DR. ISAAC N. QUIMBY.

The Place in Politics of the Head of the New Jersey Prohibition Ticket.

A reporter called yesterday on Dr. Isaac N. Quimby of Jersey City, who is the candidate for Governor on the Home Protective Prohibition ticket. The Doctor was found in his office at the rear of his fine residence on Jersey avenue. He was seated in a large easy chair, and enveloped in the folds of a gray wrapper with cardinal trimmings. His hair, which is allowed to grow without hindrance, hung over his shoulders, and its abundant locks, supplemented by a heavy beard, made a broad border around his rather sharp-featured face. He is one of the most widely known, and [illegible] to his belief, one of [illegible] according in New Jersey. [illegible] the least understood men [illegible]. For years he has been conspicuous in politics. He was a local organizer of the Greenback, National Labor, and Anti-Monopolist movements. He has also been a temperance lecturer. He has written essays on temperance, and by circulating them through the State has attracted the attention of the prohibition agitators. The latter, at the last gubernatorial election, polled 38 votes, but since then the Doctor has been prolific in the production of temperance literature, and he now hopes for better things. His name has frequently been mentioned for various offices by different parties, but only once before was he actually nominated. This was a couple of years ago, as Director of Education in the Third district of Jersey City, where he resides, but was defeated. His nomination by the Prohibitionists, he says, was a complete surprise to him. He denies that he has ever had any affiliation with the Prohibitionists as a political party. He has, however, been a Nationalist, and says that he was promised, and that he confidently expected to receive, their Gubernatorial nomination at their recent Convention at Asbury Park. He attributes his disappointment to the machinations of Thomas V. Cator, formerly one of his associates in the anti-monopoly movement, who was elected two years ago to the Assembly on the Democratic ticket, and who was reelected a year later on the Republican ticket, and is now a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senator. The Doctor has also been conspicuous in the ranks of Jersey City's municipal reformers. He has been a member of many citizens' committees to devise remedies for the abuses of the local Government.

"I am really a Republican," he said, "but I am deadly opposed to the Republican party as it now exists. The party is thoroughly demoralized. If my action weakens the Republicans locally I can't help it. The Democratic party I prefer to the Republican. We don't know what the Democrats would do if in power, but they couldn't do any worse than the Republicans have done. If what is left of the country has to be stolen before we get down to hard-pan honesty, I am perfectly willing to let the Democrats do the balance of the stealing. We have no further use for a party that thrives on the principle of Addition, Division, and Silence.' The Nationalists claim that their mission is to rectify the evils of the other parties. I told them they were undertaking a pretty big contract. Since they held the Convention I have ceased to belong to them. I am now, as nearly as I can toil, an Anti-Monopoly-Republican.

"What is the remedy for Jersey City's condition? Well, really, I don't see any remedy. Our debt is piled up mountain high. The Boards are under the control of the railroads, and vast tracts of our property owned by railroads are exempt from taxation. The area of this exempt property is annually increasing, and in the course of time we shall find some squatter who owns a shanty and keeps goats in Bergen Hill the sole surviving taxpayer of the city. As an example, take Union township. Last year its realty was valued at over $1,000,000. This year it is valued at $400,000. The railroads in the interval acquired the property represented by the difference, $600,000, and the property so acquired became exempt. I shall allow my name to remain at the head of the Prohibition ticket, but I shall take no active part in the campaign."

A WEALTHY FARMER'S FOLLY.

The Misfortune that he Says Induced him to Become a Horse Thief.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 13.—C. R. Witters owns a farm two miles from Le Roy, N. Y., worth $12,000, and it is said he is worth as much more. J. R. Babcock is a prominent farmer living near Hornellsville. On the 28th of May last, as Mr. Babcock came out of a store in this place, he saw a stranger examining his horse, which was tied in front of the store. On seeing Babcock the stranger, who was a well-dressed, respectable-looking man of middle age, asked him if he wanted to sell the horse, which was a valuable one. Receiving a negative reply, the stranger then informed Babcock that he was the agent of a patent potato-digging machine, and that he would send him a circular that might induce him to buy one. Mr. Babcock then drove away. On the afternoon of the same day Babcock's hired man drove the horse to the village, and being tired in front of a barber shop, went in to get shaved. When he came out the horse was gone, and no trace of it could be found in or about the village. The potato digger agent was at once suspected of having stolen the property, but as no one knew exactly how he had come from or what his name was, he could not be followed. After weeks of search Mr. Babcock gave up his horse as lost.

