REMOVAL.—We have removed our printing office from Pajo street to the new building on Ryan street, opposite the residence of Mr. C. Schindler.

We regret to learn that Prof. A. Albert is going to leave shortly. Those wishing old pictures enlarged or their photographs taken, should call at once.

I have a full line of the best Sewing Machines in the market, for sale at low prices, and terms to suit. Samples can be seen and read at Mrs. T. Mayo's, or at residence. JNO. H. POE.

NOTICE TO WHOM IT CONCERNS. The Sewing Machine which was disposed of at the Fair held in August, under the management of the Ladies of the Altar, will be raffled next Thursday, December 8th, at 6 o'clock P. M., in the store of E. Kaiser & Co.

We publish elsewhere a description of the new saw and planing mill recently built by Platz & Moss, on the bank of the Lake, near town. This mill will be quite an acquisition to the business of the town. We are always pleased to see enterprise and evidences of success around us, for when everybody does well, we are sure to get our share of the crumbs that fall from the tables of our better-to-do neighbors.

The Entertainment given last Saturday night by the Magnolia Club, for the benefit of the "Wiltz Fund," was a complete success. "Doodles" was repeated, and as we saw, two weeks ago, a slight deterioration of the performance of it at the Club, it is unnecessary to say anything more about it, than that it lost nothing by being repeated. The "Mummy" gave universal satisfaction. Miss Mollie and Miss Lucy Mayo, as Susan and May, did extremely well, in view of the fact that owing to the illness of Miss Lillie Johnson, they were cast for these parts on Friday evening, and had but one rehearsal in which Capt. Tom Reynolds as Mandragon, looked as old as Methuselah, but he is too young a fellow to act so old a part. Paul Mayau, as Larry Brathershin, was excellent. John H. Poe, as Capt. Tramp, walked the board as if he were at home, and Thad. Mayo, as Old Man Tramp, (The Mummy) made a very lively cadavre. L. C. Touchy, as Old Man Tramp, looked and acted as if he were a natural born cad.

A New Species of Horse. [Scientific American.] The Annals and Magazine of Natural History for July contains a translation of a Russian paper, in which M. Poliakov brings forward a mass of evidence in proof of the existence of a hitherto unknown species of horse not far from Zaisan, in Central Asia. The animal appears to resemble a small domestic horse, of a dun color; its head is large in proportion to the size of the animal; and the root of its tail is destitute of long hairs for some distance. M. Poliakov names his supposed new species Equus Przewalskii, in honor of the traveller who brought the skin to Russia. He regards it as a true horse, and remarks that "if it were possible to prove that culture influenced the growth of the tail, and that this become more hairy, and the mane longer, under altered conditions of life." It might be affirmed that "it was indeed the animal whose ancestors were reclaimed by man in the stone period, the so-called domestic horse of our day.

Mr. P. Schindler, from Hempstead, Texas, brother of our esteemed fellow townsman Casper Schindler, with his wife and three children, arrived in town yesterday morning. Mr. Schindler is on his way to Atlanta, Ga., and his family will remain here until his return.

C. T. Perkins, Esq., of Vermilionville, arrived Tuesday night, and on Wednesday evening met his daughter, the latest arrival in town. We have not yet had the pleasure of a call from Miss Perkins, but our "devil" says he will try and make himself agreeable to the young lady, in about 16 years. Judge John Clegg, of Vermilionville, came over last Monday night. He came to try a case in which Judge S. D. Read had recused himself and referred to Judge Clegg. The Judge finished his labors in the case on Tuesday, and returned home Wednesday morning, much pleased with the place and surroundings.

Qualification of Jurors.

[Philadelphia Press.]

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania declared in a case brought before it last week that it is not one of the requisite qualifications of a juror that he has never heard of the case he is to try, nor even that he shall not have read about it in the newspapers and formed some impressions on what he has heard; it is necessary only that he shall be able to decide according to the evidence submitted to him. This reasonable rule was applied by the court at Washington in the Guiteau case, Judge Cox remarking that in these days of newspapers, when all intelligent men who can read at all are accustomed to read the news of the day, it is not the best evidence of a juror's qualification that he knows nothing about the case; it is sufficient that he can render an impartial verdict on the evidence.
