DOUBLE HANGING IN ST. LOUIS.

A Wife Murderer Hanged in Canada and an Indian in Washington Territory.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—Thaddeus Baber and William Ward, colored, were hanged in the jail yard this morning. Both men arose early and walked up and down the courtyard for a time, after which they retired to a cell together, and alternately read aloud from the Bible, Ward occasionally singing hymns. The Rev. Drs. Gonz, Boyd, and Clagget visited them soon after 6 o'clock, and remained in the cells praying and exhorting them. Ward was buoyed up with religious fervor, and believed that he would go direct to heaven. Baber also professed to believe. He told one of the guards who rendered him some little kindness, "I'll give you a lift at the other end of heaven." Ward paid no attention to the reading of the death warrant, but read from a Bible held in front of him by the Rev. Dr. Boyd the account of the crucifixion from St. Matthew. Baber also fixed his eyes on a Bible held by the Rev. Mr. Clagget. The arms of the doomed men were then pinioned, and they were marched to the gallows, where the Rev. Dr. Boyd made an eloquent prayer in their behalf. They were then asked if they had anything to say. Ward shook his head. Baber responded: "No, sir; I have nothing to say." Up to the last moment they kept their eyes on the Bible. At twenty-one minutes past 8 the bolt was drawn. Ward died in six minutes, and Baber in eleven. In fifteen minutes the bodies were cut down and taken to the Morgue.

Thaddeus Baber shot and killed Lizzie Schenoler, his mistress, and Frederica Schuenler, her mother, on Aug. 13, 1878. Baber went to their rooms in the evening, shot the old woman as she sat in a chair, and Lizzie as she came out of the room. Lizzie survived two days, but her mother died immediately. Baber was arrested as he was leaving the house. He admitted the shooting, saying, "I am ready to hang to-morrow if the old woman is dead, but I'm sorry I hurt Lizzie."

William Ward was a river man, who shot and killed his sweetheart, Annie Lewis, a pretty colored girl, on Aug. 31, 1878. Annie had refused to marry Ward, having bestowed her affections on another. This made him jealous, and late on Saturday night he called for her at her house, and when she came out he asked her to walk with him. She refused, and he said, "If you don't go you will never see daylight again." Immediately he drew a revolver and fired.

RIMOUSKI, Ont., Jan. 13.—François Moreau, the French Canadian who killed his wife in September last, was hanged in the jail yard here this morning. He mounted the scaffold with a firm step, knelt, and stood up again without aid. He made no reference to his crime. His lips continually moved in prayer. The fall was nine feet. His neck was broken and the head nearly severed from the trunk. The body was cut down two and one-half minutes after the fall, the trunk bleeding profusely.

Moreau and his wife had lived unhappily together. They had been separated for two years and became reunited last spring. A few days before he killed her he said he would do anything to be rid of her. On Sept. 16 last they left the house together, avowedly to cut hay, but instead of going to the hay field they went into the woods. Toward evening Moreau returned alone. When the disappearance of the wife became known two men went in search of her, taking Moreau with them. They found her body in a lonely spot in the woods frightfully mangled. Moreau showed no emotion at sight of the bleeding body of his wife, and was suffered to go home. He was subsequently arrested for the murder, was found guilty, and sentenced on Oct. 31 to be hanged to-day. An unsuccessful appeal was made for a mitigation of the sentence. Moreau was 36 years of age, and his wife about twenty years older.

YAKIMA, Wash. Ter., Jan. 12.—Town Hop Town, an Indian, was executed to-day for the murder of Lorenzo Perkins and his wife. The crime was committed at Rattlesnake Creek, Yakima, during a raid, in the summer of 1878. Of the seven Indians engaged in the murder, three have been executed, three were shot while resisting the Sheriff and endeavoring to escape, and one has been released, having turned State's evidence. Town Hop Town, like his confederates, confessed the crime. He met his fate with stoical indifference.

PHILIP'S MOTHER-IN-LAW.

The Tender Way in which he Cared for her Interests.

The firm of Philip & Toense, manufacturers of cloaks and suitings, began business in the spring of 1881 at 201 Church street. The members of the firm were Sigmund Philip, who conducted the financial part of the business, and Rudolph G. Toense, who looked after the manufacturing part. They failed, and on Oct. 16 made an assignment to John H. Hubbell for the benefit of their creditors. This was not satisfactory, and Bates, Reed & Cooley, Horace Maxwell, Harbison, Shiner & Co., and Victor & Achelis obtained judgments and levied upon the stock. The assignee brought suit in the Superior Court to replevin the goods from the Sheriff. The case was tried in May last before Judge Truax and a jury, and it resulted in a disagreement. It was again tried before the same Judge on Tuesday and Wednesday last, and the jury gave a verdict for the Sheriff, sustaining his levies. The assignment was then declared to be worthless and invalid, on the ground of fraud.

