FRATRICIDE IN MOTT STREET.

Two Brothers' Fatal Dispute as to who Should be Master of the Household.

Louis Kella, janitor of the rear tenement at 139 Mott street, told Policeman Maloney of the Mulberry street squad, at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, that an Italian was dying in a room in the second story of his premises of a wound suffered in a fight the night before. The policeman found a man there at the point of death, surrounded by half a dozen men, women, and children, all asleep. Blood was flowing from a wound in the left temple of the dying man. Before the sleepers could be aroused the man died. The inmates of the room, together with Kella, were taken as prisoners to the Mulberry street station, where the following version of the tragedy, so far as the Italians could make themselves understood, was obtained:

The occupants of the single squalid room in the Mott street rear tenement were Nicholas and Antonio Caferal, brothers, Philomena and Maria, their wives, Domenic and Liberato Caferal, cousins to the first named, and several children. They were eating supper at about 11 P. M. Sunday, when Nicholas and Antonio, both of whom were drunk, quarreled as to who was to "run" the house during the coming year. Each boasted his superior qualifications, until Antonio brazen so loudly that Nicholas leaping enraged, seized a knife by the throat, began to choke him. While the brothers struggle their wives tried to part them. Nicholas resented their interference, and taking hold of Philomena's finger with his teeth, bit it until she screamed. Antonio, to avenge his wife's hurt, struck his brother on the temple with a sharp-pointed poker, severing an artery. The sight of Nicholas's blood put an end to the fight, but no one thought of calling for medical assistance, and all went to bed, leaving Nicholas to stanch the flow of blood as well as he could with a towel. This served but poorly for the purpose, and the man died in death.

When Deputy Coroner Waterman saw his body yesterday, he said that not only was the wound inflicted by Antonio not necessarily fatal, but that he could not have died from it had the blood been properly stanched.

Coroner Herrman committed Antonio and his wife to the Tombs, and Domenic and Liberato Caferal and Kella for detention as witnesses.

Nicholas Caferal was a laborer, and had been five years in this country. He had been married only a few months.

TO BE ARRESTED.

The Aldermen who Defied the Supreme Court to be Put on the Defensive.

Application will be made this morning to Justice Gilbert by David Barnett, the counsel for the property owners in whose suit the Brooklyn Aldermen were enjoined from overriding the veto of Mayor Howell to the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad scheme, to have the seventeen Aldermen who defied the order of the Court arrested and punished for contempt. The papers, including the necessary affidavits and the certified copy of the proceedings of the Aldermen on Saturday, when they locked themselves up and acted in spite of the injunction against them, have all been prepared.

Some of the Aldermen are said to have gone to New Jersey yesterday, but a number of those in the combination were about the City Hall, apparently not in the least anxious about the result of their defiance of the Supreme Court. It is believed that Justice Gilbert will at once direct Sheriff Siegman to arrest Messrs. Dwyer, McCarty, Kane, Weir, O'Connell, Casey, Donovan, Le Pine, Doyle, Allison, Schmitt, Waters, Bowers, Roberts, Seaman, Kelly, and Armitage, and that he will not permit them to escape with a fine only. The counsel for the petitioners will insist upon imprisonment. It is understood that the Aldermen will claim that they were falsely informed that Justice Gilbert had vacated the injunction, and that their action was in good faith. The facts obtained by Mr. Barnett, tending to show that influences constituting a violation of the law were used to secure the franchise, will be laid this week before District Attorney Catlin, and he will be asked to bring the Aldermen's action to the attention of the Grand Jury.

The names of a number of influential residents of Brooklyn are connected with the elevated railroad company to which the Aldermen have, by their action, given color of title to the use of Fulton street, Myrtle avenue, Broadway, and other streets, and the friends of the combination say that there is money enough to pay the fines of all of the seventeen and to employ counsel to keep them out of prison.

Justice Gilbert's injunction will now be modified so as to prevent the receivers from taking any action under the alleged franchise.

AFIRE IN THE BAY.

A Blazing Tugboat Under Full Steam—Capt. Brandon's Nerve.

