PAROLE COMES IN SECOND.

A LUCKY DAY FOR THE LORILLARDS AT MONMOUTH PARK.

Pizarro, Louisette, Monitor, Gonfalon, Battledore, and Charlemagne the Winners—A Very Closely Contested Steeplechase.

Yesterday was a Lorillard day at Monmouth. Pierre Lorillard's and G. L. Lorillard's colors came to the front in all the flat races. Monitor, in the Champion Stakes, beat Eole, who was also passed by Parole on the homestretch. The old horse had been six lengths behind, and his rush for second place created almost as much enthusiasm in the crowded grand stand as Monitor's victory. The steeplechase was exciting because the horses were bunched over the greater part of the course.

First Race—Purse of $500 for three-year-olds, distance one mile. Pearl Thorne, 103 lbs.; Long Knight, 105, $35; Kinglike, 108, $80; Pizarro, 118, $200; Swift, 108, $20; Emma Manly, 93; the field, $20.

Kinglike took the lead at the start, keeping it almost continually, though pressed by Long Knight, until the homestretch. Meanwhile, Pizarro had been hacking back. He was struggling at the half, and was third around the turn, but at the lucious Foakes pushed him to the fore, and he won in 1:48¾. Kinglike second, French pools, $7.90. After the race Pizarro galloped around the course and was greeted with a ripple of applause as he passed the stand.

Second Race—The Breeders' Stakes for foals of 1881, at $50 each for starters, with $2,500 added, of which $1,500 to the winner and $500 to the second. Distance, three-quarters of a mile. Leo, 104 pounds, $60; Thackeray, 110, and Louisette, 104, the pair $65; Eccolin, 107; Paradox, 104; Duchess, 107, $175; Blue Bell, 104; Himalaya, 110, $65; Tolu, 104; the field, $50.

This race was set down for 3:10 P. M. But owing to Louisette's restlessness the bunch was fifty minutes starting. Off they shot at last, after a series of ataplans from the stand, with Blue Bell first, Thackeray second, Himalaya third, and Louisette fourth. Himalaya led at the half, but after this it was nip and tuck between the Lorillard pair, Louisette winning in 1:16¾. French pools, $17.20.

Third Race—The Champion Stakes of $250 each, with $2,000 added; the second to receive $500 out of the stakes, and the third to save his stake; distance, one mile and a half. Eole, 129 pounds, $100; Parole, 118, $25; Monitor, 118, $65. Betting—10 to 7 on Eole, 9 to 5 against Monitor, and 6 to 1 against Parole.

The old horses were off in a jiffy, Eole first, Monitor second, Parole trailing. In that order they went past the stand, the quarter, and up the turn. From this point the excitement on the grand stand increased with every pace. Parole was still lengths behind, but Monitor was pressing forward. Down the backstretch he was at Eole's neck. At the half he was ahead. All three rushed around the lower turn, yells of "Eole! Monitor!" But as they came bounding down the homestretch there were yells of "Parole." Foakes was whipping the old horse. He passed Eole and pressed Monitor until it looked as if Hayward's elbow were in Parole's mouth. And so they crossed the line to a standing and shouting grand stand. Winner—Monitor, 2:36¾. Fractional time: Quarter, 26 seconds; half, 50½ seconds; three-quarters, 1:17½; mile, 1:42½; mile and a quarter, 2:09¼; mile and a half, 2:36¾. French pools, $14.65.

Fourth Race—Free handicap sweepstakes of $25 each, with 500 added, the second to receive $100 out of the stakes. Distance, one mile and three furlongs. Trombone, 103 pounds, $150; Brunswick, 102, $70; Vellum, 98, $250; Gonfalon, 107, $200; Red Fox, 103, $20.

Gonfalon led off but fell back to fourth place before the grand stand was passed. Brunswick taking the lead and keeping it till the railroad turn, with Vellum second down the backstretch. At the half Gonfalon crept up to third, passed Vellum as she swerved on the homestretch and pressed ahead of Brunswick, winning in 2:25. French pools, $14.40.

