THE OLLAGAWALLA'S ROADS.

He Will Back them Against All Europe and Call Vanderbilt as Witness.

Col. James J. Mooney told the Senate Committee yesterday that a full record of the measurements of the material familiar to his bureau was in a book which he could not find. He left it in his office one day last week, but had not since seen it.

In reply to Senator Gibbs he said that he sometimes dealt in real estate, stocks, and horses, but refused to tell whether he had made any money in business outside of his official occupation. Then Senator Gibbs asked whether he had ever sold horses or leased to private parties carts which belonged to the city.

The Ollagawalla Chief arose, and, removing his eyeglasses asked, "Do you wish to insult me?"

Senator Gibbs smiled and fingered a silver-headed walking stick. The Ollagawalla warrior then declared "It is none of the committee's business how much money I have made in any business, and I will not answer such questions."

Senator Gibbs inquired whether the Colonel ever went to State Conventions, and the quick answer was, "I generally go, but my business is in competent hands when I'm away."

Col. Mooney, in answer to a question, said that the roadway in 145th street was in bad condition when he went to work on it.

Senator Lansing objected to the question, saying that the condition of 145th street had nothing to do with the investigation. Thereupon the Colonel again stood up and said: "The roads I have built are superior to any roads in this country or in Europe."

"You are talking about something of which you have no knowledge," Lawyer Whitridge mildly interposed. "You haven't seen all the roads in America and in Europe."

The Ollagawalla Chief again arose and said: "I know I haven't. But I have letters from William H. Vanderbilt, Frank Work, Alexander Taylor, and other gentlemen who, like them, are the best drivers on the road, praising my work, and saying that my roads are the best in the world."

This speech confounded the committee and their lawyers, and the Colonel was permitted to leave the witnesses' chair.

When Mr. William McDonald, who had furnished the limestone chips for Col. Mooney's use, took the chair, Lawyer Whitridge asked if he had ever paid money to Col. Mooney or had bought votes at elections. Mr. McDonald answered that he had never paid the Colonel any money, and belonged to no political organization. "I never bought a vote," he added, "but I have asked a man to drink or smoke on election day."

CALLING FOR LEGISLATION.

Demands Made by a Workingmen's Meeting on the Albany Lawmakers.

Workingmen came with their sweethearts and wives to a mass meeting in the Cooper Institute last night. John Quinn presided, and Daniel Clancy, who was Secretary, presented resolutions calling on the Legislature to ordain that the stone necessary for the construction of public buildings, docks, and other works shall be dressed within the limits of the State. The resolutions called also for the passage by the Legislature of the Lien law and the Life and Limb bill, the speedy abolition of convict contract labor, and the passage of the bill introduced by James Daly, entitled "The Tenement House Cigar bill."

Victor Drury said that the reason why stone was sent out of the State to be cut was because thereby the Eight-hour law in force in this State is evaded, and the contractor is able to employ laborers in other States who are compelled to work longer hours. The method of giving out stone cutting in the Dock Department worked injustice to the stone cutters of this State because of the unnecessary and enormous profits paid to contractors. He urged the workingmen to use all their influence to secure the passage of the bills before the Legislature, although he said that legislation did not seem to do the workingmen much good, because the superior legislators declared, as in the case of the Tenement House Cigar bill, that the work of the inferior legislators was far good. But he said that, although the United States could not enforce the Eight-hour law, and President Grant said it could not be enforced, the stone cutters enforced it because they were well organized.

Other speakers addressed the meeting, urging that the salvation of labor lay in organization.

The Dinsmore Suit.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—In the Dinsmore suit to-day Mr. Cassatt testified that he had knowledge of the Central Railroad Company having been offered for lease to the Pennsylvania Railroad, but he could not tell the exact year; possibly it was 1878 or 1879. Mr. Roberts and himself met Judge Lathrop and Mr. Cox and the object of the meeting was to see whether they could not induce the Pennsylvania Company to take possession of the road. Mr. Roberts and Mr. Cassatt subsequently reported to President Scott of the Pennsylvania Railroad that it would not be advisable to lease the Central. None of the officers or directors of the Pennsylvania road ever seriously considered the lease.

Mr. Gowen asked if the witness had been interested in a transaction in Central Railroad stock, and Mr. Cassatt admitted that he had sold 2,000 shares short. He considered Reading's offer of a 6 per cent. guarantee a very fair one.

Mr. Seward gave notice of a motion to strike out Mr. Cassatt's testimony.