The tug Leader left Red Hook at about 4½ yesterday morning with the schooner Daisy Parkhurst in tow for Poughkeepsie. Just as the tug was off Bedloe's Island and heading for the North River, George Sheehan, the deck hand, rushed up to the pilot house and called to Capt. John A. Brandon that the boat was afire over the boiler. A moment later the engineer, Fred Gerting, Frank Adams, fireman, and Tommy Taylor, steward, were seen hurrying forward. Suddenly the flames burst forth and almost enveloped the pilot house. The Captain stood at his post, for, in the fierce gust that was sweeping over the bay, the only chance of safety lay in keeping the tug. The schooner's hawser was cut and the tug headed for the south shore of Governor's Island. Two men launched the lifeboat and jumped into her, but she drifted away before oars could be thrown in. Meanwhile the tug sped over the waters enveloped in flames. The wind caught her astern and swept the flames toward the pilot house. The Captain called to the engineer and the fireman to drive the flames back with buckets of water, as it was getting dangerous to remain in the pilot house. The men poured water on the flames and kept them back until the boat struck the Governor's Island shore. The captain was obliged to jump from the front window of the pilot house. A boat which had put off from the island took the men ashore. The tug burned to the water's edge. She belonged to H. K. White of 23 South street, and the engineer. The schooner anchored off Bedloe's Island. The lifeboat drifted to Governor's Island.

SEAMEN AT DINNER.

How Mrs. and Dr. Thoms Entertain the Sailors in Port on New Year's Day.

"Happy New Year, Dr. Thoms!" said two rosy cheeked cabin boys, as they entered the Nautical School, 92 Madison street, at noon yesterday, where the widow of William Thoms, the famous navigator, and his son prepare every New Year's a dinner, to which all the seamen in port are invited. Washington Market dealers, Mr. Holmes, and others had sent loads of poultry, fruit, cakes, and crackers, and a long table was tastefully set in the school room. The guests did not come in a body, for the house was open to them from noon until half past 9 at night. Friends came in pairs or in larger numbers, and all had the same hearty greeting and parting good wishes for the year for Dr. Thoms and his mother. Among those who came were many old graduates of the school, now captains or owners of vessels. There were Germans, Scandinavians, and other foreigners. Yesterday they had just as much turkey, crackers, cake, coffee, tea, and hot lemonade as they wanted. In the thirty years since the first dinner was given 15,000 seamen have dined there on New Year's day, and yesterday about a thousand added their names to the register. Some of them had not been there for many years, having been in other ports on New Year's; but they had pleasant memories of the place, and came again. Letters from graduates in foreign ports were also received.

George Washington's New Year's Present.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., Jan. 2.—George Washington, a colored man in the employ of the Newburgh, Dutchess and Connecticut Railroad Company at Dennystown Junction, this town, has been presented by his wife with triplets. One is a girl and two are boys. The girl weighs 7 pounds 12 ounces, one boy 6 pounds and the other 5 pounds 12 ounces. The mother is 40 years old and is married for the second time. A public spirited citizen will see to it that the boys are properly cared for in the Newburgh Home for Friendless Children, Matteawan, at which they will be established in the public.

Court Calendars This Day.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.—First Monday [illegible]

[illegible]

DISTRICT ATTORNEY M'KEON.

His Assistants Sworn and a New Assistant Appointed.

District Attorney John McKeon and his assistants, John R. Fellows, A. J. Requier, John Vincent, and John O'Byrne entered the Clerk's office of the Court of General Sessions at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. They met Recorder Smyth there. Mr. McKeon introduced his assistants informally. Then Recorder Smyth administered the oath of office to the assistants. Mr. McKeon having been previously sworn in in the Supreme Court. Deputy Clerk Henry Weish then took the certificate of the appointment of the assistants to the County Clerk's office. During the ceremony of swearing in, the desires of the new officials were regaled with the fragrance of a superb flower piece, an overflowing basket that stood on the Clerk's desk. The flowers were sent to District Attorney McKeon by his assistants. Recorder Smyth entered Part I of the General Sessions, and the crier proclaimed the court open. Entering the bar, Mr. McKeon and his assistants ranged themselves before the bench. Then Mr. McKeon formally introduced himself and his assistants. Recorder Smyth next went up to Part II of the court and the formalities were repeated. Mr. McKeon led the way to the District Attorney's office and took possession. He assigned their respective rooms to the assistants. Ex-Assistant District Attorney Lyon had some down town business to settle officially on hand. He was the sole representative of the outgoing Republican administration. Mr. McKeon announced that he had decided to appoint James M. Brady, a lawyer lately in practice at 7 Murray street, Deputy Assistant District Attorney. Mr. McKeon secured the calendars for both parts of the General Sessions, which resume business today. Recorder Smyth will preside in Part I and Judge Cowing in Part II. Mr. McKeon decided to appear in person as prosecutor in Part I, assisted by Mr. Requier, and assigned Col. Fellows and Mr. O'Byrne to Part 2.

