TRYING THE CANADIAN YACHT.

Beaten by the Gracie, but with Disadvantages that Made the Test Unfair.

The Canadian sloop Atalanta came off the dock at Jersey City about 9 A. M. yesterday. Her hull presented a much better appearance than when she went on, being planed, painted, and potleaded clear up to her plank shear. Gammoning had been put on her bowsprit to strengthen a weak spot on the bobstay, and an immense balloon jib and storm jib added to her canvas, to prepare her equally for light or heavy weather. Her gaff topsail is jib-headed with a very long sprit, but has not a club like American racing topsails.

"This is not an imported model from the United States," said Capt. Cuthbert: "it is my own entirely. We carry twenty-eight tons gross of iron ore ballast. I ought to know; I paid $6 a ton for it. It appears large for a boat of such small comparative displacement, but we have no ceiling and have heavy keelsons. If the Atalanta had lead ballast her floor could be lowered eight inches or more."

At 3 P. M. the Canadian, with a large party on board, started under tow. At the mouth of the Cove the mainsail and jib were hoisted.

"Run up the colors," said Capt. Cuthbert as he took his place at the iron tiller. The British ensign was run up at the peak, and the club and private signal were shown at the topmast. The yacht was saluted by many craft on her way down the bay. Her crew is partly Corinthian. In addition to Capt. Alex. Cuthbert and the old man-of-war's man, Capt. Nick Daud, are Messrs. W. B. Phelps, Jr., W. S. Stone, and J. B. Donnelly of the Oswego Yacht Club, Secretary Richard S. Bell of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, and ex-Senator Mattoon. These, with half a dozen Canadians, compose the crew. On board also yesterday were Edith and Lizzie James, the pretty nieces of Capt. Cuthbert.

After a short stretch on the starboard tack the Canadian went about on the port tack for a long leg. The wind was fresh from east-southeast, and the tide a strong ebb. She slipped along with an easy, graceful motion which pleased all on board. She parts the water easily and leaves it cleanly without any drag. She is certainly very stiff, for, though the centreboard was jammed and could not be lowered, it was only occasionally that the water boiled in her scuppers, or that she heeled to her plank shear. Near Fort Hamilton she went about to return.

The Gracie was waiting for her near Bay Ridge, and at 4:25 went about and hauled on her lee. Both were on the starboard tack, and a rattling race ensued. Foot by foot, however, the pretty Gracie ran through the Canadian's lee, and in less than ten minutes came out ahead. She then jibed over to try it free. The Canadian made a North River jibe, which would prove dangerous off the Lightship, and the Gracie increased her lead. This was, however, scarcely a fair test for the Atalanta, as she had no centreboard down and was out of trim from having so many passengers aboard.

"I am satisfied," said Capt. Cuthbert, cheerily, as the Atalanta came to anchor off the Atlantic Yacht Club house, Bay Ridge, for the night. Sailing regulations were agreed upon yesterday between Secretary Bell of the Canadian Club and Mr. Krebs of the America Cup Committee. If any accident happens, the races will not be play or pay, but time will be given for necessary repairs, though everything goes after a race is once started. At the weather bureau it was thought last night that there would be an easterly storm to-day.

"She's a marvel; she's a wonder," said an enthusiastic portly gentleman, as he tumbled over the side of the Canadian into a small boat alongside.

"She'll be a marvel and a wonder, taking everything by and large that I have seen on this 'ere craft this day, if she ever gets around Sandy Hook Lightship to-morrow without something giving way in the southeaster that's brewing," remarked a cynical veteran yachtsman, as he bent on his umbrella.

RUNAWAY BRITISH SOLDIERS.

Found Stowed Away in a Norwegian Bark, whose Captain they Intimidated.

The bark Plymouth, belonging in Digby and sailing from Bristol, England, reached this port yesterday, bringing a cargo of pig iron to Snow & Burgess, at 66 South street. On Sept. 26 the Plymouth fell in with another bark, which signalled to her to stop. The Plymouth hove to, and a boat put off from the stranger and approached her. In the boat were three men—the mate and two seamen. The mate came aboard the Plymouth. He said that his craft was the Professor Schweigaard, a Norwegian, six days out from the Irish port of Kinsale, and bound for Charleston. When four days out four British soldiers were discovered stowed away in the forepeak. The master of the Norwegian, Capt. Holversen, wished at once to return to Kinsale, but the soldiers threatened him and deterred him from so doing, a number of the bark's crew taking sides with them. He was forced to continue his course, and two days later fell in with the Plymouth. The mate had now come, he said, to ask for some firearms and ammunition, there being none on the Schweigaard. He had acted with the Captain's acquiescence, and the two had hoodwinked the soldiers and the rebellious sailors by pretending that they were short of provisions and were going to procure some. The mate asked also for a bag of biscuit, in order that the deception might be still further carried out. Capt. Holversen, he said, has his wife aboard, and was much alarmed for her safety.

