THREE NEGROES HANGED.

ONE, A SCHOOL TEACHER, FOR A MURDER DONE IN REVENGE.

The Culprit's Confession and Prayer on the Scaffold—Tender Thoughts of his Wife and Child—The Fate of a Former Slave.

SHELBY, N. C., Jan. 27.—John Alexander Morris, the colored assassin, aged 29, with firm step and fearless mien, ascended the scaffold at 1:10 P. M. to-day. He prayed silently, and then spoke twenty minutes, confessing the crime, and saying that Christ had pardoned his sins. He thanked the counsel and jailor, and said that he had malice toward none. Four thousand persons were present, including six hundred women. The colored clergymen refusing to ascend the scaffold, Morris knelt and prayed aloud as follows:

"Oh Lord, in Thy presence, I a creature of a moment, present myself. Into Thy hands I commend my spirit, and humbly beseech Thee to help me in this hour of death. Help me to be strong to bear the agony of this hour. Have mercy upon me; purify and sanctify my heart, and sustain me in this terrible trial. Upon Thee alone I rely. Look Thy blessing on all men. Into Thy hands, oh Lord, I commend my spirit."

The drop fell at 1:23. Morris died of strangulation, his contortions lasting fully five minutes. The body was cut down at 1:40, and buried near the scaffold. Two hours afterward one negro shot another in the hand, and was arrested. Eighty feels got pieces of the rope to cure fits.

John Morris was a negro school teacher, polite and intellectual, who was convicted on circumstantial evidence of the assassination of John Roark in Lincolnton on the night of Aug. 10, 1880. He afterward confessed the crime, saying that the motive which prompted him to do the deed was Roark's false testimony implicating him and five others in a theft of cotton cloth. Morris was born a slave, and at the age of 8 years was sold to John Ledbetter of McDowell, N. C., who was killed during the war. He says that he was treated kindly, taught not to swear or lie, and to be honest and polite. He was also taught the alphabet, which, he says, opened to him "the first train of thought that led to the sterehouse of knowledge." "My mother," he says, "was sold from me when I was small. I do not know anything of a mother's love and care. I never saw my father, except when an infant, until I was 16 years old, three years after emancipation. Around a mother, to most people, many sacred memories and devoted love cling, but I, a poor slave boy, never experienced the feeling of a mother's tender love." In 1869 he resolved to go to his father, then in Rutherford County, North Carolina, who received him as his prodigal son and sent him to school, where he learned rapidly. He afterward determined to teach school, and on examination received a third grade certificate. He taught in Gaston and Madison Counties at $15 a month and board. Still in jail he read and learned to read the Bible from Genesis to Revelations, read the New Testament three times, the "Life of Christ" four times, the "Princes of the House of David" three times, and other books and periodicals, and studied with delight "Alexander's Intellectual Philosophy." Of his wife and child he says in his confession:

My wife's advice often comes again to me, her name lingers fondly in my sad heart, yet no reproaches come from her lips even in my dreams. Mary never upbraids me, no reproaches for my wayward life. While the world has cast me off as a murderer, she still loves. My wife, who has been a faithful companion to me, and my innocent child, will have to bear the stigma of my name. May God pity and guide them. The world never knows how many wives there are like her, whose noble lives of self-sacrifice and devotion, loving and faithful souls, bless and adorn men's pathway.

Morris was five feet nine inches in height, and had a pleasant and attractive face. While awaiting his doom he was confined in an iron cage 12 by 12 feet, without any fire during the cold weather of this and last winter.

