TRYING THE STICK ON THEM.

A Penalty Not Down in the Law Books Administered to Bunko Steerers.

Two fashionably-dressed young men passed an old gentleman on Broadway near Eighth street on Saturday afternoon, and attracted his attention by laughing. At Bleecker street the old gentleman was accosted with a pleasant "How do you do?" and one of the young men wanted to shake hands.

"I do not know you," said the old gentleman, drawing back.

"Oh, yes, you do. Don't you remember me? Why, you and I smoked a cigar together in front of the Metropolitan Hotel three or four days ago."

The old gentleman, who had never smoked a cigar in his life, insisted that he was not acquainted with the stranger.

"You do know me," persisted the young man. "Let us take a little walk together and I will convince you."

"It isn't necessary; for, come to think of it, I do know you. You are an infernal thief and bunko steerer," said the old gentleman.

"Sir," said the young man, "you have hurt me deeply. You wrong me. I will have you arrested for calling me such names."

This was too much for the old gentleman. He drew back his heavy walking stick and punched the young man in the stomach with the ferrule. It doubled him up, and then the old gentleman industriously pounded him on the back. The young man howled loudly and held up Broadway. The old gentleman forced his way out of the crowd which had gathered and started to cross Broadway. Before he got over the other young man he had seen at Eighth street walked up to him and said:

"Beg pardon, sir, but what was the trouble?"

"Take that," said the the old gentleman, punching him in the stomach with his cane. "You are a companion of that bunko man who is now running up Broadway."

The fellow did not wait to hear more, but started to run away, followed by the old gentleman, who was soon out of breath.

"I would not care so much," he said, as he stood for a moment to recover himself, "if they hadn't seemed to take me for a countryman. If they try to rope in a man who has lived sixty-seven years in the city, just think what might happen to real countrymen."

NOT CONTENT WITH RECEIVER GREEN.

The Attorney-General Intervenes on Behalf of Three West Shore Contractors.

In the suit of Charles F. Woerishoffer against the North River Construction Company, in which ex-Judge Ashbel Green was appointed receiver, ancillary to the receivership created in the New Jersey courts, Judge Van Brunt granted an order yesterday requiring the plaintiff and the receiver to show cause on Saturday why the receiver should not be removed and another put in his stead, or why an associate receiver should not be appointed.

The order was granted upon application of the Attorney-General, on behalf of three of the creditors of the defendant company, on the ground that the interests of the creditors would be subserved and a more speedy distribution of the assets of the insolvent corporation would be brought about by the appointment of a new receiver or of an associate. These creditors—C. J. Ryan, Charles Peterson, and James B. Young—whose claims aggregate $600,000, were contractors for the building of the West Shore Railroad. They assert that their liens are paramount to those of other creditors, and claim that Mr. Green's relations with the defendant company are such that he can hardly be expected to be as vigilant for the benefit of creditors as some other person might be.

It is urged, too, that the receiver has not made proper efforts to preserve the lien of the defendant company upon the property of the West Shore and Buffalo Railroad.

WILL ARBITRATION WORK?

Threatened with Another Test in Straiton & Storm's Cigar Factories.

Mr. John Straiton of Straiton & Storm, cigar manufacturers, said yesterday to a reporter of THE SUN that there was no occasion for any difficulty with the firm's employees.

"Just after New Year's," said he, "our Board of Arbitration, in which our employees are represented, held a meeting and adopted a schedule of prices for the forty-six grades of cigars we make. The prices of making twenty-six grades were reduced from 20 to 75 cents on the thousand, the prices of fifteen were untouched, and the prices of five were advanced. This schedule was submitted to the employees and voted upon, 275 employees voting for its adoption and 210 against it. Since the majority rules, the matter was considered settled until the Progressive Union of Cigarmakers came in and attempted to order a strike. Of our 2,200 employees only one-third are union men. We pay to our employees $20,000 every Saturday, and the adoption of the revised schedule makes a difference of only $150 a week."

A meeting of the Cigarmakers' Progressive Union was held in the afternoon at Concordia Hall, in Avenue A, when it was resolved to appoint committees of three from each floor to notify Messrs. Straiton & Storm that their schedule of prices would not be accepted. A meeting of the Executive Committee will be held to-night to receive the answer of Messrs. Straiton & Storm, upon which further action will be determined.

AFTER BILL HOLMES.

Indiana's Face Set Toward Egremont, Mass., and Vengeance.

Three colored women called yesterday on George A. McDermott, the Mayor's Marshal, and asked:

"Is an intelligence office a place where you get intelligence?"

The Marshal answered in the affirmative, whereupon one of them said:

"If dat am de case, I want one of 'em to find out what my husband is. I used to be called Indiana Winne until I was fool enough to marry Bill Holmes. He's run away wid a copper-colored nigger, and I'd like to know what he's done gone."