One day last week Mr. Babcock received a circular describing a patent potato digger. It was postmarked Le Roy, and bore the signature of C. R. Witters. Recognizing the services of an officer, Babcock went to Le Roy, and found Witters at work in a field on his farm and the missing horse in his barn. He was arrested but denied having stolen the horse, declaring that he had bought it in Sandusky, Ohio, recently, however, he confessed to the crime. He said that while he was in Hornellsville he was either robbed of or lost several hundred dollars. He was sentenced to go back home and acknowledge the loss of the money, and as he was walking along the street with derisive shouts he would do he saw Babcock's horse. The idea then struck him that he would steal the horse and drive it home and report that he purchased it, thus accounting for the missing money. The plan worked admirably, as he would probably never have been detected but for the insane freak of sending the circular to Babcock.

The arrest of the rich farmer as a horse thief has created great sentiment in the community where he has lived many years, and where himself and family were highly respected.

Thos. G. Hunt in America.

Thomas G. Hunt of 137 Front street, the oil merchant who disappeared mysteriously on June 29, was found in Elizabethtown, Essex county, New York, on Wednesday morning. At 5 o'clock he appeared at the residence of a friend, E. W. Livingstone, who immediately telegraphed to Mr. Edwin Swain of New York and Mr. Hunt's two brothers-in-law of New Bedford, Mass. William A. Alde, and Henry Pierce.

Mr. Hunt seemed depressed, and was suffering with pain in his head. He stated as a reason for his disappearance that he supposed he had lost everything in a land speculation. He could give no clear account of his wanderings. He thinks that he went from Trenton to Cambridge, Eng., and returned immediately. He has recollections of lying sick in a hospital in Chicago, of being in Montreal on Tuesday, of leaving there on the railway, and getting out at Westport, eight miles from Elizabethtown. He left on Wednesday night, accompanied by his two brothers-in-law, for his home at New Bedford, Mass.

Mayor Edson Writes of the Bridge Builders.

Mayor Edson has written the following letter to the Mayor of Mühlhausen Thuringia:

"SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 17th ult., in which you mention the marks of distinction conferred by your municipality upon John A. Roebling, the builder of the New York and Brooklyn Bridge. On behalf of the citizens of New York I desire to express to you our appreciation of the generous spirit which prompts you to testify your recognition of the distinguished abilities of Mr. Roebling, and to assure you that we heartily join with you in doing honor to his memory and to the rare skill and energy of his scarcely less distinguished son, Washington A. Roebling. The cities of New York and Brooklyn have in the bridge itself a most lasting monument of the genius, the perseverance, and the sacrifice of these great engineers whose memory your municipality loves to [illegible]."

KITES A PENNY APIECE.

Turned Out by the Thousand at a Cost Price of 3-16 of a Cent Each.

On the roof of a five-story east-side tenement last night a boy was sitting astride of the wooden frame to which the clothes lines were attached. On a chimney a little way off was another boy. On the peak of the little structure above the scuttle in the roof a third was posed. A fourth leaned as far out from the front wall as he could without falling to the street below. Other roofs all over that part of the city had other boys in like positions. All of them held strings in their hands, and up against the clear sky in the east hundreds of kites were wriggling and darting around like tadpoles.

"Where did you get that kite?" was asked of the boy on the gable above the scuttle.

"Bought it," said he.

"How much did it cost?"

"Cent. Say, have yer got any string?"

"The penny kite," said a dealer, "is a simple affair, but those unfamiliar with the business think it a marvel of cheapness. They are all alike in size and shape, but differ in color. The kite consists of a piece of paper and three slender sticks. The piece of paper is from one-eighth to one-sixth of a full sheet, a ream of which will weigh forty pounds. The paper costs seven cents a pound, so the piece for a kite costs about one-sixteenth of a cent. A foot of pine will make sticks for sixty kites. At the market rate for lumber they will cost about as much as the paper, or a little more. The materials of the kite thus cost about one-eighth of a cent. Sometimes the paper is printed with a picture of a horse or a yacht, or some other fancy cut. This adds twenty-five cents a thousand to the cost, but gives a variety for the boys to choose from.

"The paper, cut to the right size, is piled on a table on one side of a girl. Two piles of sticks are at her other hand, and a pot of paste and a brush before her. She spreads out a piece of the paper and runs the paste brush around the edge. Then two of the longer sticks are laid on in the form of an X. Across the cross of the X a shorter one is laid. Then the pasted edges of the paper are folded over, enclosing the ends of the sticks. The completed kite is laid away to dry. Cost for labor, one-sixteenth of a cent. Cost of the kite, three-sixteenths of a cent. Some cost as high as three-fifths of a cent, but they sell no better than the others. There is a fair margin of profit all around."