FOR ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

MANSFIELD, La., Jan. 27.—Edward Belton, a negro, was hanged here to-day, in the presence of a large crowd, for stabbing and attempt to beat to death Albert Smith, also colored, while committing robbery. Belton professed religion, and said he hoped to "meet his friends in glory." He passed a sleepless night. After he had eaten breakfast he asked for a preacher and a bottle of whiskey. He kept up his spirits and walked bravely to the scaffold. When the drop fell, at 1 P. M., he struggled very little. The fall was six feet. Belton's crime, although an atrocious one, is not punishable by death in any of the other States of the Union. A few months ago a white man, a stranger in this neighborhood, into the woods near this place. Two other negroes, Paul Pringle and John Mobile, who were lying in wait, sprang upon Smith, knocked him down, nearly cut his tongue out, cut his throat, and threw him into a swamp. He was not dead. He was found soon afterward moaning piteously and was taken to a hospital, where he is now lying in a critical condition. When found his chin was split open, his jawbone broken, and his skull fractured. The negroes, leaving their victim for dead, fled to the woods, and on this place where they were arrested soon afterward. They were identified by Smith as his assailants, were tried and found guilty, and all three were sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 30, 1881. On Dec. 15 Mobile was recaptured, thirty days. About a month previous to the day on which they were to have been hanged they were sent to Shreveport and there placed in the new jail for safe keeping. On Dec. 27 they, with nine others, made their escape. Belton and five of the others are now in jail. Pringle turned State witness. Mobile is still at large. Pringle, who was captured in New Orleans, was today returned to this place. He will be hanged in a few days. On the 17th inst. Belton was sentenced to be hanged to-day. He was a large-muscled, black man, six feet and one inch in height. He was a fugitive from justice from Sabine Parish, where he had been indicted for shooting a man.

HANGED FOR A CRIMINAL ASSAULT.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—In the jail yard in this city at noon to-day August Davis, colored, was hanged for assaulting Mrs. Elizabeth Dibelton Sept. 17 last. The gallows was the old-fashioned trap, with a rope and trigger. Davis slept but little last night, and was attended by Sisters of Charity and Father Duff Embroced. The priest accompanied him to the gallows. He asserted to the last that he was innocent of the crime for which he was to die, but said he was not sorry to go. He ascended the scaffold firmly. The drop of nine feet failed to break his neck, and he died of strangulation, though almost without a struggle. Davis leaves a wife and seven children, and another nearly 100 years old. Yesterday the Governor was petitioned to grant a respite for a few days, but he declined to interfere. Davis had been guilty of several other crimes similar to that for which he suffered death, and had served a two years' term in the penitentiary.

SWINDLING MANUFACTURERS.

Prominent Dakota Officials and Others said to be Implicated.

RACINE, Wis., Jan. 26.—Albert Brown of Scotland, Dakota, who was reported by the commercial agency of R. G. Dun as worth $25,000, tried to swindle Freeman & Sons, the Racine boiler makers, out of $1,600 by forging a paper with signatures of alleged wealthy farmers who are in the Territory. Freeman & Sons shipped them a car load of threshing mills and were tendered his paper. The commercial agency reporter at Scotland, Dakota, seems to be in league with them, and reports on the paper were favorable. By accident suspicion was aroused, and an agent of Freeman & Sons was sent out to investigate. He reports to Mr. Freeman, in confidence, that the men in whose favor the forgeries were made are prominent men—the former of the grand jury, Secretary of the territorial council, the clerk of the district court, the local reporters, and others—engaged in the boiler manufacturers. Responsible papers were issued by one Rock and placed in the hands of a responsible party, who with Freeman's agent will leave on Tuesday and will arrive in Yankton to-night. It is estimated that the total amount of these frauds will reach from twenty to forty thousand of a million dollars. Every effort is being made to keep it quiet until Brown is captured. It is believed that he will expose to the others. The most prominent Dakota officials are said to be implicated in the swindle.

The Trichina Poisoning in Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 27.—Later advices from Minnesota, the scene of the wholesale trichina poisoning, says that death will probably result in the case of Dr. Sandbrook, the local physician. William Chalmer, Peter Pickles, son of the butcher who raised and killed the hogs, Antoine Winter, Mr. Reidbrecht, and a German who lived near the village. It is not probable that the disease will spread, but it will cause the loss of several fine carcasses. The disease began to show itself in the village, and it was found that the trichina was from a single smoked ham taken at the time from the smoke house, and devoured on a fine table in the form of sandwiches with beer.

