NEW ROCHELLE'S CIRCUS.

Amusement for the Villagers at the Meetings of the Board of Trustees.

The villagers of New Rochelle find great amusement in watching the spats between the members of the newly elected Board of Trustees. They flock to the meetings as eagerly as they gather at the itinerant circus or travelling theatrical shows. James A. Grenzebach, Democrat, never loses an opportunity to denounce what he terms the partisanship of President Charles Banks, and he is vigorously seconded in his warfare by A. C. Wilmarth, his Democratic colleague. Trustees Peter Berger, A. B. Hudson, and James G. Ross are Republicans like the President, and Frederick Lorenzen poses impartially on the fence. At the first meeting of the trustees a fortnight ago President Banks appointed Messrs. Berger, Hudson, and Ross, Republicans, on the Finance Committee, and selected the member on the fence for the Committee on Roads. He gave the Democratic members duties that they say make them official nonentities in the Board. Trustee Wilmarth declares all the appointments illegal because, as he says, written notices were not served on the trustees apprising them of the meeting of the Board for organization. President Banks denies all these imputations.

The Board held its second meeting on Monday in the Town Hall. Interested villagers packed the rooms in expectation, as they said, "of a circus." Messrs. Wilmarth and Grenzebach proposed certain resolutions, which were promptly sat down upon by the Republicans and the member on the fence. President Banks sided with the majority.

"That's right! be a bulldozer," shouted Trustee Grenzebach at the President.

"Don't be a dictator!" cried Trustee Wilmarth. "You ought to have some courtesy, and not take the law in your own hands, usurp the powers of the Board, and decide everything your own way."

"If I may be permitted to say something," exclaimed a villager about to make an inquiry for information.

"Officer, put that man out," cried President Banks, hammering his desk with his gavel.

The man shout out of the door with a shove from the officer's arm. He went out into the street again with similar involuntary suddenness when he came back to protest. The meeting then adjourned.

Mr. Edward Lambden, who succeeded the late George W. Davids, who acted for Thaddeus Davids as Village Treasurer, submitted his bond to the Trustees for approval, but it was not acted upon. His sureties are his brothers, Joseph and George Lambden, and Herman L. Secord, Robt. P. Carpenter, and Jas. P. Robinson. They justify in the sum of $15,000 collectively.

Mr. Lambden said last night: "I have not yet requested Mr. Thaddeus Davids to turn over his official effects. I will probably make the official request on Wednesday. There is no doubt that the money will be all given to me, with the exception of $1,200 or $1,300. This sum Mr. Davids will retain as due on his unpaid percentage allowed by law as compensation for holding and investing the village funds. None of this percentage was collected for the past eight years."

FOUR BRASS INNOCENTS.

Their Experience with a Fourth Ward Driver with a Black Eye.

A lean and melancholy horse was taking an East Broadway car down town by means of a series of desperate jerks, yesterday afternoon, when an accident occurred. The horse was trained fine. At every plunge it seemed as though his emaciated frame would shoot through the collar and his wavering legs close up after the fashion of the legs of the toy monkeys on sliding sticks with which children play. The horse had a mild eye and a nervous tail, and he seemed to count his jumps.

The driver was a man displaying considerable dignity and a black eye. He held the reins loosely and leaned against the car as he gazed contemplatively at the City Hall square. He had seen the workmen tear up all the posts and lay fresh sod along the edges of the square the day before. Now they were tearing up the sod and putting down the posts. This distinctively New York method of horticulture naturally appealed to the appreciation of a native, and the man was lost in thought.

Meanwhile the horse had ceased to jump mechanically, and was making spasmodic plunges at his collar.

Four newsboys sat on the curbstone of the City Hall sidewalk with their elbows on their knees and their chins in their hands. Each wore a look of utmost innocence. As the one horse car approached in the warm May sunshine the mildest little boy got up from his seat, and with great care placed upon the near rail a large and round stone. Then the pace-faced boy went back again to his fellows and sank his chin in his hands.

Erratically the car advanced. At the beginning of one of the horse's frenzied jumps the front wheel struck the stone, the car jolted off the track, and the reminiscent driver went speeching into the street. The horse dropped his head so that the collar hung about his ears, and backed up resitfully against the car. The driver slowly gathered himself up, and with his good eye scanned the heavens. The four small boys, looking 2miles and serene, came within his range of vision. A close observer might have noted a languid but knowing twinkle in the left eye of the driver at this point, but his face did not indicate an unusual discovery. With the assistance of some bystanders he laboriously worked the car on to the rails again, while four almost imperceptible smiles played about the features of the four boys. Then the driver went behind his car for a moment, and stepped upon the platform of a car going up town. He rode about 200 feet, jumped off, made a flank movement, and came stealthily down behind the boys, who were now displaying four broad and vigorous grins. A moment later the driver descended upon them like a cyclone, and the six was rent with the voices of the young. When the havoc was complete he stepped proudly upon the car, and the horse began to spring down town again.

