TRAFFIC IN BABIES.

The Curious Market that is to be Explored by a Coroner's Jury.

Deputy Coroner Donlin was informed yesterday that a baby had died at 22 Grand street from the effects of poison. He went to the house, and found that the child was the adopted child of Mrs. Pardo, otherwise Mrs. Levey. Mrs. Pardo told him a story of traffic in babies.

Several months ago, she said, she bought a baby from Mrs. Pose of 59 Sullivan street for $5. She found that the child was not healthy, and returned it to Mrs. Pose, at the same time saying that she was willing to pay $10 for a healthy black-eyed girl baby. Mrs. Pose promised to find her one, and on Oct. 30 showed her another child. It suited Mrs. Pardo, and she gave Mrs. Hannah Hayward, who represented herself as the mother of the child, $10. She got in return the baby, a receipt, and a contract in which Mrs. Hayward resigned all claim to the child. This was the contract:

Oct. 30, 1882.

This is to certify that I, Hannah Hayward, give my child for adoption to Mrs. Emma Levey, that she may keep it as her own. She hereby agrees to love, cherish, provide for, and protect it, and act as a parent should forever, and I hereby agree to make no inquiry or trouble for any one concerned. I give my child with my free will and desire, cause being inability to support it.

HANNAH HAYWARD.

The baby thrived, Mrs. Pardo says, and five weeks ago she took it to Mrs. Pose's to show how hearty it was. Two days later a man with a badge, who said he was an agent of the "Cruelty Society," came to Mrs. Pardo's house and demanded to see the baby, alleging that he had heard that it was neglected. When he went away he said to her: "You are completely in my power." That night she left her home in Spring street and took the baby to a hotel in Bleecker street and remained there a week, fearing that the child would be taken from her. She suspected Mrs. Pose of having sent the man to her house. She called on Mrs. Pose, and in order to prevent further trouble told her that she had sold the child for $40. After that she had trouble with Mrs. Pose, who did not believe her statement. Mrs. Pardo kept a cigar and candy store in Spring street. On March 1 she moved to 22 Grand street, and started a second-hand furniture store. Mrs. Pose found out where she was. Two weeks ago Wednesday a colored girl named Sarah came to the house, and was engaged as a servant. She warned Sarah against Mrs. Pose, but afterward suspected that the girl was in Mrs. Pose's employ. On Monday last, after eating some crackers, condensed milk, and beef tea, the child sickened. Sarah broke a showcase that night, and left the house. Mrs. Pardo says she said at going, "In a week you won't have your baby nor your store neither." On Wednesday the child died.

Sarah Wallace of 11 Dominick street, the colored servant, testified that Mrs. Pardo always fed the child herself. "I did not feed the baby on Monday," she said, "nor did I mix its food. I do not think the child was poisoned. In any event, I did not poison her."

Dr. Donlin will make an autopsy to-day, and at the inquest the traffic in babies will be inquired into. It is said that several societies in the city give out babies to be fed on the bottle, paying the nurses by the month, and that in some cases the babies are sold by the nurses, who have no difficulty in getting their pay from the societies by presenting a borrowed baby to the agent on the first of each month.

Jefferson Sentenced to be Hanged in May.

Alexander Jefferson, the negro who in December last shot and killed Henry Hicks, stabbed Emma Jackson to death, shot his brother, Celestial Jefferson, stabbed his former paramour, Annie Jackson, and when arrested tried to take his own life, was before Justice Moore for sentence yesterday. Jefferson approached the bar with indifference, and coolly responded to the questions put to him, saying that he was born in New York in 1854, and had been in prison before. When asked if he could give any reason why sentence of death should not be passed upon him, he said: "I will say that ever since that night I have regretted what happened, being under the influence of liquor at the time. I forgive willingly, from the bottom of my heart, and I hope they will forgive me, especially those that swore falsely against me. My counsel did the best he could for me, not knowing the details of it." Justice Moore said that no one acquainted with the facts could doubt the justice of the verdict, and he thereupon sentenced Jefferson to be hanged on Friday, May 11. Jefferson's counsel, George F. Elliott, intends to apply for a stay of proceedings pending an application for a new trial.

Following in McGlois's Footsteps.

James Kelly, John Murphy, Owen Murray, and Michael Cahill, members of the gang of young thieves of which Michael E. McGlois was the leader, beat and robbed Henry E. Hopkins of 7 Eight avenue, a machinist, at Seventh avenue and Twenty-ninth street, early on the morning of the 14th. They were arrested. In Murphy's pocket were two [illegible] written just before his execution. The [illegible] were jointly indicted for robbery in the [illegible] Cahill was convicted in the General Sessions of [illegible] Kelly, Murphy, and Murray pleaded guilty. The [illegible] were arraigned yesterday for sentence. "It is a [illegible] Judge Cowing, "to see four healthy, intelligent young men standing here, charged with stealing a sum of money that either of you could have made in a few days of honest work. If you do not change your course you must end where your friend and leader McGlois did—on the gallows. The sentence of the Court is that you be confined in state prison each for the term of ten years."

No Taxes from One-seventh of a Town.

The Town Board of Newtown has submitted to counsel the question whether the cemetery lands are liable for a share of the town's indebtedness as it existed at the time the land was taken by legislative enactment. If the cemetery companies can be taxed, the town will be able to pay off its bonded debt. One-seventh part of the territory in the town is absorbed by cemetery corporations, which pay no tax. Calvary Cemetery alone would be liable for about $100,000.