What the fraud consisted in was told yesterday by Mr. S. F. Knegland & Kneeland & O'Byrne, the lawyers for the Sheriff. He said that in the September before the failure the firm purchased $12,000 worth of goods on credit. At the same time they had on hand $6,000 worth of stock. From that time up to Oct. 16, the time of failure, their books show sales of $7,000. There should have been $11,000 worth of stock remaining, but the Sheriff could only find $1,300 worth. Philip gave preferences of $2,000, of which $700 was for his mother-in-law. It was also learned that not long before he had given her $1,100. At the time of the failure Philip drew $600 and went to Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City. Afterward he went to Canada, and has not returned. He took the firm's ledger with him. Proceedings to have him indicted are in progress, and Toense is the chief witness against him.

Police Matrons Asked For.

Mrs. C. Cornelia Alford, Mrs. J. H. Mackay, and Mrs. M. C. Dunckler, a committee from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Brooklyn, called upon Mayor Low yesterday to urge the appointment of police matrons to attend the Justices' courts and, at suitable hours, the police stations, in order to extend to those of their own sex such aid and sympathy as might be proper, and to search female prisoners arrested for larceny. They ask to have three matrons appointed by the Union.

Police Commissioner Jourdan, who was sent for, explained that searching was a judicial act, and that there was a woman searcher, who was a city employee in the municipal building at the time to search females arrested for the higher grades of crimes. The committee then asked to have a woman stationed permanently at each of the courts and to have visits paid by women once or twice a day to the police stations. Mayor Low promised to consult with the Justices, but he expressed doubt about getting money for the work. The committee said that they could get part of the money themselves.

Mrs. Downs Righted by the Jury.

William H. Downs was plaintiff before Justice Neilson, in the Brooklyn City Court, yesterday, in the suit for absolute divorce from Mary Ida Downs. Edward L. Hemmelein, a tall printer with side whiskers, was named in the complaint.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Howard of 100 Graham avenue, the parents of the defendant, testified in favor of the husband. But her brother, William Howard, testified that when L. Hemmelein was in the house, upon the occasions to which his parents referred, he was there to see him, and that he stayed all night because he (William) was sick. L. Hemmelein swore that the charges were false, and said that while he had gone to many balls, picnics, and parties with the defendant, her brother was always along. The jury after an absence of a few minutes, returned a verdict for the defendant.

Ice Prospects.

The Knickerbocker Ice Company has not yet gathered a pound of ice. It reports, however, 1,500,000 tons of last winter's ice on hand. Almost all the other companies have heavy stocks on hand, and it is now said that the price the coming summer will be higher than last season. It is said that acres of new houses have been put up by New York companies at Whitehall, N. Y. The average of the ice formed this season is not over four inches in the lower end very little has been cut.

PATCHOGUE, Jan. 13.—The prospects of an ice crop decrease as the mild weather continues. A snow storm has prevailed since last night, but the weather is very moderate, and all the ferries on the river are running.

Vigorous Wrestling.

At an inquest yesterday at Jerusalem South in the case of John Jackson, a colored man, who it was alleged, was injured in a fight with Finnis Corse, another colored man, on Saturday night at Smithville South, and who died on Monday, it was shown that the neck was slightly dislocated. Witnesses testified that Corse and Jackson were friendly, and that they were wrestling. On the same evening that Jackson was injured, and in the same house, in a wrestling match between William Alexander and John Rainford, the former was thrown so heavily that his leg was broken and his ankle dislocated.

The Dock Department Investigation.

The Grand Jury continued yesterday their investigation of the alleged abuses in the management of the Dock Department. Among the witnesses examined were Salmon Wolf, William H. Lambert, Corporation Counsel A. Oakey Hall, Dock Commissioner Lyon, Hall, and Morris, From Allyn and Stone. The latter part of the testimony relied on, it is understood, to the use of the wharfage privileges under the control of the department. The investigation was not concluded.

Where Glass Eyes are Plentiful.

Statistics show that Paterson, in proportion to its size, has more one-eyed men than any other city in the United States except Pittsburgh. Nine tenths of those thus afflicted are workers in iron and steel, and have been struck in the eye with the metal chippings. The glass eye manufacturers have such a thousand pieces of information that before the bandage is off of an injured eye the owner is the recipient of many circulars

COMPELLED TO TESTIFY.

