COLLISIONS IN THE DENSE FOG.

The Steamer Massachusetts Run Into—An Odd Double-end Mishap.

For three hours after 6 o'clock yesterday morning a dense fog hung over the city, the rivers, and the bay. The air was clear when the sun rose, and the fog settled suddenly. It was especially impenetrable on the North River, because the smoke from the fires in the New Jersey meadows added to the darkness. The Hoboken ferryboats took from half to three-quarters of an hour to cross. The Roosevelt street boats stopped running for a time. The South Ferry and Hamilton Ferry boats were so long delayed that their waiting rooms were crowded. The smoke and fog over the Jersey meadows were so thick that trains of the Pennsylvania, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, and New Jersey Central roads were considerably behind time. Lines of drays and carts formed on both sides of the ferries, and a chorus of fog horns and whistles resounded.

At 8 o'clock the steamer Massachusetts of the Providence line, after having slowed up near Williamsburgh and crept around the Battery, came opposite her pier at the foot of Warren street. But as the pier could not be seen Capt. Allan lay to about three lengths off. The Hoboken ferryboat Romsey crashed into the steamer's stern, damaging the steering gear so that it will have to be replaced. The Massachusetts will not be able to make her trips for a day or two. Her Captain says he blew the regular signal to indicate that he was at anchor—three whistles at short intervals. The pilot of the Romsey says he did not hear the whistles until too late to avoid a collision. The railing and the side of the ladies' cabin of the Romsey were slightly damaged.

A curious mishap occurred to the Staten Island ferryboat Middletown. Captain Braisted did not see the head of the New York pier in time to reverse his engines, and ran into the pier bow on. At the same time a tug ran into the stern of the steamer. Some planks on the pier were torn up, but the boat was not damaged.

At 6¾ there was a trifling collision between the Superior of the Roosevelt Street Ferry and the Peconic of the Catharine Ferry. The Peconic of the South Ferry bumped into a schooner, but neither was damaged.

For a Southern College.

The Rev. S. Simpson has been President of Yadkin College, Davidson County, N. C., for eight years and under his administration the college has flourished. The present building is inadequate, and a new building has been commenced. It is to cost, with two wings, $14,000. Of that amount the trustees have $4,500, leaving $9,500 to be subscribed. The college is under the control of the Methodist Protestant Church of North Carolina. President Simpson is now in this city trying to get subscriptions. His appeals are approved by Judge Dick, ex-Gov. Holden, Secretary of State Saunders, Gov. Jarvis, and others. He will be at the Astor House, Spring and Crosby streets, for about two weeks.

Dry Monopole.

It may be interesting to the wine trade to know that the sale of the well-known brand of Dry Monopole extra champagne will receive a fresh impetus by the appointment of Messrs. Gonzales, Byass & Co., 39 Broadway, as sole agents and representatives of its shippers, Messrs. Heidsieck & Co., Reims, who have been established in that city since 1785. Messrs. Gonzales, Byass & Co., are well known as among the largest sherry shippers at Jerez, and their wines enjoy a reputation in all the markets of the world.