Fifth Race—Purse, $500. Long, 87 lbs., $45; Clarence, 93 lbs., $20; Battledore, 90 lbs., $80; Manhattan, 90 lbs., $10; Clara A., 100 lbs., $10; Navigator, 98 lbs., $35; Tasha, 88 lbs., $5. The race was easily won by Battledore in 1:16¾. Clarence, who was fifth until the three-quarters, struggled in with Clara A. for second position, which he won. French pools, $11.50.

Sixth Race—Handicap steeplechase. Purse, $500, of which $100 to the second. The full steeplechase course. Tasha, 138 pounds, $40; Castlemagne, 156 pounds, and Chipola, 129 pounds, the pair $100; Abraham, 126 pounds, $30; Burnham, 140 pounds; Captain York, 128, $55; Kate Cronin, 120 pounds; the field, $35.

The horses got away with Captain York first, Kate Cronin second, and Castlemagne third. Castlemagne soon dropped back. As they went around the course taking jump after jump the horses were well bunched, with Kate Cronin leading. When the water jump was reached the second time she was leading, with Burnham second, Captain York third, and Charlemagne fifth. But on the track Charlemagne came to the front and won in 5:13¾. Captain York second. French pools paid $15.05.

THE SARATOGA RACES.

Wapakonita, Drake Carter, Col. Sprague, and Voltaire the Winners.

SARATOGA, Aug. 11.—The Saratoga Racing Association began their second meeting to-day. The attendance was the largest for several years. There was not a vacant seat on the spacious grand stand.

The sport opened with a mile dash for a purse of $600, for which W. P. Burch was the favorite with Wapakonita second choice. Wapakonita won by two lengths Rostavan second, Al Hands second and third, and the favorite fifth. Time, 1:44. French pools paid $7.

The second event was the United States Hotel Stakes for three year olds, a mile and one-half dash. Drake was the favorite in the pools selling for $2 to $5 for Drake Carter. The first mile was run in 1:53 flat, with Drake Carter leading three lengths at a length. Barnes then made a desperate effort to get the lead, and came into the stretch at a terrific pace on even terms. Drake Carter won by a neck amid the wildest enthusiasm. Time, 2:37. French pools paid $21.

The third race, a free handicap sweepstakes for all ages, mile and 300 yards, was won by Col. Sprague, with Falsetto second, Tom Ochiltree second, and Tanner third. Time, 2:14. French pools paid $128. Lida stumbled fell in the middle of the backstretch, and after warding two miles before Lida stopped.

The fourth race, for maiden two-year-olds, five furlongs, was won by Voltaire by a length; Bob May, the favorite, second, and Powhattan third. Time, 1:00¾. French pools paid $11.70. Voltaire sold in the field.

The Whisper Conquers the Parole.

There was a lively race yesterday between the crack open sloop yachts Parole and Whisper. The match was for $400 a side, but there was considerable outside betting. Wall street men backing the Whisper freely. Capt. Jake Schmidt, with his big Newfoundland dog sailor for first mate, sailed the Parole, and Capt. A. B. Alley, a skilled Corinthian of the Seawanhaka Yacht Club, took the tiller on the Whisper. The course was from off the Good Anchorage, Tompkinsville, S. I., to and around Fort Lafayette, thence to Romer Shoal Buoy, thence to Robbin's Reef buoy, and return to home stakeboat, sailed over twice. The Whisper crossed the line at 1:20:25, Parole, 1:20:58 P. M. There was a glorious breeze from east southeast, and the racers sheared quickly over to Fort Lafayette. At the half Gonfalon crept up to third, passed Vellum as she swerved on the homestretch and pressed ahead of Brunswick, winning in 2:25. French pools, $14.40.

Fifth Race—Purse, $500. Long, 87 lbs., $45; Clarence, 93 lbs., $20; Battledore, 90 lbs., $80; Manhattan, 90 lbs., $10; Clara A., 100 lbs., $10; Navigator, 98 lbs., $35; Tasha, 88 lbs., $5. The race was easily won by Battledore in 1:16¾. Clarence, who was fifth until the three-quarters, struggled in with Clara A. for second position, which he won. French pools, $11.50.