CASTING LOTS IN COURT.

Judge Potter Puts his Hand in the Hat and Draws Orlando B. Potter.

When Judge Potter, on Wednesday, after hearing argument of counsel, reserved his decision upon a motion by the plaintiffs for a receiver in the suit of Robert J. Livingston and Louisa M. Livingston against William H. Webb, to determine a controversy about the renewal of a long lease of the site of the Hotel Bristol, at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, he suggested that the arbitrators, who were $100,000 apart in their estimate of the value of the land, should endeavor if possible, before yesterday morning, to agree upon an umpire. While the arbitrators for the landlords put the value at $150,000, Mr. Webb's arbitrator said that $50,000 was a fair price.

At the opening of the court yesterday, Mr. Elbridge T. Gerry, for plaintiffs, proposed that either Frederick H. Cossett, Sr., or George H. MacCulloch should be selected as umpire. Mr. George S. Hamlin, for Mr. Webb, proposed either Orlando B. Potter or E. S. Higgins. William F. Dixon, solicitor for the Livingstons, and Michael Coleman, for Mr. Webb, after a brief conference, informed the counsel that they were unable to agree in the selection of an umpire.

Then Mr. Gerry suggested that the names proposed on either side should be written upon slips of paper and put in a hat, and that Judge Potter should select one from the hat one ballot, the name upon the paper thus drawn to be accepted. Mr. Hamlin assenting to the proposition, one of the gentlemen present wrote upon a scrap of paper, and the ballots were carefully folded before they were deposited in the hat. Judge Potter remarking that "it was important to have honest returns in this election." The hat, after having been vigorously shaken, was passed by a court officer to the Judge, who, turning aside his face, drew out one ballot. Opening it, he announced that the name drawn was Orlando B. Potter.

Messrs. Gerry and Hamlin nodded approval, and Mr. Gerry proposed that Mr. Potter's name should be inserted as umpire in the order which had been drawn covering the proceedings. Mr. Hamlin insisted that the mode of selecting the umpire had nothing to do with the litigation, and should not be made a part of the order, but his suggestion in the matter was put over until to-day, for the purpose of further discussion as to the form of the order.

A $500,000 Fire in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The five shops operated by the United States Rolling Stock Company in Blue Island avenue, this city, were burned at a late hour last night, with their contents. The fire started in the planing mill department near the engine room, and, before the firemen arrived, had spread throughout the shops, and within an hour all were destroyed. These included the planing mill, machine and blacksmith shop, car shop, engine room, and drying room. The paint shop and the office were saved. Twenty-five cars for the Chicago and Atlantic Railroad, a part of which, it is said, have recently been contracted for, were burned. The Superintendent of the works says that the loss will reach $500,000. The machinery, buildings, and tools, he said, were worth $200,000, and that the stock destroyed was very large and valuable, including sixty complete cars valued at $500 each, and about one million feet of lumber. The total insurance is $318,300, distributed among a large number of companies. The company employed five hundred hands here. Adolph Segeisch of New York is President and C. Benn of New York Treasurer of the company. The capital stock is five million dollars, and most of it is in the hands of English stockholders.

A Plea for the Old.

CHAUTAUQUA, Aug. 16.—In the Amphitheatre this morning the Rev. P. S. Henson of Chicago lectured, his subject being "A Plea for the Old." The lecturer proposed to make a plea for old folks, old culture, and the old faith. Now, with more than Athenian eagerness for something new, hearts and minds are turned to the young. It is so at Chautauqua. Childhood touches every heart. Its possibilities are boundless, but there is something infinitely more inspiring in the white-haired old man. Young America should cultivate reverence for old age. The boy is the governor, but old folks have some rights still. A plea was made for old colleges and culture, and reference was made to the cults and vandals attacking every classic shrine and calling the classics fetish. We want something practical. Material interests are real, they not material; they are substantials. Man is a bigger thing than a mountain, bigger than the great earth itself. To know is to grow. The lecturer made a plea for the old book and the old faith. A little learning, he said, was likely to make a man a fool. The old book is not in peril. It illuminated the Darwinian principle of the survival of the fittest.

