AUDITOR JACKSON'S BLUNDERS.

The Comptroller Accuses him of Certifying the Same Claim Twice in Two Days.

Comptroller Grant served yesterday upon Daniel Jackson, Auditor of Accounts in the Finance Department, the charges on which he intends to remove him from office, and advised Mr. Jackson that he can have a hearing on Monday at 10 o'clock. The general charge is negligence.

It is recited that since Mr. Jackson took office nearly $150,000 more than was due for interest on coupon bonds has been paid out on his audit. One specification is that Mr. Jackson, on June 7, 1881, certified as correct a claim of E. Morrison & Co. for $700, purporting to represent the amount of twenty coupons of $35 each, due May 1, 1881, and for interest on tax relief bonds, the numbers of the coupons being set out in detail on the schedule annexed to the voucher; and that two days later he certified as correct Hagen & Billing's claim for $700 on the same coupons. Another specification alleges that on May 17 and May 18, 1881, Mr. Jackson audited two claims of Hagen & Billing for $700 for interest on the same kind of bonds, the numbers of the coupons annexed to each schedule being the same. The tax relief bonds are numbered consecutively, each coupon bearing the number of the bond to which it is attached, and there could not have been outstanding during Mr. Jackson's term two genuine coupons cut from bonds of that series lawfully issued, due on the same day, calling for the same amounts, and bearing the same numbers.

It is also recited that on Aug. 9, 1883, Mr. Jackson certified a claim of $311.80 as payable to "M. P. A. Casey or Michael Casey assignee." The warrant could have been collected by M. P. A. Casey but the payment would not have protected the city against a future claim by Michael Casey.

The Comptroller also charged that Mr. Jackson, on Oct. 1, 1883, audited a September pay roll of the Health Department at $622.50, instead of $615; that on Oct. 22, 1883, he audited a bill of William Walgrain against the School Trustees of the Fifteenth Ward at $282.66, instead of $182.66; that on June 28, 1883, he audited the Journal of Commerce's bill for publishing an advertisement at $12, and on Sept. 18, 1883, again audited a claim of the same paper for publishing the same advertisement on the same day and at the same sum. There are some other similar charges.

Wickedness in Varick Street.

Romeyn Mulligan of 789 Willoughby street, Brooklyn, went to the Leonard street police station yesterday, and created a panic by declaring that he had lost $1,500 at faro at 68 Varick street. Detectives Handy and Fogarty went round with him. Mulligan told them that Thomas Flynn had accosted him in Canal street, and had taken him to the house, where Stephen Fields, in his shirt sleeves and a straw hat and holding a broom, stood outside as if he were cleaning off the sidewalk.

"Sure enough," said Handy to a reporter of THE SUN, "when we went to that number there stood old Fields with his broom in hand and his straw hat on his head. He hobbled into the house when he saw us. There was considerable trouble in making the door bell ring. So I just went around at the back of the house and saw Flynn throwing into a washtub that stood on the fire escape a lot of cards and chips. He covered the tub over, and I heard him say: 'Let 'em in, Sam.' I went back to the front and the door was opened. Mulligan identified Flynn and Fields, but they insisted that he was mistaken. They denied ever having had a card in the house. I found two chips, layout, and cards in the washtub." At the Tombs Justice White discharged Fields, but held Flynn to bail for trial.

Diplomas for Seventeen Trained Nurses.

The patients in the medical ward in Charity Hospital on Blackwell's Island were moved out yesterday morning to make room for the celebration of the seventh annual commencement of Charity and Maternity Hospital Training School for Nurses. The graduates sat in front seats, looking pretty as well as dignified in white caps and aprons. Ex-Mayor Wickham made an address, in which he said that his child's life had been saved by a graduate of the school. Diplomas were given to the graduates and Dr. L. Z. Seaman of Charity Hospital announced that friends of the graduating class, through himself, had presented a pin, with a figure of Charity engraved on it, to each member of the class. To Miss Elizabeth McIsaacs, for general excellence, Mr. Bailey had given $50, and to Miss Elizabeth M. Green, for standing second, a note book and satchel and instruments for professional work.

Three Men Hurt by a Gas Exploision.

On Wednesday evening, while the plumbers were at work drawing off the gas from the gasometer at the Woodsburgh Pavilion, the gas became ignited by the flame from a candle, exploding the tank. Mr. Martin Wood, who was in the hotel at the time, was thrown down and severely injured. Gilbert Baldwin was terribly burned about the head, and his injuries, it is feared, may prove fatal. Jesse Conklin, a plumber, was also seriously injured.

Prison Life Agrees with Mr. Palmer.

Ex-Auditor Frederick A. Palmer, who is serving twenty years in the Trenton state prison for robbing Newark of $300,000, was a witness yesterday in the suit of Henry Lire against Newark to recover an award of damages. Palmer wore a brown overcoat and a dark business suit, and was evidently in better health and better humor than when he was in the City Hall. He was on the stand half an hour, and was then taken back to Trenton.

Car Conductor Dockarty's Luck.

Peter Docharty, a car conductor of the Sixth Avenue Railroad Company, stumbled over a pocketbook a few days ago while he was off duty and walking in Sixth avenue at Twenty-third street. He found a $5,000 United States bond in the pocketbook, advertised it, and received a $500 note from the owner. Docharty is going to give up car conducting and start a grocery.