Sixth Race—Handicap steeplechase. Purse, $500, of which $100 to the second. The full steeplechase course. Tasha, 138 pounds, $40; Castlemagne, 156 pounds, and Chipola, 129 pounds, the pair $100; Abraham, 126 pounds, $30; Burnham, 140 pounds; Captain York, 128, $55; Kate Cronin, 120 pounds; the field, $35.

The horses got away with Captain York first, Kate Cronin second, and Castlemagne third. Castlemagne soon dropped back. As they went around the course taking jump after jump the horses were well bunched, with Kate Cronin leading. When the water jump was reached the second time she was leading, with Burnham second, Captain York third, and Charlemagne fifth. But on the track Charlemagne came to the front and won in 5:13¾. Captain York second. French pools paid $15.05.

THE ROWERS AT WATKINS.

Interest in the Contest Between Hanlan and Courtney—The Other Races.

WATKINS, Aug. 11.—Both Hanlan and Courtney are here preparing for the regatta on Seneca Lake on Tuesday and Wednesday next. Hanlan came last Tuesday, accompanied by Hosmer, and Courtney turned up on the next afternoon. The probability that these two oarsmen will get together in an honest and bona fide contest excites much interest all through this region, and among lovers of aquatic sports everywhere. Courtney's friends keep insisting upon it that he can beat the Canadian, and that in all their contests heretofore he has been the victim of circumstances. This regatta gives him an opportunity to show really how much of an oarsman he is. These are, as you might say, his own waters, and if he can't win here he can't win anywhere. He has expressed himself to the effect that he was going to put out the best he had in him this time, and if he didn't win it it would only be because he couldn't pull fast enough. There is no better course anywhere for rowing contests than the one here provided by the Watkins Regatta Association. It lies on the west shore of the lake, the start being only a few hundred yards from the steamboat landing, and it stretches one mile and a half down, parallel with the shore, on as pretty a piece of water as the sun shines on. When it is smooth it is like glass; and protected by the hills that rise abruptly from the shore, it is never very rough except with a sharp northeast or southeast breeze. Any day for the past week the surface of the water has been like a mirror. Along there, too, the depth is very great.

The entries for the several races announced are well filled, except for the pair-oared race, which failed entirely. A doubled-sculled race will be substituted for this. The purse for the professional single scull is $600—$300 to the first, $200 to the second, and $100 to the third. For the other races there are banners for the clubs and badges for the individual winners. The banners are of satin, with heavy gold cord, fringe, and tassels, and the designs, lettering, and emblems worked out with gold thread. The badges are of gold, all of them bearing symbols of the nature of the contests, such as oars, tridents, and laurel wreaths and sprays.

The first day, Tuesday, will be devoted to the trial heats for the professionals and the senior and junior singles, and on the second day will come their final heats. The other races will be dependent upon circumstances and state of the water. The men will be called each afternoon promptly at 3 o'clock. It is expected that E. W. Mitchell of Elmira, Superintendent of that division of the United States Express Company, will act as referee on both days. He is himself an accomplished oarsman, and thoroughly up in all aquatic matters.

The entries for the professional single scull race number fourteen, taking in most of the best known oarsmen of the country. They are: Edward Hanlan, C. E. Courtney, Hosmer, Wallace and Edward Ross, George W. Lee, J. Tesmer, J. A. Ten Eyck, Joun Ritz of Wheeling, W. Va.; Jacob Gaudaur of St. Louis, William Elliott of England, Fred Plaisted, Harry Sharlow, and James Gaudaur of Buffalo. These are all here, and are practising daily, to the great pleasure of the passengers on the steamboats, who crowd the decks and applaud them as they go by. There is no secret made of the fact that Hanlan gets $400 as a surety for rowing here, although it gives occasion for the remark that the whole affair will be simply a hippodrome. This is the reflection generally made all through this region. But Hanlan says that the purse was not big enough to tempt him to come and take it, and P. W. Jackson, the Secretary, says that Hanlan would not come at all unless they paid him for rowing.