A Temperance Worker's Charges Against Saloon Keepers Dismissed.

Police Commissioner James Jourdan yesterday gave James Morton, an active temperance man, an opportunity to make good certain stories which he carried to Mayor Low about the management of the Brooklyn Excise Department. Mr. Morton told the Mayor that Frank White, who was recently the Democratic candidate for Sheriff, kept his barroom at Myrtle avenue and Fulton street open on Sunday, Dec. 18, and on the following Sunday. Mr. Morton, who, when he made the allegations, did not expect to be called upon to prove them, refused to be a witness because he said that Gen. Jourdan was both accuser and judge.

Being commanded to give his testimony, Morton began, under protest, by saying that on Dec. 18, 1881, and on Christmas Day, White's place was open, and a number of persons, in all about 102, went in and out by the side door. Upon cross-examination he said that he did not know whether the persons went into the saloon or into the hall above.

Mr. Fales, counsel for White, asked the witness whether he had not been deposed from the Presidency of the Brooklyn Temperance Union. Morton warned the lawyer that if he continued that course he would give him the lie direct.

"It is well known," said Mr. Fales, "that this man is a fanatical spy, who stands outside of liquor stores on Sunday with a note book, and who wilfully goes before the Mayor and lies, so as to injure this Board of Excise.

Upon the charge that Charles Johnson, a saloon keeper at Middagh and Fulton streets, had violated the Sunday liquor law on Dec. 18, Mr. Morton, still testifying under protest, said that he stood near the place on that day from 8¾ to 10 P. M., and saw a number of men and women enter a side door, most of them being young and in couples. He knew it was a so-called hotel, but he declined to answer a question as to whether he described it differently to Mayor Low. He might have said that Johnson was a Republican of the Jourdan stripe, but if he did he spoke from hearsay.

The defence introduced witnesses to show that Johnson kept a respectable hotel, among them being Capt. Crafts and Sergeant Clancy of the York street police.

As to the charge against Bernard McGrath, who has a saloon at Fulton street and Fulton place, Mr. Morton, still testifying under protest, said that there was an improper picture behind the bar. Mr. McGrath testified that the picture was a copy of one of Rubens's paintings, and was in almost every large collection of pictures. Mr. Morton seemed astonished. After consultation the Commissioners dismissed the complaints in each case, on the ground that the evidence was insufficient.

At Law About Four Drinks.

Paul Bauer, proprietor of the West Brighton Beach Hotel, on Coney Island, was defendant yesterday, before Justice Cullen and a jury, in Brooklyn, in a suit instituted by James Kelly, a hotel keeper, of this city, for $3,000 damages for false imprisonment. On July 28 the plaintiff avers that he visited Coney Island with three ladies, and ordered three ponies of brandy and one glass of beer upon the piazza of Bauer's hotel. The waiter who served the drinks asked 80 cents for them. Mr. Kelly said the price was rather high, but he handed out a dollar bill. The waiter threw down the bill, took up the drinks, and said, "If you don't like the price you needn't have ordered." Mr. Kelly ordered a waiter with his law, but had not gone far, he says, before he saw a policeman running after him, followed by Bauer, at the head of a gang of waiters. Bauer demanded pay for the drinks and caused his arrest and had him taken to his bar, where Kelly, in order to effect his release, handed out a two-dollar bill. He was released, but he avers that he received no change. It was claimed by the defence that Kelly drank the liquor and then tried to get away without paying for it. Bauer denied that he quitted his hotel that afternoon. The verdict was for the defendant.

Hattie P. Ayers an Actress.

Mrs. Hattie P. Ayers, the young widow of Asteria, the story of whose unfortunate marriage has been published, has become an actress. She lately joined Helen Coleman's "Widow Bedott" company, and made her first appearance on the stage at Ithaca. She is a hand some blonde, 22 years of age. For some time she had been taking music lessons. Although her parents are able to care for her, she said she did not wish to be dependent on them.

Before starting to fulfil her theatrical engagement, she appeared before Surrogate Townsend of Queens County with her counsel, Judge Armstrong, and took possession of her share of her father's estate. Surrogate Townsend decreed Theodore V. Ayers, her father in law, and the executor of his son's estate, to pay it over to her.

Money for the Dock Department.

The Sinking Fund Commission, as constituted for 1882, held its first meeting yesterday in the Mayor's office. Mayor Grace was elected Chairman, and W. H. Dikeman Secretary. Dock Commissioner Voorhis made an argument in favor of the issue of $750,000 of dock bonds for the use of the Dock Department to April 1, 1882. The department, he said, had to-before received $250,000 at a time for the payment of debts before incurred. The Commissioners believed that the department's work could be better done if it received its money in advance. Comptroller Campbell objected to the proposed change of policy, and offered a resolution that $250,000 of dock bonds be issued. The resolution was passed and the Commission adjourned.