J. C. Babcock of Orange, N. J., testified that he knew that Mr. Dinsmore had owned 2,000 shares of Jersey Central stock. He produced the certificate for 500 shares, but declined to answer whether the other 1,500 shares were loaned or not, and also refused to say whether Mr. Dinsmore held such shares. The examiner was requested to ask the Court to compel Mr. Babcock to answer.

William B. Dinsmore, the plaintiff, testified that in January, 1881, he purchased 1,000 shares of Jersey Central stock, and another thousand in March, 1882. He did not know when the transfers were entered on the books of the company. The same line of questions put to Mr. Babcock were asked of Mr. Dinsmore, and he, by advice of counsel, declined to answer. When asked for his reason for not answering, he replied, "Common sense," and in reply to Mr. Gowen's question as to who he would sell his 2,000 shares for, he replied, "Well, two thousand million."

John Roy of Long Branch was next called, and questions similar to those propounded by Mr. Dinsmore were asked, but, under instructions from Mr. Seward, he refused to answer.

The Baptists a Power in Georgia.

ATLANTA, Feb. 15.—The Georgia Baptists are to celebrate their centennial by a State camp meeting in Wilkes county in October. The first association was organized in Kioke, Columbia county, October, 1784, there being at that time 40 Baptists in the State. Now there are 241,108, of whom 121,564 are white, and 119,542 colored. There are 1,781 white and 1,622 colored churches, under the pastorate of 780 white and 580 colored ministers. The Baptists of Georgia divide supremacy with the Methodists, and are a power behind any man who aspires to office. Senator Brown and Gov. McDaniel are both active official members of this church. The distinguishing feature of the centennial will be the endowment of Mercer University with $100,000, $50,000 of which is already collected. This institution was established in 1833 and owes its principal support to $70,000 which Jesse Mercer gave it. The Baptists of Georgia are a power in every matter of State concern.

Capture of Safe Burglars.

BUFFALO, Feb. 15.—A gang of safe burglars who have operated in this city with success for several months past have been arrested, with the exception of one, who escaped to Canada. They were well organized, and have all served terms of imprisonment for former crimes. Two of them are John Sulle and John Cone, who were arrested while trying to pass off trade dollars, supposed to have been stolen from one of the safes. The others are George Swartzenburgh, Robert Kilcourse, and John Duff. A search at the house of Kilcourse resulted in the discovery of a watch and rings stolen from the safe of the Buffalo Paper Box Company. All are young men of ages ranging from 19 to 20 years.

Murder at a Dance.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 15.—A difficulty occurred at 1 o'clock this morning at the Clinch fire engine house in this city, in which Ed B. Philpot was stabbed three times in the lung and side by Chas. Greer. Philpot died in half an hour. The trouble originated at a dance over the engine room, and is said to have arisen from one of the men running into the other while dancing. Both were industrious young men. Greer is an employee in the Central Railroad shops. Philpot was a clerk.

A Peacemaker Shot Dead.

GALVESTON, Feb. 15.—Advices from Hempstead say that William Wheeler and John Ellison, the late City Marshal, began shooting at each other in Mose's barroom last night. Capt. James T. Browning interfered to make peace. When the firing ceased it was discovered that Browning was shot dead, and Wheeler and Ellison would probably die. Browning was a candidate for the City Marshalship in the election to be held on Monday.

Whiskey in the Northwest Territory.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—Messrs. Davin and Scott of the Northwest Territory had interviews with the Hon. Mr. McPherson, Minister of the Interior, to-day, in regard to matters affecting the Northwest. They complained that whiskey was taken into the Territory, and that the people are becoming whiskey drinkers, when, if they had beer, they would use that instead. The Minister promised to consider the matter.

A Train Fired Upon.

KEOKUK, Feb. 15.—Train No. 2 of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific road was fired into at a point between Belfast and Sand Prairie yesterday afternoon while passing a high bluff. Buckshot was used. One charge struck the baggage car and the other shattered three windows in a passenger coach. No one was injured. The train was stopped and a search made, but the person who fired the shots could not be found.

All Rail to the City of Mexico.

TOPEKA, Feb. 15.—An official circular from the City of Mexico announces that only 75 miles of rails remain to be laid on the Mexican Central Railroad, and that the road will be completed by March 15, when there will be an international route from the Missouri to the Mexican capital, a distance of 1,540 miles.

The Rev. Dr. Inskip Very Ill.

OCEAN GROVE, Feb. 15.—The Rev. Dr. John S. Inskip is so ill that no hopes of his recovery are had.

REFLECTIONS OF A CAR CONDUCTOR.