Capt. Lawrence gave the mate two revolvers, with ammunition, and the bag of biscuit as requested. The boat then returned to the Schweigaard, and the Plymouth resuming her course, the barks duir lost sight of each other.

Arriving in this port yesterday Capt. Lawrence found a letter from Capt. Holversen awaiting him. It was dated from Kinsale on Sept. 28, and said simply that the Norwegian bark had reversed her course and arrived without accident at Kinsale. He named two days after her meeting with the Plymouth; that the four soldiers had been handed over to the authorities, and that the writer would pay Capt. Lawrence for the pistols on arriving out at Charleston, whither the Schweigaard would proceed immediately.

PASTOR SIMPSON'S WITHDRAWAL.

Presbytery Relenses him, Dr. Hall Expressing a Hope that he May Return.

The Rev. Mr. Simpson, who announced to his congregation in the Thirteenth Street Presbyterian Church on Sunday that he had changed his views of baptism and had determined to become an undenominational, evangelical missionary among the poor, explained to the Presbytery yesterday the reasons for his withdrawal from the Church, and asked to be released. The Rev. Dr. Farkhurst presided, and Dr. John Hall and Dr. Howard Crosby were among the clergymen present. The meeting was to the Presbyterian church in Fourteenth street, near Sixth avenue.

Dr. Hall made a few remarks in a friendly spirit, in which all present appeared to share. He said they all hoped Mr. Simpson would come to think differently of his present determination and perhaps find after a while that he could consistently return to the Presbytery. This resolution was then adopted without dissent:

"That the Rev. A. B. Simpson, having stated to the Presbytery that he had been led to convictions on the subject of baptism that necessitate his resignation of membership in the Presbytery and in the Church, his name be dropped from our roll; and that this is done without any reflection on his character, and with a full recognition of his ministerial character."

Immersion in Egypt and Turkey.

At the Baptist Ministers' meeting yesterday Brother Averill, late of Lancaster, Texas, said that his people at Lancaster wouldn't have him because they had found out that he had not been baptized by a regularly ordained minister. "So I'm going to Egypt," he added.

"For what Missionary Society do you go?" asked the Rev. Dr. Parmly of Jersey City.

"I'm going to preach on my own hock," replied Brother Averill.

"Are you really going to Egypt to preach by yourself on the banks of the Nile?" ejaculated the Rev. Dr. Parmly.

"Bless your heart, no," said Brother Averill. "I mean Beyrut, Texas."

Secretary Gumbart announced that on Sunday evening he had baptized the Rev. Garabed Kaprielian, an Armenian, who will go back to Turkey shortly and preach immersion.

Shot by his Room Mate.

Frank Dolinger and George Wamback, who occupied the same room at 507 Tenth avenue, are, ordinarily, good friends, but recently they quarrelled. Both were drinking on Sunday night, and they went to their room shortly after midnight. They were heard disputing, and the landlord was going to their apartments to warn them not to make any disturbance when he heard the report of a pistol. He burst into the room, and found Wamback leaning against the wall, bleeding from a wound in his left arm. The injured man was taken to the Roosevelt Hospital, where his wound was dressed, and his assailant was arrested. Yesterday Dolinger was held by Justice Smith in Jefferson Market Police Court, on a charge of felonious assault, and locked up in default of $500 bail.

Central's Fast Train to Chicago.

The New York Central's first twenty-five-hour train to Chicago started punctually at 8 o'clock yesterday morning from the Grand Central Depot. It was made up of a baggage car, a coach, two sleepers, and a drawing-room car, with Henry Millmann's engine No. 224. Few passengers had taken seats for intermediate stations. Tickets to Chicago only are sold unless there are seats to intermediate stations unused five minutes before the train starts, and few such seats were sold yesterday. Up to late yesterday afternoon the train was running on time. From Buffalo the train carries mail matter which leaves New York with the 4:45 A. M. train. The last train from Chicago, leaving for the first time to-morrow afternoon, is slower.

An Aged Waif.

A very old woman, who says that she is Mrs. Eagan, but who does not know where she lives, was found wandering on Second avenue, near Fifty-second street, yesterday afternoon. Yesterday Justice Court Justice Wandell committed her to the care of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction.

Killed by an Oyster Counter.