Killed by a School Boy.

WEST JEFFERSON, Ohio, Jan. 27.—Miss High, a teacher in a public school three miles from this place, yesterday afternoon called on John Holler, one of the Directors, to assist her in quelling a disturbance among the pupils, instigated by George Scott, 15 years of age. Mr. Holler encouraged Scott that the latter struck him on the head with a piece of coal, crushing his skull. He expired in an hour. Scott escaped.

Bursting of a Reservoir.

SARATOGA, Jan. 27.—The water main supplying Glens Falls with water from the mountain reservoir burst this morning, two miles from the corporation, depriving the village of water for domestic and fire purposes. The various steam and other factories and steam laundries dependent wholly on the supply for power and other purposes are obliged to shut down. Three or four days will be necessary to repair the break.

Probably Killed by a Bear.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 27.—This community is excited from fear that a dancing bear had killed its keeper, two Italians, who are missing. The bear was killed by a family in attic. Parts of clothing belonging to the two Italians have been found.

PRINCETON STUDENTS FINED.

They Pay for the Broken Street Lamps and Promise to Behave Themselves.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 27.—Princeton College was well represented at the sitting of the Court of Oyer and Terminer at the Court House in this city this morning. The court room was thronged with students of all the classes, and here and there a professor could be seen. Chief Justice Beasley was on the bench, with Judges Stewart, Yard, and Applegate. The first indictment read by Prosecutor Mercer Beasley, Jr., was against the Princeton College freshmen who smashed street lamps and stoned professors' windows in Princeton one night last December.

The names of the students were called, one after another. They rose and stood outside the bar, and seemed to wish to avoid observation. Justice Beasley directed that they step inside, on the platform, which is raised about one foot above the level of the rest of the room. There they were the focus of the commiserating glances of their fellow students and friends. Prosecutor Beasley read the indictment, which was for malicious mischief, and charged:

You have been indicted for having at the borough of Princeton on the 21st day of December last, with force and arms, unlawfully, wilfully, and maliciously broken and destroyed fifteen lamps of the borough of Princeton, the said lamps being then and there of the value of $7 each, against the peace of the State and the government and dignity of the same.

"What have you to say to this indictment?" asked the Prosecutor.

The freshmen said nothing, and Lawyer E. T. Green arose and answered for them. He said that he wished to enter a plea of "non vult contendere" for the following prisoners: William D. Sterry, James Buckalew, Jason Fisher, C. F. D. Halsey, Henry P. Toler, George R. Cooper, Nathan B. Dolan, Joseph C. Foster, Abram B. Gaither, George W. Gledhill, William L. Gratzburg, William M. Hall, Henry Lauterbach, James Potter, and Addison F. Roberts. For the remaining five he pleaded "not guilty," and asked for a trial. These were Alexander Hardenstle, Joseph W. Dawson, John H. Biye, William R. Riggs, and Eaton M. Kempshall.

Mr. Green said every good citizen would admit that the Grand Jury had done a proper thing in indicting the students. It was right that they should understand that they could not break the law without being treated the same as the meanest citizen. The offence was not committed through any malice, nor in a spirit which would stamp it as infamous. Probably every man had some act of his youth to regret, and, conscious of his own former failings, he should look leniently on the fault of these boys. They had expressed their sorrow, and asked the Court to be lenient, and not to disgrace them by a severe punishment. They had paid for the damage they had done, and would behave better in the future. Mr. Green exhibited a receipt for $200 signed by Mayor James Hagaman, Jr., in payment of the city's claims for all damages.