He Concludes that he Will Find a Purse at a Certain Corner and Does It.

A Third avenue car driver put down his brakes with a jerk yesterday, tied up his horses, and ran back along the track. From the mud he picked up what seemed to be a large gold coin. The conductor hopped off his platform and ran back also, but a moment afterward returned smiling. "I knew from the way he stopped the car that he had found something, but this time he was sold. It was only a plated temperance pledge," said the conductor. "When the American Institute fair was going we had a bonanza. I picked up one night three silver dollars, and another night eight dollars. I often pick up smaller coins. It's women who lose the most. One terribly stormy night I was going home when a woman who was in the car called out that she had lost her pocketbook. The car was crowded, and of course every one concluded that she had been robbed. I hadn't seen any crooks on the car. I reflected, and remembered where the woman had got on. I took the next car up, and got off as near to the street as I could remember. When a woman hails a car she generally stands at the edge of the curb. If it is raining she gathers up her skirts, and makes a kind of a series of jumps and hops. Well, I tried the gutter, and found the purse. Thirty-two dollars in it. Advertise it? Oh, yes, but I got no answer. Now, if I had taken it to the office instead of advertising it I would never have heard of it again."

Widow Gregory Defends her Castle.

Mary B. Gregory, an elderly widow, clad in mourning, was arraigned yesterday in the General Sessions to be sentenced for shooting Joseph Romanelli in the hallway of her house at 161 Elizabeth street on Nov. 2. The foreman of the jury that convicted Mrs. Gregory handed to Judge Cowing a petition, signed by all the jurors, asking, in view of Mrs. Gregory's age and respectability, and the circumstances of the shooting, that she be fined instead of imprisoned. When he had read the petition Judge Cowing said:

"The evidence, Mrs. Gregory, showed that you shot the complainant in the back and endangered his life. But it also showed that you did the shooting in an effort to obey the law. You are the proprietor of a saloon, and you kept it closed on Nov. 2 because it was Sunday. Some men tried to break in to get liquor, and you drove them away. Some time afterward the complainant entered, and, though he was not connected with the crowd who had tried to enter forcibly, you, owing to your experience, supposed he was, and shot him. I think the ends of justice will be served by fining instead of imprisoning you. The Court fines you $250."

Mrs. Gregory paid the fine and quitted the court room. She is the widow of an Italian saloon keeper, and owns the house in which the saloon is.

Magician Goldberg's Wandering Wits.

Prof. John Goldberg, the little magician who was locked up with his dove and canary in the Thirty-fifth street police station on Thursday night for passing his own worthless checks, was taken to the Yorkville Police Court yesterday morning. He had about him a number of checks and pretended vouchers for money. He said that he had just leased the Fifth Avenue Theatre for a long term, and that he was worth a million.

"When did you make all your money?" asked Justice Duffy.

"Made it to-night."

"But it's not night."

"Yes it is. This is the night of Feb. 15, and I have made all this money on this performance."

He was committed to the care of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction, being found insane. He was unmarried, and lived in the Yorkville jail.

A week ago Goldberg tried to cable to London a long order engaging a company and making arrangements for procuring the rights in a play, notifying the parties to whom he supposed that he was telegraphing that he had leased the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

His Idea of Woman's Ways.

Upon the desk before Justice Gorman at Essex Market yesterday morning were one sloughed, one ivory handled silver plated revolver, one dagger with a jewelled hilt, and one a woman's blonde wig.

Policeman Dakel said he had found August Hasse, 41 years old, wearing all these things, and skirts besides, in Rivington street on Thursday.

James McCormick, of 37 Rivington street, testified that Hasse had stopped him in the street and threatened him with the pistol and dagger.

Hasse was indicted for pretending to swoon, and was carried out of court. In the prison he feigned death until Dr. Leahy, the prison physician, said he was shamming. An attendant then banged him on the feet till he came alive.

Hasse has been arrested before for masquerading in woman's clothing.

A Complaint From Forsyth Street.

Residents of the lower end of Forsyth street complain of a gang of young men and boys who congregate between Canal and Division streets, after 6 o'clock in the evening, using outrageous language to passing women and girls. A number of men, it is said, have been jobbed by the crowd. Who keeps a careful watch for policemen and scatter when one appears.

At the Eldridge street station the Sergeant said yesterday that he had to keep from four to six policemen out in civilian's dress at night to break up such scenes in different parts of the precinct. He thought the gang were a necessary result of the crowded tenement houses, and that much of the annoyance caused by them could not be suppressed, because it was not covered by the law.