Then shaking her fist in the Marshal's face, she added: "Only just tell me whar de black sinner is."

The Marshal sent to an intelligence office and ascertained that Bill Holmes and a colored woman had hired out to C. P. Conover, a farmer in south Egremont, Mass.

"Whar's dat place, and how do you git dar?" the injured wife asked.

The Marshal gave the desired information, and Indiana Homes exclaimed: "Bill Holmes would rather be on the ship Zion than on a farm if I get hold of him." Then the three women went away.

Suing Hotel Keeper Corey for his $2,500.

A suit by Albert A. Levy to recover $2,500 which he paid to James H. Corey when the latter threatened to remove Mr. Levy's wife from the Hotel Bellevue, at Bellevue, near Seabright, in New Jersey, in the summer of 1882, was on trial yesterday in the City Court before Judge McAdam and a jury. It was shown that while Mrs. Levy was confined to her room and dangerously ill with typhoid fever, which she had contracted at the defendant's hotel, Corey, about 2 o'clock in the morning, made noisy preparations, declaring his intention to remove her to another house, where servants slept. The money was then paid under protest. The trial is not concluded.

For Laming a Boy for Life.

Henry Schnepel, a butcher, of 534 Tenth avenue, threw a cleaver at Frederick W. Karweg, aged 16, of 878 Sixth avenue, on the 21st of June last. The cleaver severed the tendon Achilles of Karweg's left leg. The Grand Jury dismissed the complaint in July. Schnepel claiming that he was teased by Karweg and other boys, and that he threw the cleaver without intending to do any injury. The Grand Jury reopened the case recently at the suggestion of Recorder Smyth, when it was found that Karweg had been lamed for life. They indicted Schnepel and he was put in the Tombs.

A Straw Bondsman Sentenced.

Joseph Kennell, alias Jacob Kuhn, a professional straw bondsman, pleaded guilty yesterday in the General Sessions of perjury in swearing on the 16th of August last, before ex-Police Justice Gardner, under the name of Jacob Kuhn, that he was the owner of the house at 436 East 114th street, and giving bail in $1,000 for Henry L. Jordan. Recorder Smyth sentenced Kennell to State prison for five years and six months.

Trying Hollender for Murder.

Emil Hollender was put upon trial in the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday upon an indictment for murder for having shot Frank Rademacher in front of 132 Franklin street in June last. The testimony for the prosecution showed that Rademacher struck Hollender a powerful blow without provocation, and was about to strike him again, when Hollender drew a pistol and shot him. The trial will be concluded to-day.

McGrath and Robinson Released on Bail.

Justice W. J. Powers of West Brighton released George McGrath and Henry Robinson, who had been arrested on Staten Island on the accusation of disorderly conduct in Jersey City recently, on $5,000 bail. No extradition papers had been issued at that time, and Justice Powers says he has not been notified by any person that his action is to be the subject of complaint to the Governor.

Tried to Break Out of Sing Sing Kitchen.

Patrick Henry Lynch and William McCutcheon, two convicts in Sing Sing who are serving life sentences, made an attempt on Sunday afternoon to escape. They were with a gang of convicts working in the kitchen. They managed to cut a hole through the board covering of the building, and removed the slate which covered the boards. Some of the slates in falling made a noise, which led to the discovery of the attempt.

Loss of a Petroleum Laden Steamer.

Word was received yesterday by Edward Ferry & Co. of 89 Beaver street that the British iron ship Brechin Castle, from New York, Oct. 6, for Calcutta, had been abandoned at sea, but that the crew had been saved. The Brechin Castle sailed from New York under command of Capt. Stewart of Glasgow, with a crew of 22 men, most of whom belonged here. She carried a cargo of refined petroleum.

MILLIONAIRE FARNUM'S BREAKS.

Litigation Arising which he so Much Dreaded and Took Measures to Avoid.

PORT JERVIS, Feb. 18.—Henry H. Farnum died in this place in 1879 worth $1,000,000. After his wife's death his brother's widow took charge of his household. She was between 60 and 70 years of age, and two of her sons, who were favorites of Farnum's, were in the mercantile business in this place. In September, 1879, Mr. Farnum was prostrated by an attack of bronchitis. He failed rapidly, and died in less than a month. He was 71 years old. He made no will. He had many relatives, and he had great dread of litigation over wills. It was known that he was desirous of giving the larger portion of his estate to the two nephews named. A few hours before he died he was married to their mother. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Goyne Talmage, a brother of De Witt Talmage. By this marriage, there being no will, the widow fell heir to one-half of the estate, the other half going by legal division to his four surviving sisters, one brother, the children of a deceased sister, and the children of the brother whose widow he married. Thus his two nephews, who had been his stepsons for a few hours, received the one-seventh their father would have been entitled to, and became the sole heirs to the half falling to their mother. By this course the deceased millionaire avoided the litigation he dreaded, and carried out his wishes.