Reorganization of Washington Navy Yard.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—It is said at the Navy Department that the reorganization of the Washington Navy Yard will probably be completed by the 1st of September. The yard will thenceforth be a naval arsenal rather than a regular navy yard, and although, as a consequence of the reorganization, a number of the departments will be abolished, the force of workmen in the others will be increased, so that when the yard is in complete running order it will contain, it is thought, a greater number of employees than at any time during the past two or three years.

Yellow Fever in Pensacola Navy Yard.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—A telegram was received at the Navy Department to day from Commander Welch, commanding the navy yard at Pensacola, saying that there was a case of yellow fever in the Marine Guard, and that two other men were sent to the hospital today, whose cases have not been decided. Instructions were telegraphed to Commander Welch to transfer the Marine Guard to Cape Anson, six miles from the navy yard, and to make all the sanitary arrangements necessary for the health of the yard. orders were also issued to Surgeon Martin at New Orleans to proceed to Pensacola and render assistance.

No Indian Outrages in Sonora.

TUCSON, Aug. 16.—Major Strauss of Tucson has just returned from Hermosillo, Sonora, and says that while there he made careful inquiry of both civil and military officials concerning the reported Apache depredations in Sonora since Gen. Crook's return. They all told him that they had not received any information, official or private, of a single person being killed, or of any depredations since Gen. Crook left Sonora. They believe that the reports are without foundation, and were simply started for sensational purposes.

The Anti-organ Convention.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 16.—The Anti-organ Convention of the United Presbyterian Church adjourned sine die at 12 o'clock last night. The last hours of the session were taken up with the reading of a long paper by the Rev. R. H. Browne D. D., of Newcastle, Pa., on the actualities and capabilities of missions in the United Presbyterian Church. Thirty-five presbyteries were represented in the Convention by 370 laymen and 103 ministers.

Returning Applications for Office.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The Interior Department, in order to relieve its files of superfluous papers, is returning applications for office, which have not been favorably considered, to the applicants. There are now on the files of the department a great mass of such papers, which are of no use under the present system to any one, and only take up room. The number of applications filed since a date as recent as 1879 exceeds 100,000.

An Outlaw Shot and Captured.

TROY, Aug. 16.—Mart Casey of Stephentown, Rensselaer county, an outlaw, was captured in the mountains this morning by a posse of five deputy Sheriffs armed with shotguns. Casey was fired upon and brought down with charges of shot in the legs and head. He was taken to Pittsfield, Mass., to answer an indictment. He had long terrified the villages and raided farms, and had defied arrest.

Incendiary Fires.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Aug. 16.—The barn on the farm of Joseph Supplee, in Worcester township, was destroyed by fire last night, with the crops and farm machinery. This is the fifth barn burned within a radius of ten miles and within a period of ten days. The fires are all supposed to have been of incendiary origin, and a reward of $1,000 has been offered for the capture of the incendiary.

Republicans Oppose Fair Apportionment.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 16.—In the Senate to-day the following resolution was offered by Mr. Patton (Dem.):

That a committee be appointed by the Senate to meet a similar committee to be appointed by the House, with instructions to frame Congressional and legislative Apportionment bills with a few certain and as many close and doubtful districts as they may find it possible to make, having due regard for the requirements of the Constitution, so that the will of the people may have its full effect at all future elections for representatives in the State and National Legislature, and all changes in public sentiment growing out of the conventions exercises of private judgment in political affairs may have due expression through the ballot box and full fruition in our halls of legislation.

After considerable discussion the resolution was defeated by a party vote of 14 to 17, the affirmative vote being cast by the Democrats.

New Route for Pleasure Travel.

TROY, Aug. 16.—Wilhelm Pickhardt of New York two years ago purchased 4,000 acres of land on the east shore of Schroon Lake, Essex county. A farm has been enclosed for deer imported from Germany, and a project is now on foot to raise Salmon in Lake four feet, and make navigable Schroon River from Starbuckville to the head of Schroon Lake, a distance of eighteen miles, and to enable steamboats to pass to Paradox Lake, making the distance by steamboat 28 miles. It is intimated that the project includes a narrow gauge railroad from Lake George to Starbuckville, thence by steamboat to Paradox Lake, and thence by rail to Crown Point, making a new route for pleasure travel. Mr. Pickhardt has already greatly improved Schroon village.

Secretary Folger's Vacation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—A private letter has been received in Washington from Secretary Folger, who is in Minnesota, saying that he will make a short visit to his home in Geneva before returning to this city, and will probably be at the Treasury Department on the 27th inst.