The Diamonds a Boy Wanted $5 On.

John R. Koplik, a pawnbroker, sued John F. Harriott, the Property Clerk in the Police Department, for the value of two diamonds, and the case was tried yesterday in the City Court before Judge Browne. The diamonds were brought to Koplik in April, 1882, to be pledged for $5. Koplik told the boy who brought them, and who said he had been sent by his mother, to go and bring her with him. The boy went away, leaving the diamonds, and never returned. Koplik then went for a policeman, and the diamonds were handed over to the police sergeant, and afterward came into possession of Mr. Harriott. Koplik claims that he is entitled to the diamonds, which, he says, are worth $2,000. Judge Browne reserved his decision.

Mrs. Boston's Encounter with Footpads.

Mrs. Mary Boston of 159 West Thirty-seventh street was returning to her home on Thursday evening in company with a friend. While in Thirty-seventh street, between Broadway and Seventh avenue, two men came up behind her. One seized her satchel. The gentleman who was with her endeavored to protect her, and the other man drew a long knife and threatened to kill him if he interfered. Both men ran away, pursued by the gentleman and a policeman. The man with the satchel was captured in Thirty-sixth street. The other man escaped. At Jefferson Market yesterday the prisoner said he was Patrick Flaherty of 429 West Thirty-ninth street. He was held for trial in $500 bail.

Counterfeiter Becker's Genuine Note.

A genuine 1,000-franc note was found in the possession of Charles Becker, the famous counterfeiter, when he was arrested two years ago in East New York. It was used as evidence in his trial in Brooklyn. After conviction he sent to the penitentiary Beckus, an order to his wife on Assistant District Attorney Backus for the note. She made a formal demand on ex-District Attorney Backus last week, and not receiving any response, she applied to the Court. Justice Moore directed Mr. Backus yesterday to explain why he does not deliver it.

Fished Out of the River.

Mary Hoben, wife of Michael Hoben, a bricklayer of 140 Franklin avenue, Greenpoint, was held in Essex Market yesterday for attempting to drown herself. She says she discovered some weeks ago that her husband had another wife. He denied it, but she did not believe him. She said she wished she was dead, and echoed her wish. He, however, sprang into the water and saved her when she jumped into the East River on Thursday evening. She was held for trial. Hoben told Justice Gorman that he had a divorce from his first wife.

Arrested at the Elks' Ball.

Col. C. B. Meigs of 180 Fifth avenue gave his overcoat check to Samuel Goldstein at the Elks' ball on Thursday night. Goldstein hung the coat over his arm and started out of the building. He was arrested at the door and remanded at Jefferson Market yesterday to await the appearance of Col. Meigs.

Annie Smith, 32 years old, of 12 West Third street, and Robert Bolton, 26 years old, of 46 West Fourth street, were arrested at the Elks' ball on Thursday night as pickpockets. They were both held yesterday.

Father Maguire and Bishop Loughlin.

An order of discontinuance was yesterday issued in the suit of the Rev. Father Peter Maguire, lately the assistant pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Church in Brooklyn, against Bishop Loughlin, to recover $351 as balance of salary. The cause of the disagreement has not been made public, but it is understood that the matter was referred to three clergymen for arbitration, and that Father Maguire received $200.

The Legend of a Brilliant Ruby.

A Maiden lane jeweller has on exhibition a brilliant ruby which weighs 10½ carats. It is a spread stone of a peculiar oblong shape. It belonged originally, as far as it is known, to a Malay, from whom it was bought by a European potentate of limited jurisdiction, who gave it to a prima donna, who wore it to Chicago and sang, and was compelled to sell her jewels to pay her bills.

To Help the Colored Catholics.

The Rev. Dr. Burtsell will occupy the pulpit in St. Rose's Church, Cannon street, at high mass to-morrow. He will preach in aid of the Church of St. Benedict the Moor, which was lately established for the colored Catholics of this city. The object has already awakened Catholic sympathy throughout the city.

An Uncivil Sort of a Schooner.

Shortly after noon yesterday a three-masted schooner, whose name is not known, on her way down the East River ran into the lighter Republic off Pier 17, sinking her. The Captain and crew of the lighter were rescued by the tug Excelsior, while the schooner went out to sea as if nothing had happened.

Insane in Castle Garden.

John T. Eastmead of Lancashire, England, arrived at Castle Garden yesterday from the steamship Scythia. He had shown signs of insanity on the voyage, and while being transferred on the tug to Castle Garden tried to jump overboard. He was put in a strait jacket, and will be returned to England.