"Hanlan is our big attraction," said Mr. Jackson, "and our prices were fixed to be amounted to little without him. I don't see why he shouldn't row just as square. He's got his reputation as an oarsman at stake, all the same, and if he wins, he will carry away $700, which is something to come to Watkins for."

Base Ball Yesterday.

The New York team, in their eighth game with the Philadelphia team yesterday at the Polo grounds were indebted to the effective pitching of Welch and the masterly catching of Humphries for the victory they scored. Evans will have to look to his laurels, for Humphries is playing in splendid form, and he seems to be just the catcher for Welch's pitching. The score was:

A WOMAN'S VIEW OF BASE BALL.

Mrs. Diogenes Watches a Game and Deplores the Insanity of Man.

I see by the newspapers that some base ball nine is having considerable difficulty in finding some one to catch, or pitch, or do something or other in its games. I don't wonder a bit. If the man they want has to submit to anything like the rough and tumble performance I saw the other day on the Polo Grounds, he will need more than his salary to pay the doctors for repairing him. I accepted Mr. Diogenes's invitation to see what he called "the beauties of the national game." It was a broiling hot day, but Mr. D. said the game would be hot in proportion, so we started. We got to the grounds after the trouble had begun.

It was the first time I had ever seen base ball played. It will be the last. What I saw confirms me in the belief that men's ideas of sport are inexplicable on any theory except temporary insanity. I had heard of people who enjoyed getting into fights because they had the fun of getting all smashed to pieces. I didn't believe it, however, until I saw a base ball game. Then I was convinced. I should think there must have been as many as 5,000 people, besides Mr. D. and myself, looking on the eighteen wild men who gyrated about the ball grounds. A great many in the throng were ladies, and, to my amazement, they seemed to enjoy what they saw.

As we took our seats I saw a man throw a round object with all his might and main right at a man who held something like a cartrung in his hand. The missile came so close to the cartrung man's head that, as he dodged it, the man who stood right behind him, and another person who stood right at the second man's heels ducked their heads in unison with the man with the cart rung to escape being hit. The missile finally struck the side of the grand stand with a noise like the explosion of a cannon. Nobody seemed surprised. Mr. D. explained that the missile was a ball, and that what I thought was a cart rung was not a cartrung, but a bat. He said the men always threw the ball like that in the hope that the "striker" could not hit it with the bat. I examined the man with the bat, expecting to see he didn't look a bit like a labor agitator, much less a striker. I told Mr. D. so. He laughed and said that that was a technical name only.

The man who stood behind the bat had a cage built around his head, and wore thick gloves. The man behind him also had his cranium enclosed in wire. He jumped up and down and watched the man who hurled the ball, and the ball itself, as if he considered himself in imminent danger of being made a target. I asked Mr. D. about the cages. "Oh," said he, "that's part of the outfit. Formerly they didn't wear those masks; but on one or two occasions the striker, in hitting at the ball, brought the bat accidentally in collision with the catcher's head. The shock split the bat. The captain of the nine complained, after this had happened several times, that bats were too costly to be wasted in splitting kindling wood in that way. The catcher objected, too. He said he couldn't afford to have a headache during a match. To satisfy both players, masks were adopted. All the damage that an accomplished batsman can now hope to inflict upon the opposite nine is to smash the mask to pieces."