Then Mr. McKeon and his assistants, with Recorder Smyth, set out for the Tombs with a view to seeing its condition and learning the number of prisoners awaiting trial.

Mr. Brady, the future Deputy Assistant District Attorney, is a son-in-law of the late Silas C. Herring, the safe manufacturer. He was formerly a Captain in the Twelfth Regiment.

THE NORTHAM AFLOAT AGAIN.

Using Dynamite to Break Away the Rock, and Floating her Off on Pontoons.

The steamboat C. H. Northam ran ashore on the rocks just south of Blackwell's Island on Tuesday night of last week, on her way to New Haven. Her bow was stove in on the port side, and she seemed in danger of rolling over from the rock on which she rested into the deep water on her starboard side. Measures were taken to prevent this, and yesterday morning she was floated. Just before low tide on Monday morning holes were drilled into the great rock alongside the Northam, and the natural crevices in the rock also were charged with dynamite. Altogether seven blasts were fired, and enough of the rock was blown away to float a pontoon to the port bow of the boat. Capt. Merritt of the wrecking company said that if the Government would order it he'd "blow the devil out of that rock." The venerable and amiable Capt. Peck, superintendent of the company, who has been on board the Northam night and day since she struck, said he wished he was the Government, to order it. The pontoons were floated into place on both sides of the bow at 10 o'clock Sunday night, when the water was at half tide. By 2 in the morning the chains were drawn tightly under the bows, and as the tide rose the pontoons raised the boat. An anchor weighing two tons, with a nine-inch hawser, was dropped into the deep water astern, and a steam purchase was had on this. Then four tugs took stern lines, and at about 8 o'clock yesterday morning they began pulling. At 9 o'clock the bow of the Northam had raised so far that she floated. The four tugs puffed and snorted, and presently the steamboat moved slowly off the rocks into the deep water astern.

Previous to pulling her off a temporary bulkhead had been built just back of the leak, which was directly behind the forward bulkhead. The two pumps on the main deck were worked at about half speed to control the leak. The break in the hull was found to be about fifteen feet long, but the timbers of the boat were not, owing to her unusually strong build, strained to any appreciable extent. The damage, Capt. Peck said last night, would not exceed $15,000.

BROOKLYN'S NEW COMMON COUNCIL.

The Directing Hand of Hugh McLaughlin Reported to be Visible.

The new Common Council of the city of Brooklyn met yesterday afternoon, and elected Alderman Seaman Chairman. It at once adjourned until to-day, without transacting any business. The new faces in the Board are those of Aldermen George Sterling of the Second Ward, Dr. Henry J. Menninger of the Fourth Ward, Dr. Owen E. Houghton of the Twentieth Ward, Robert Carson of the Twenty-second Ward, and James H. Ruggles of the Twenty-Second Ward.

The Republicans have a majority of two, and the caucus has decided to support Alderman Theodore D. Dimon of the First Ward as President of the Board, but two of the Republicans, Aldermen Armitage for one and either Le Pine or Baird for the other, will, it is believed, refuse to act with the others. A combination with the Democrats is said to have been made at a caucus which was held on Sunday night, and it was reported yesterday that Alderman Armitage was likely to be elected President of the Board by Democratic votes, and that a division of the minor offices would probably follow. Bets were offered yesterday that Alderman Dimon would not be the next President of the Board.

Mayor Low will send in his message to the Board to-day, and probably he will make some announcements. Hugh McLaughlin is said to be directing the movements of the Democrats in the bargain that is being made, and it is possible that Patrick Tormey will remain the Keeper of the City Hall as usual, and that Dennis McNamara may not be ousted after all.

The new Board of Commissioners of Charities and Correction has organized by the election of Adrian Van Sicien as President and Brewster Kneeson as Treasurer. Warden John Green will continue in charge of the Penitentiary for the present.

A Freight Train in Collision with a Street Car.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 2.—A street car, at the crossing of Virginia avenue and the Union Railway track, was run into by a freight train of the Wabash Railway this morning. Sister Mary Assumption Conroy of St. Mary's Catholic Academy, while attempting to get out of the street car, was thrown under the freight train and instantly killed. One other passenger in the car had his foot crushed.