Justice Beasley said that he did not intend to be severe, as he believed that the offenders had already been severely punished in their own minds, for their breach of law, in the consciousness of their disgraceful situation. They had brought disgrace upon themselves, sorrow to their families, and disrepute to the institution to which they belonged. As they had made reparation, he would deal leniently, but he wished to say that there was a limitation to the toleration which the public extend to the indiscretions of youth. The students should remember that they possess peculiar advantages, and that they should make what could be extended of others less favorably situated. It was necessary for the Court to inflict punishment, as it was its duty to protect the property and rights of citizens. He would warn the offenders that in case of a repetition of the offence he would be compelled to inflict severe punishment. He had the power to fine, or imprison in the county jail or State prison. His judgment was that each of those who pleaded "non vult" should pay a fine of $20 each, and stand committed until the fine and costs were paid.

The students were taken to the Sheriff's office, where they paid their fines. The five who pleaded "not guilty" were allowed to go on their own recognizance. Their cases will be called for trial next Thursday.

THE READJUSTER BOLTERS.

One of Them Elected President Pro Tem. of the Senate and Declines the Honor.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 27.—In the Senate to-day the committee appointed to select a committee to investigate alleged charges of corruption against certain unnamed officers of the Senate reported the following as said committee: Messrs. Riddleberger, Berry, Lybrook, Walker, and Stevens. Mr. Riddleberger emphatically declined to serve. A resolution was then adopted to proceed to the election of a President pro tem. to fill the vacancy caused by the refusal yesterday of Gen. Elliott to hold the office. Senators H. C. Wood and A. M. Lybrook were placed in nomination, and on the second ballot the latter was elected, the vote standing: Lybrook, 19, Wood, 17, and Elliott, 1. Mr. Lybrook is one of the four Readjusters who voted for Mahone for United States Senator. All the Democrats voted for him. On being officially informed of his election, Mr. Lybrook thanked the senate for the honor but respectfully declining to accept it, stating that he was from the same district as Senator Kirkwood intends, however, to move in its vacation of the facts, and it is found that the Judge Kirkwood is not a citizen of the district, and the Attorney General will be requested to take charge of their interests.

The Growth of Dakota.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The proposed division of Dakota along the line of the sixth parallel is meeting with opposition of the Territory, but the lower portion wants to be admitted as a state at the same time that the northern portion is made a separate Territory. It is claimed that Dakota has a population of 150,000, with property valued at $200,000,000. The administration of justice in northern Dakota is attended with great expense and difficulty, owing to the distances to be traversed by the officers of the courts. It is claimed for the southwestern portion, which includes the Black Hills, that it has a population of 67,000, and a good system of public schools.

Gen. Curtis's Reply to Charges Against Him.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Secretary of the Treasury has received a letter from Gen. N. M. Curtis, in answer to the charges filed against him by the Civil Service Reform Association of New York. Gen. Curtis states in substance that he did not, but he has been since then. He says he was the officer to whom the subject of the United States was referred in the section which is claimed to have been violated, but was specially instructed to act upon the report which certain suits pending in United States courts, the decree that he personally had access, such as employees or officers, or in general any person to make contributions.

Dismissing Free-thinking Professors.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 27.—For years there has been a quarrel over religious subjects in the state University locality. Yesterday the Board of Regents met. The absence of the Democratic element in the majority, and they dismissed three free-thinking professors. The act has occasioned considerable feeling.

SIXTEEN DAYS OVERDUE.

The Mishaps of the Steamship Edam, which Began with the Loss of her Screw.

The disabled steamship Edam, Capt. J. H. Taat, of the Netherland-American Steam Navigation Company, which was blown two hundred miles out to sea after breaking away from the Persian Monarch on Sunday morning last, was towed through the Narrows yesterday by the British steamship Napier of the Arrow steamship line, Capt. Anderson commanding. The Edam started from Rotterdam on New Year's Day with 206 steerage and eight cabin passengers, besides a general cargo of freight. Under favorable circumstances she can make the trip to this port in eleven days; hence she was overdue about sixteen days.