But litigation has arisen over his estate nevertheless, and the alienation of friends and waste of money that he feared in case a will was made is threatened. Charles St. John and the millionaire's widow were appointed administrators of the estate. In settling up its affairs several unpaid notes given to Mr. Farnum during his lifetime by certain of the heirs were discovered among his papers. In settling with these heirs the administrator deducted the amounts of these notes from the sum due to them. The heirs protested, holding that the administrator had no authority to pay the notes in that way, and they sued the administrators to recover the amounts deducted. The case has just been argued in the General Term, and decision is pending.

SMOKING NEAR GUNPOWDER.

Two Buildings Wrecked, One Man Killed, and Two Others Mortally Injured.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 18.—A quantity of gunpowder in the top story of Hobb, Osborne & Hobbs's wholesale hardware establishment on Richmond street exploded to-day. Percy Ince, Frank Shaw, and Donald Smith were smoking in the room where the powder was stored, and it is supposed that the powder was ignited through carelessness. The upper portion of the building was blown off, and the premises of Robinson, Little & Co. and Burns & Lewis, adjoining, were badly shattered. All the glass in the block opposite was broken. Ince, Shaw, and Smith were the only persons in the building when the explosion occurred. Some time elapsed before the burning debris could be extinguished and the victims extricated. Smith was taken out dead, and the other two are so seriously injured that they cannot recover. The explosion shook the business portion of the city for a quarter of a mile around.

HARVARD'S ATHLETES.

Three Hundred Students Hard at Work Developing their Muscles.

CAMBRIDGE, Feb. 15.—Two weeks ago a visitor to the college unaccustomed to the ways of the Harvard student would have been astonished to see not more than a dozen men taking advantage of the opportunities offered by the new Hemenway gymnasium for muscular development. For a fortnight the gymnasium was deserted. To the uninitiated in the customs of the college, however, this fact would not appear at all strange. The semi-annual examinations were in progress, and every student was devoting his whole time to his books. The "grinds" as the hard students are called in college parlance, were struggling for their 99 per cent., while the loafers and athletes were working with might and main for the 40 per cent. necessary for the degree of A. B. To-day, however, the gymnasium presents a scene of bustling activity. From 2 to 6 o'clock every afternoon some 300 students, dressed in light and airy costumes, may be seen busily practicing on the different kinds of apparatus with which the gymnasium is filled.

The Mott Haven team, the university and class crews, the base ball nine, the candidates for honors in the winter athletic meetings, and the general athletes are all busily at work. Athletes and athletics form the sole topic of conversation among the students, and everywhere speculations as to Harvard's chances in base ball, at Mott Haven, and in rowing may be heard.

The candidates for the team that is to contest for the Mott Haven cup are trying hard to win the leadership of W. H. Goodwin, '84. Harvard's fast short-distance runner. Harvard has by no means a sure thing this year. Brown, Yale, and Princeton, have each three of her best athletes. It is thought, however, that Harvard, barring accidents, is almost sure of winning three first events in the cup contest. Atlanta, '83, who holds the last American college record in the running high jump, and Goodwin, who holds the best American amateur record in the half-mile run, and who won the quarter-mile run last year, are pretty certain to come out first in these events this spring.

A Young Bookkeeper's Downfall.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—Harry L. Lee, the young Cincinnati bookkeeper for the well-known manufacturing firm of Woodruff & McFarlane, has been arrested here for obtaining $1,000 in money from his employers, and held for extradition. He is accompanied by a girl of questionable character of Cincinnati, who passes herself off as his wife, and who, it is said, was the prime cause of his downfall. He stole money weekly in sums under $100 by altering pay checks and pocketing the difference, which he gave to his paramour.

Defending the Salvation Army.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 18.—Principal Grant of Queen's College, in an address to the Salvation Army, condemned in unmeasured terms the action of the Anglican Church authorities in the dismissal by Dr. Wilson without a trial for attending Salvation Army meetings. He said that such action was cowardly and unBritish because the man was struck behind his back. He defended the Salvation Army and avowed that he was not one of those who believed nothing good could emanate from it.

Bidding for the National Convention.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 18.—A strong delegation of citizens of St. Louis and several members of the Missouri Democratic State Committee have gone to Washington to look after the interests of St. Louis in connection with the National Convention. Twenty thousand dollars has been subscribed to defray the expenses of the Convention, and $50,000 can be easily raised if necessary.