While Mr. D. was talking the striker hit the ball. It shot upward as if fired from a gun, and the man who hit it ran away as fast as his legs could carry him. Two other men who had been standing at different points watching him followed his example. The crowd began to yell until it was nearly deaf. The ball dropped like a meteor, and a man who had stood with his eyes turned skyward waiting for it. It went into his hands with a terrible whack, and he promptly let go of it. The crowd yelled in derision. The man yelled too. Then he seized his left wrist with his right hand, and whirled round and round, howling like a madman. Next he doubled up as if he had the cramps, and finally he fell down flat on the ground and had there. Another man rushed out, yelling like mad, picked up the ball and hurled it to the man with the cage and gloves. The man who was frantically running toward him tripped, fell flat on his chest, and shot along the ground for a distance of two yards like a boy coasting on a sled. He raised his head during the remarkable journey, and brought it down with a whack on a white square at the foot of the man with the cage and gloves. The latter planted his heel on the hard ball with great force and aim. At the same time he caught the ball, sat down with great emphasis and enthusiasm on the back of the prostrate man, gave him a terrific thump in the ribs with the ball, and then held the ball in the air and shouted:

"Judgment!"

"Not out," yelled the other man with a mask. Instantly the place echoed with hisses, and the crowd shouted, "Oh, put him out!" "Teach him the rules," "O'Reilley, you're N. G.," and other mysterious salutations.

The umpire seemed to be the only person in the least disturbed by this deluge of abuse. He only laughed.

"Oh, that's nothing," said Mr. D. "He's only the umpire. That's part of the perquisites of his position. He's used to it. Out West they sometimes dance all over the umpire. It makes him impartial, and prevents him from going to sleep. It also enlivens the game immensely."

The man who made a sliding pond of the dirt got up with his uniform torn at both knees, and spoke to another man pressing his chest and gasping for breath. Eight men bodily assisted him by congratulating him simultaneously. They shook his hands until the last small remnant of breath was quite gone out of him, and then sat him down, and waited with affectionate anxiety till his lungs began very slowly to inflate again. As soon as he could speak he said weakly: "By gracious, that home run was a close shave for us."

The man who had gyrated, and howled, and doubled up, and tumbled over backward to show some signs of returning life. Two players went out and picked him up. They found that the first joint of one of his fingers was broken. Nobody appeared to pay much attention to it. Another man took his place and stood out in the field, inviting sunstroke with calm indifference. The game went on much as before. Once the striker hit the ball, and it shot backward over his head, and it shot back at a man who was sitting on the board seats.

The umpire shouted "Foul," the crowd shouted "Shoot the bat," and the man made some brief remark that was lost in the uproar. Incidents of this kind and liberal abuse of the man who was described as the umpire filled up two hours of time, and then the game stopped abruptly, the umpire retired amid a storm of hisses, and the crowd dispersed.

I looked in the paper the next day to see how it struck the newspaper men. I saw that the "home team were beaten by a score of 5 to 3. Moffett had his finger broken in muffing a fly." There was not a line about the other exciting incidents, excepting where one man, in throwing a ball, got a bruise on his chest. That was down in the score as "an error in play." Mr. D. explained that the many tumbles and other things we saw were so common in the noble game that no notice was taken of them in the papers, unless some one happened to be serious enough to be injured.

Mr. D. thought it was rare fun. If I ever catch his hopeful son playing base ball, I'll thrash him. MRS. DIOGENES.

QUEER SUICIDES.

The wife of the Rev. Mr. Vetter of Oberlin, Ohio, committed suicide by holding her face in eighteen inches of water. She was 60 years old.

In an effort to commit to memory the entire Bible Jarvis Fisher lost his reason and took his life in the State Asylum at Harrisburg, Pa.

Frank Kuhn, a young man of Erie, Pa., hanged himself because his mother had accidentally killed Alice Steiner, 9 years old, by carelessly handling a revolver.

In a delirium through a sunstroke, Daniel B. Phillips of Boston, the evangelist, strangled himself on his knees at King Oak Hill, in North Weymouth, Mass., as related spot.

The merest trifle caused Miss Ida Bussele, aged 18 years of Carter's Creek Va., to quarrel with her lover one evening, and after his departure she blew her brains out with a revolver.

Remorse at being an accomplice in a murder for which he was arrested, but cleared, caused G. L. Strable of Lansing, Kansas to throw himself into a deep well, in which he was drowned.

The night that Miss Jennie Brazelton of Denver expected to be a happy bride her lover sent her a note saying he would not marry her. She became wild with grief, took morphine, and died.