The driver was from the Fourth ward.

Insisting upon his Professional Title.

The examination in the perjury cases growing out of the suit of Major Harrold for damages against the New York Elevated Railroad Company was continued yesterday in an examination room of the Essex Market Police Court. One of the witnesses, Michael Kehoe of 514 East Eighteenth street, testified that he saw Major Harrold on the day after the elevated railroad accident, in a new building in Eighteenth street in which the witness was working, and also saw him there on the two following days. The witness said he was subpœnaed by Dr. Shine, and was told by him that he would be paid for the time lost by coming to court. In the cross-examination Mr. Shaffer spoke of Dr. Shine as "Shine," whereat Dr. Shine protested with much earnestness, and went to the outer room to appeal to Justice Patterson. Mr. Shaffer charged that an attempt was to be made to break up the hearing, and called for the presence of the Judge. He did not insist, however, and he resumed his questioning with "Did Shine," &c., noticeably emphasizing the "Shine." The hearing was adjourned.

Not Able to Care for Herself or her Estate.

Judge Barnard granted an order three weeks ago for a Sheriff's jury to inquire into the sanity of Mrs. Phebe Titus, a wealthy Quaker lady, aged 70, of Westbury, Queens county, and to find as to the value of her estate, and who would be entitled to it after her death. The jury met in the Jamaica Town Hall yesterday, and found that Mrs. Titus's mind is so far diseased as to render her totally incapable to manage her own affairs, or to care for her person or property in an intelligent manner. The value of her estate was found to be $19,500 with an income in addition of $800 per year. She has seven children and two grandchildren who are lawful heirs.

A Dangerous Boy at Large.

On Tuesday Guard Katzenburg of a Third avenue elevated train discovered a boy in the rear car amusing himself by shooting out of the window into the street. He had fired several shots between the 125th and 116th street stations from the train that left 125th street at 11:25 A.M. The pistol had a rifle barrel two inches long, with a 22 bore. Katzenburg took the weapon from the boy and forwarded it to Col. Hain, the general manager of the railroad. The boy was not arrested. His name is unknown.

No Fees to the Wharfingers.

By instructing the corporation wharfingers to attend to the duties hitherto performed by the Harbor Masters, the Dock Department has given the wharfingers extra work, but no extra pay. Secretary Cuming said yesterday that the extra work would not be irksome. If two more wharfingers were appointed, so as to shorten the districts, their whole labor would be easily performed. While the duties of Harbor Masters are performed by the Dock Department no fees will be demanded of vessels for their services.

$70,000 IN A LUMP.

Mr. Asten's Effort to Get the Excise Board's Allowances Made Specific.

The Excise Commissioners asked the Board of Apportionment, yesterday, to appropriate $72,400 for the expenses of their department in the year ending May 1, 1884. Commissioner Mitchell said that the inspectors and clerks were hard worked and poorly paid.

President Asten of the Tax Department said he thought the department employed too many inspectors. The Board of Health employed only fifteen inspectors, who had to examine the 102,000 buildings in New York. The entire force of the Building Department numbered only thirty men, and ten Deputy Tax Commissioners assessed all the property in New York. There were about 10,000 places in the city where liquor and beer were sold, and the Excise Board asked for thirty inspectors. He believed that twenty men could do the work, but would vote for the employment of twenty-five.

President Reilly of the Board of Aldermen said that the sanitary policemen were really Board of Health inspectors, and Mayor Edson added that the number of medical inspectors was always increased in the summer.

The Board allowed to the department $69,000, $29,000 of which is for inspectors. Then, as Mayor Edson wished to make the appropriation $70,000, Comptroller Campbell moved to increase the allowance for printing, stationery, and contingencies $1,000. The motion was carried, and then President Asten moved that the Board make the appropriation as the appropriations are made for the city departments, naming the sum for each specific purpose. He said that the Commissioners last year reduced their clerks' salaries and then increased the number of inspectors.

The Board of Apportionment voted President Asten's motion down, and appropriated $70,000 for the Board of Excise.

Five Cents' Worth of the Bridge.

A number of newsboys, bootblacks, and venders were selling bits of twisted wire yesterday for five cents a piece. They found quite a ready sale. It was ordinary telegraph wire. The venders all yelled the same formula:

"Ere y'are! Pieces of the first wire what was ever stretched across the bridge. Only half a dime; five cents each."