Stolen Fish Going at Half Price.

Jerry Smith of 303 Spring street yesterday was selling fish from a wagon along West Broadway. While he was in a house two little boys, Samuel D. Nash of 132 Thompson street and Thomas Johnson of 25 Watts street, drove off with the wagon. A woman hailed them:

"What have you got?"

"Fish," the boys answered.

The woman bought fifty-two cents' worth of herring at half price.

Office Philip Dash of the Prince street police arrested the boys. Justice Kilbreth, in the Jefferson Market Police Court, held them for trial.

Settling a Dispute About Convict Labor.

The dispute between the Kings County Charities Commissioners and the Bay State Shoe and Leather Company about the sum due to the county on the contract for convict labor was yesterday settled by a compromise of the claim of $1,500, which the company insisted should be deducted from their bill on account of loss of time arising from daily cessation of work before the expiration of ten hours. The Charities Commissioners deducted $724.74, and the company agreed to pay the rest of the money due, which amounts now to $14,050.57.

Her Reason for Leaving Home.

Nellie Lochner, 17 years old, who was arrested upon a charge of vagrancy on complaint of her father, Rudolph Lochner of 44 Congress street, Brooklyn, said that she ran away from home because her father kept a sailors' boarding house and wanted her to go into the selling room every night to amuse the sailors and get them to spend their money for drinks. This she refused to do because it was distasteful to her, and so she went away at night. Justice Bergen adjourned the case.

VACCINATION IN NEW YORK.

Arguments in Favor of Fighting Small-pox with the Lance and Quill.

"Small-pox disappeared from this city after 1877, and did not come again so as to amount to anything until last year," said an ex-member of the Board of Health yesterday. "It came from Philadelphia and from Europe. It has spread all over the country, but proportionately New York has suffered the least from it. This is because vaccination is kept up all the time, winter and summer, whether there is any small pox here or not. In Philadelphia and the other cities the vaccination corps work only when there is an epidemic. The consequence is that those cities suffer great mortality, and endanger the country at large. Jersey City has had more cases of small pox than New York has this season.

"Vaccination protects a person from nothing but small-pox," the Doctor continued, "but against small-pox it is absolutely effectual. The nurses in the small-pox hospital rely upon vaccination alone, and they never take the disease. It is a pity that Henry Bergh and others with his views choose to write against vaccination, because he influences some people and thus endangers their lives. He charges vaccination with the evils that were laid to inoculation in the olden time, and he is filled with sorrow over the fact that vaccine is obtained at the expense of the vitality of a few calves. I may be wrong, but it seems to me that when it is a question between man's life and calves' comfort the man's interest will be studied first. Wherever it can be done, as in schools and elsewhere, the vaccinators go and perform their humane task, but when they meet with persons who have been misled by fallacious but well sounding arguments to think the precaution harmful, of course the vaccinators do not force themselves upon them or their households."

Vandercook's Murder.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 13.—Beckwith, the alleged murderer of Vandercook, has not yet been arrested, and energetic measures to capture him have been adopted. Beckwith's cabin, where Vandercook's remains were found, is just over the line, in the town of Austerlitz, Columbia County, New York, and he and his victim were joint owners of fifty acres of land. A dispute about this land probably led to the crime.

Troy, Jan. 13.—The father, brother, and two sisters of Vandercook live in Lansingburg and this city. Vandercook left Lansingburg ten years ago, and has not been heard of since by his relatives. He was always filled with eutopian schemes, the latest being a gold mine which he alleged he had discovered; but with all his schemes he was compelled to cut wood for his living. So far as his relatives know, he was worth no money, and the motive of the murder cannot be accounted for. Charles E. Beckwith of this city is a son of the alleged murderer. About midnight last night a man rang the door bell at the son's former boarding place and inquired for him, and it is thought that he was the fugitive from Columbia County.

Gov. Cornell and the National Guard.

NEWBURGH, Jan. 13.—Gov. Cornell writes to a gentleman in this city, regarding the reorganization of the National Guard, as follows:

The action in regard to the National Guard has been taken with great deliberation and from a strong sense of duty. Misrepresentation and abuse was fully expected, and therefore came as no surprise. Time cannot fail to vindicate the wisdom of reducing the number of organizations. What the immediate effect is upon myself is of little concern in comparison with the useful results which will inure to the true interests of the State.