Fred Sternberger of 88 Central avenue, Jersey City, the owner of the oyster counter which fell on the boy, Willie Ellenberger, and killed him, a few days ago, was yesterday held in answer the charge of manslaughter. He was admitted to bail in $5,000.

MANY LIVES PUT IN PERIL.

A Brooklyn Shopkeeper Accused of Setting Fire to his Store.

When the firemen responded to the alarm calling them to James J. Hearn's fancy goods store at 105 Grand street, Brooklyn, on Sunday night, they found two fires burning in the store, some distance apart. The flames were extinguished after they had caused $200 damage to the stock, which was insured in the Liverpool and London Company for $1,200.

Upon information furnished by John Bodine and his wife, the Fourth street police arrested Hearn on a charge of arson. Mr. Bodine said that he and his wife were standing in front of Hearn's store just before the fire was discovered, talking to some friends, and that he saw Hearn moving about in the store behind a counter, and saw him light a match. He threw the match behind the counter, and then ran out of the rear door. Mr. Bodine attempted to force open the door, but was unable to do so. An examination of the stock yesterday showed that there was not over $300 worth there. The building is a frame tenement, and several families occupy the upper stories. Hearn was committed to jail, and bail was refused.

DELUGING THE OLD GUARD ARMORY.

A Fire Overhead that Put Sixty Sewing Girls in Momentary Peril.

Sixty sewing girls were at work on the third floor of the four-story building on the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street when a cry of fire was raised late yesterday afternoon. Deutsch, Shottick & Deutsch, manufacturers of quilted goods and fine sewed work, occupied the floor. A roll of cotton batting had caught fire from a gas jet. There was consternation among the girls for a few moments, but all escaped safely to Fourteenth street. Many were obliged to leave their wraps behind. The third and fourth floors were soon ablaze, but were drowned out with about $2,000 damage to the building. The top floor was occupied by Ivan A Mossmer, gilders and manufacturers of picture frames. Their stock was almost entirely destroyed.

The armory of the Old Guard is on the second floor. It was deluged with water, and many of the fine white uniform coats and famous bearskin shakos were ruined. The armory was extensively fitted up with costly carpets, furniture, and pictures. There were paintings of Washington and Lincoln, portraits of Major George W. McLean, and other officers of the Guard, antique and modern complimentary resolutions presented to the corps, more than 100 stand of arms, and many flags and keepsakes. All these were partly insured in the Guardian Insurance Company for $2,500. The officers of the Guard at present are Major G. W. McLean, commanding; Capt. G. A. Fuller, Lieuts. H. L. Parris, R. S. Hallin, L. C. Burr, and Walter Faye. There are about 150 members, mostly veterans whose term of military service has expired. Among them are members of the Stock Exchange.

The building was formerly part of the Spinger estate, and was once occupied by Brewster & Co. as a carriage mart. It is now owned by Mr. Gebhard, and is insured. George Hellen's sample room on the ground floor was much damaged by water, and was insured.

Untimely Arrest of a Politician.

Charles Smith, a harness maker at 195 Wooster street, was arrested yesterday on a charge of receiving goods stolen from H. B. Claflin & Co. A roll of silk was found at his lodging. Arthur Levine, one of the three prisoners arrested on Sunday night for the theft from Claflin & Co., was formerly employed by Smith, and put the police upon his track. Smith is Chairman of a west side Republican organization, and one of his political friends called at Republican Central Office yesterday to arrange for Smith's release on bail this morning, so that he may serve his party at the polls.

SURROGATE CALVIN ENDORSED BY THE NEW YORK BAR, WHEN ITS MEMBERS WERE INFLUENCED ONLY BY MERIT, NOT POLITICS.
NEW YORK, April 12, 1881.
TO HON. DELANO C. CALVIN, SURROGATE OF NEW YORK.
DEAR SIR: We, the undersigned as members of the Bar have, during your entire judicial career since your accession to the responsible position of Surrogate of the county of New York, noted the ability, impartiality and efficiency with which you have discharged your official duties, and wish to add their meed of commendation to the general satisfaction expressed by parties having business in your court, and the public generally. For such reason, we are desirous of enjoying your presence at a social entertainment when we can personally express our high estimation of your judicial and personal character.
We therefore cordially request, irrespective of every political consideration, the pleasure of your company at dinner at Delmonico's at as early a day as your official duties and personal convenience will permit. As the 21st of April, inst., will be the anniversary of your accession to the Judgeship of your court, we would, if agreeable to yourself, suggest that day as a suitable time for the dinner. With much regard, yours truly and cordially.