"Heavy gales from the westward impeded our headway from the very first," said Capt. Taat. "On the 13th inst. one of the blades of the propeller was broken off by a heavy sea. On the next day the other three blades broke off and the ship began to leak. Fortunately, the weather was fine after this, but frequent calms delayed us, as we depended on our sails. On the 21st inst. we sighted the steamship Galilee; we showed signals of distress and fired guns, but the Galilee passed by. I could see everything on her deck, and, of course, they could see everything on the deck of the Edam. The Captain of the Galilee afterward reported to the pilots that he had seen a steamer in distress, but that he supposed she had a pilot.

Capt. Taat then described the meeting with the Persian Monarch and the efforts made on board the latter to tow the vessel in. This THE SUN has already reported. At 1 o'clock Monday morning the Persian Monarch and the Edam parted company. The Edam drifted away, while signal lights were sent up from the Persian Monarch. No return lights could be shown from the Edam, as all hands were employed in handling the sails. The Edam drifted into the breakers of the Nantucket Shoals in spite of all efforts to keep her off. The steerage passengers were kept below, and they did not know their danger. The covers from the lifeboats were taken off and everything made ready for launching. Capt. Taat backed the Edam off shore by backing the sails, an exceedingly dangerous piece of seamanship, as there was danger that the masts would be carried away, or at least that the yards would be splintered.

At 2 P. M. the Edam passed almost within stone's throw of the lightship of the new Davis South Shoal. The keel scraped, and a passenger could have jumped from the deck to the rocks, which rose almost to the surface of the water. A moment afterward the Edam was making for the open sea.

On Tuesday morning the Napier was sighted, and she took the Edam in tow. The Napier was on her way from New York to London, and Capt. Anderson wanted to tow the Edam to Halifax. But Halifax was 400 miles distant and New York 180 miles, so Capt. Anderson finally agreed to set sail hither. Six of the crew and two officers had their hands frozen. During the passage there were three births on board.

SHOOTING WILDLY IN THE STREET.

An ex-Convict, Amusing Himself with a Pistol, Instantly Kills a Passer-by.

Jeremiah Moriarty, the ex-convict who is charged with killing Charles Weber of 216 Canal street in Baxter street on Monday night, was brought to the Coroner's office by Capt. Kealy yesterday. Alexander Lynaught told Coroner Merkle that on Monday evening he met and talked with Moriarty in front of 30 Baxter street, and Moriarty pulled a revolver from his pocket and discharged it four times. He pulled the trigger a fifth time, but it missed fire. As he did so Robert Murphy, who is in custody as a witness, came out of the entry of 31 Baxter street. Moriarty spoke to him.

"Come here till I shoot you," he said.

He pulled the trigger of the revolver three times, and it missed fire. Murphy walked across the street. When young Weber passed between Moriarty and Murphy the latter went off and Weber fell to the ground. Lynaught and Murphy went to a saloon and remained there about twenty minutes when James Tully came in and said that Moriarty wanted him to carry a body into a hallway. Moriarty threatened to shoot him for refusing, and he ran away. Later, they heard that Moriarty had been arrested in Grand street, Williamsburg.

Moriarty declined to make any statement, and was sent to the Tombs. William Bennett, Alex. Lynaught, Robert Murphy, and James Tully were sent to the House of Detention as witnesses.

Indications that Though she Died in Poverty she was Once Well to Do.

Hannah M. Coffin, about 50 years old, was found dead at 413 West Thirty-sixth street on Thursday. Dr. Raefele found the body on a bed in a small room in the basement. It was nude and emaciated. Death had been caused by a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Coffin, the neighbors said, had lived in the house about six weeks and had not spoken to any of her neighbors. She bought every day a small quantity of liquor in a neighboring bar room, which she drank in her room after locking the door. Papers found in the room by Dr. Raefele showed that her maiden name was Hannah M. Clarkson, and that she was married over twenty years ago to Evan M. Coffin by the Rev. Henry Chase of 52 Market street. Daughter Jennie, her mother was married in 1875 to Wm. L. Caldwell. It is probable that at one time Mrs. Coffin was well to do. Letters signed by Joseph E. Weed of 62 Liberty street, referring to lots in 124th street, were found among the papers in the room.

