hudson valley are now busily engaged in shipping that fruit in large quantities. About ten days ago the first shipments of the season were made, but the fruit shipped was but ordinary, the finer varieties being yet unripe. The prospects are that the grape crop will be the largest ever shipped from the Hudson river valley unless cut off by premature frosts. Fully nine-tenths of the river yield of grapes is picked from Concord vines. Individual growers will ship from fifty to sixty tons each, and the total crop marketed from the river vineyards will be many thousands of tons.

A Long Canoe Voyage.

QUEBEC, Sept. 8—J. Galbraith, a civil engineer and well-known voyageur, arrived at Tadousac yesterday, having completed a canoe voyage through the Hudson Bay Territory. Starting from Lake Superior on the 21st of June, he travelled down to the Moose Factory, then coasted along James Bay to Rupert's House, thence up Rupert's River to Lake Mistassini, thence to a height of land where he struck the source of the Saguenay, thence by way of Lake St. John to Tadousac, having traveled 1,270 miles and made sixty camps, employing five different Indian crews.
