TOM LEE DISCHARGED.

The Complainant Against him Denies Making a Complaint or Having Any to Make.

A lawyer named Meyer obtained from Justice White last Monday a warrant for Tom Lee of 4 Mott street, the leader of one faction of the Chinese. Meyer, with an interpreter, had Ah Chun, the keeper of an opium joint at 18 Mott street, who is in the City Prison for keeping a den where young girls are entrapped for illicit purposes, and where the opium habit is carried on in force, make a charge against Tom Lee of levying $10 a month from him as a gurantee that he would not be interfered with in his business. The court room was crowded with Chinamen. Tom Lee was represented by two lawyers. The affidavit sworn to by Ah Chun was read to him. In it were the statements that Ah Chun kept an opium joint at 13 Pell street and 18 Mott street; that Tom Lee called and told him he must pay $10 a month to him, and that he regularly paid Lee that amount in advance. Tom Lee denies the charges.

At the opening of the proceedings yesterday a dispute arose as to who should act as interpreter. Baptiste, the regular court interpreter, took his place, and Ah Toy and Ah Moy were chosen by Lawyer Meyer to see that Baptiste interpreted correctly. Ah Chun said: "I have no complaint to make against any one. I don't know why I am here. I know Tom Lee. I have no complaint against him. No one asked me to make a complaint against him. I have not sworn to any paper against him." Lawyer Meyer, astonished, showed Ah Chun his signature to the complaint, which he identified, but he claimed that Meyer had told him to sign the paper, and that he did not know what it contained. Mr. Meyer then asked if an agent from Tom Lee had not come to see him since he made the complaint and intimidated him. Ah Chun denied that any agent from Tom Lee had been to see him.

"Tsaw Ah Toy," continued Chun; "he came to the prison to see me with Mr. Meyer. Toy told me Mr. Meyer would get me clear of my trouble. He said they wanted me as a witness on both sides; that I should testify against Tom Lee. I don't know what they wanted of me, but I was in prison, and said I would do as they told me. I deny making any statements to Meyer against Tom Lee, and I don't know anything about the statements contained in that paper." Ah Chun then admitted that he kept opium joints, but denied that he paid any one for the privilege of keeping those places.

One of Tom Lee's lawyers said that if he could prove that Mr. Meyer had been tampering with witnesses in order to get Tom Lee in trouble he would have him before the Grand Jury. Mr. Meyer denied having done anything improper. He said Ah Chun had sent for him to act as his counsel. Justice White dismissed the charge against Tom Lee, and said: "I will send these papers down to the District Attorney. I was present when Ah Chun swore to them, after they had been duly interpreted to him. It is time that these people were taught a lesson, that they cannot come into a court and perjure themselves. Ah Chun, when he signed this complaint against Tom Lee, upon which I granted the warrant, was perfectly aware as to what he was doing. If, as he claims now, he had been intimidated in so doing, he could at once have had the protection of the Court."

FOR EUROPE IN THE ELBE.

Geistinger's Admirers Give her an Enthusiastic and German Send-off.

Hoboken revelled in osculation yesterday. The flower of that German elysium was gathered at the Second street pier resplendent in attire, vivacious in mind, sympathetic in gesture, affectionate by nature, and violently osculatory by impulse. At least four thousand people were on the pier and in adjacent streets. There could be no doubt in a candid observer's mind that every one of them had come to kiss every one else. This involved a great amount of agility, perseverance, promiscuousness, and risk, but they buckled to it body and soul.

The occasion of the excitement was the departure of the Elbe, which carried, among many hundred other Germans, the distinguished actress Marie Geistinger. At noon the crowd was so great that it was almost impossible for the late comers to force a passage to the ship. Overheated men, who were to sail on the Elbe, struggled frantically through the throng, clasping multifarious parcels, grip-sacks, shawls, and umbrellas in each hand, and fellow-eyed wives, tearful daughters, big-headed sons, and screaming children, all talking at once, and running into collision at every possible angle with everybody else.

There were women, too; several thousand of them. The majority had come to see the ship off, but they no sooner arrived than they were thrown into a state of torment, anxiety, and convulsive distress for fear the vessel might sail. Pending this calamity, they fell upon each other and kissed.

Half an hour after noon a woman of superb figure, majestic movement, and mobile face arrived at the gangplank surrounded by a group of persons, who attended her as though she were a queen. She was cheered at every step, and she responded by an infinite variety of smiles and nods as she went aboard. The forward cabin was a bank of flowers. Ships, wreaths, and bouquets of every size were packed on seats and tables, and nearly every one of them bore the legend, "For Madame Geistinger." The actress walked about among the flowers, expressing her delight at every step until 1 o'clock. Then she went on deck with her arms full of roses. A few minutes later the brass band ascended the poop deck and plunged recklessly into "The Watch on the Rhine." The steamer moved slowly out into the stream and swept down toward the bay, while the people on the pier clung together for a time and then streamed back into the streets of Hoboken.