The body was sent to the Morgue.

Impatient Commuters.

Annoyance is caused by the irregularity of the local trains of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad. There was indignation yesterday morning all along the line, from Hawthorne to Suffern. At Ridgewood, residents awaiting the second Suffern train east, that leaves at 7:30, were advised by a telegram posted by the operator and addressed to "All concerned," that this train had been abandoned. The message added that the train which was due at Ridgewood at 7:15 had passed for the arrival of the third train east, the Middletown was train, with no signs of its coming, the people became very impatient. At 8, the Orange County train came in, and the people rushed for it, but made no stop except at Paterson, and at the depot at Passaic. At Hawthorne the passengers that usually take the second suburban train were dumbfounded at the depot, and rapidly wanted the Orange County train, as it passed at full speed. The Middletown train followed soon after, bowling along at a rate of speed that seemed to the suffering train was wrecked at the turn table before leaving the station, and the Middletown train was compelled to run upon a switch at Ramsey's for the Orange County express.

Mishap to a Ferryboat.

The ferryboat Hudson City, while searching for her slip in a dense fog yesterday morning, ran into one of the Anchor line steamers, lying at her pier, next to the ferry slip. The sudden crash caused great excitement among the ferry boat's passengers. The bow of the boat was badly broken, and it was taken back to Jersey City and laid up. It is said that the pilot was so excited that he could not make the ferry slip without knowing what he was doing, but the officers say that he did this because the boat was too much damaged to make her slip in New York.

A Chambermaid's Story.

Mrs. Bessie Darling of 1,925 Madison avenue on Jan. 18 was robbed of diamonds and jewelry which she valued at $4,000. Detectives Cosgrove and McNaught yesterday arrested William McKay, Mrs. Darling's coachman, and Lucy Woodson, a chambermaid in the house. In the Jefferson Market Police Court Lucy testified that on the day of the robbery she saw McKay come out of Mrs. Darling's room carrying the room door key, which the jewels were kept. He seized half of her, she said, and swore that he would murder her if she ever mentioned the circumstance. There will be an examination on Sunday.

Strange Freaks of a Fire.

A fire on the top floor of the building 14 and 16 Vandewater street, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, caused a loss of $50,000 to Schroeder Bros. & Bilderrand, lithographers. The flames started in a box of rags at the elevator shaft in the northwest corner, lick 4 the elevator shaft 1 foot wide, ran to the ceiling (eighty feet to the southeast corner of the floor, and burned $10,000 worth of vignette stones, so as to make them utterly worthless. A quantity of paper lying between the burned places was unharmed.

Accused of Bigamy.

William T. Farmer, a carpenter, of 516 East Eighteenth street, was held in $1,000 bail in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday on a charge of bigamy. He is accused of having married Mary F. Alexander on May 9, 1880, in Newark, and of marrying Margaret Cosgrove in this city on Dec. 25, 1880. He is the father of twelve. The second marriage was performed by the late Father Considine, in Stillman street. Farmer was born in Virginia.

McGlory's Bondsmen.

Henry Welsh, a liquor dealer at 101 Thompson street, was yesterday accepted as bondsman in $1,000 for William McGlory, indicted for keeping a disorderly house in Baxter street. District Attorney McKeon called attention to the fact that Welsh was indicted for a similar offence in 1877, and was fined $250. Judge Moore said that it should be published to the public by some means that bondsmen of McGlory.

Swindlers Sentenced.

Herman Gurke, John H. Bode, and Don Cobb, who were convicted in the general sessions Tuesday of the grand larceny from Mathew Sears, were sentenced yesterday, Gurke and Cobb to state prison for three years and to pay a fine of $250, and Bode to state prison for two years.
