IT WAS PURELY JOCULAR.

THE ONLY REMARK IN MR. KELLY'S PARLOR WORTH CONCEALING.

Brother-in-Law Wood Says that the Tuscarora Unfonly Accused Mayor Edson—Beer and Gratuities in Ludlow Street Jail.

The Assembly Committee yesterday asked Mayor Edson's brother-in-law, Col. Edward T. Wood, what he saw and heard at that meeting in John Kelly's parlors in Sixty-ninth street, where, according to Tuscarora Haskin, Mr. Edson bargained away his prospective patronage as Mayor. Col. Wood took the oath with kid-gloved hand uplifted. He testified, in answer to Lawyer Miller's questions, that he had drawn certain sums of money for his services in the Corporation Counsel's office since May.

Mr. Miller—And you are the Mayor's brother-in-law?

Col. Wood—Yes; but that is not a constitutional office.

Mr. Roosevelt—Well, go on; that is not disputed.

Col. Wood—I was at the meeting at Mr. Kelly's house. Gen. Spinola invited me to meet certain gentlemen. They were a sub-committee of five or six from Tammany Hall. You see, the original committee of one from each Assembly district was too large. Mr. Kelly had said that he hardly knew Mr. Edson, and would like to see him. The other gentlemen, too, were anxious to make Mr. Edson's acquaintance.

Q.—Was there any conversation as to the appointment of certain persons to office in the event of Mayor Edson's nomination and election? A.—There was no definite conversation on that point by Mayor Edson. The conversation was comprehensive and general. Some appointments in Tammany Hall were referred to in a laughing way. Some one remarked that some offices would expire in Mr. Edson's term, if he was elected. Mayor Edson made no pledges. I remember he said, "If I am nominated and elected I shall not set up one organization against another organization. I should divide the patronage equitably between the three organizations. If I should give appointments to Tammany Hall I should expect you gentlemen to give me gentlemen of character and reputation."

Q.—Was there anything said which should not be repeated? A.—I don't recall anything which should not be repeated. There is a delicacy about speaking because a proposition was made by Gen. Spinola to say nothing about the meeting, as it would be misapprehended and misunderstood, just as it has been misapprehended and misunderstood. Each pledged himself to secrecy. Mayor Edson was not nominated at that meeting. He refused the nomination next day.

Mr. Roosevelt—Commissioner Nichols spoke last Saturday as though there was something to conceal? A.—I know of nothing, unless it was that remark made in a jocular way that the term of office of some of our friends would soon expire.

Mr. Roosevelt—Then you think Mr. Haskin's allegations are substantially untrue? A.—Yes.

Under Sheriff Joel O. Stevens testified that he has been Under Sheriff twelve years, and runs the Sheriff's office. The clerks who required instruction he instructed, and he instructed Clerk Wertheimer, who was recently arrested on the charge of stealing about $5,000 by including in the list of prisoners carried by the Sheriff the convicts prisoners transported by the Commissioners of Charities and Correction. Mr. Stevens testified that he did not instruct Wertheimer to add these prisoners to the prisoners actually transported by the Sheriff, although he believed the Sheriff had the right to charge for their transportation.

Q.—How do you account for the fact that the transportation of fifty or more prisoners on Sunday was charged for by the Sheriff while there was no court on that day? A.—I don't account for it.

Q.—If the Sheriff has been paid $1.75 a head for transporting prisoners carried by the Commissioners of Charities, what should he do? A.—He is bound to return the money.

Mr. Peckham—What do you think of the law of arrest in civil damages? A.—I think it is a relic of barbarism and ought to be abolished. It gives rise to abuses impossible to be corrected. It is used as an agent of oppression rather than an agent of justice.

Assistant Jailer Kiernan testified that beer was sold until May, 1883, in one of the cells in Ludlow street jail. Mr. Roosevelt asked if it was table beer, and the witness grinned and said he supposed so. Tobacco and cigars also were sold. Sheriff Davidson put a stop to it.

Q.—On whose complaint? A.—The chaplain's.

Q.—Do keepers ever get drunk? A.—Three did, and the Sheriff ordered their discharge.

Q.—Have you ever been drunk in the building? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Is there any gambling in the prison? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do civil prisoners and United States prisoners sit at the same boarders' table and eat the same food?

Q.—How's that; it was against the rules? A.—Well, I thought neither was better than the other.

Q.—Is it the custom to take money from each civil prisoner when he is discharged? A.—Yes.

Q.—A sort of gratuity to the keepers? A.—Yes.

Q.—And what is done with the money? A.—It goes for repairs of locks and such things.

Q.—And does not the city pay for locks and such things? A.—It does long afterward, two or three months, but such things are taken in and paid for.

Q.—When the gratuity is refused, is the prisoner taken back to the cell and confined till he pays it, or until the jailer sees it will not be paid? A.—No. It is asked for, and if it is refused then the prisoner goes his way immediately.

Q.—Have you ever heard complaints that you yourself use violent language in jail? A.—No, sir.

BOSSES OF THE DOCKS.

Harbor Masters Testify that they Always Get the Best of their Foes.

Chief Navigator Fassett and his associates, J. Hampden Robb and H. J. Coggeshall, of the Senate Committee on Commerce and Navigation, continued their investigation of the New York Harbor Masters yesterday. Harbor Master Amos H. Allen said he had had charge of a part of the canal district. When a Captain objected to orders the witness usually bought him a drink and argued the question with him. A good many objected, but all were convinced. Harbor Master John J. Preseus is the only one who has kept a record. He can tell when and where 2,106 vessels were berthed by him since May 24, 1883. Ex-Alderman Gilon, a Dock Department employee, undertook to reverse one order given by Capt. Preseus after May 24. The one undertaking sated him.

The Hon. Michael E. Butler testified that he discharged legislative duties four days in the week, ships two days, and religious duties on the seventh. He is a member of Assembly. He knew the Harbor Masters had been faithful.

Stevedore John W. Tyler, who was formerly a Harbor Master, was asked: "Has any one opposed the authority of the Harbor Masters?"

"Yes. Captains of barges draw pistols and other handy tools on them."

"Then the Captains did make some trouble for these gentlemen who are holding over?" said Assistant Navigator Robb.

"Oh, no; there was no trouble. It's a way they have. There was less this year than when I was on the Board."

The committee will meet again on Saturday.

Differences.

At the Baptist ministers' meeting yesterday the essay was read by the Rev. Dr. Gesler. The subject was "The Oriental Christ," and the essay set dealt with it chiefly by reviewing a book of that name. He thought that greater care should be exercised in the selection of missionaries. The man who was a cold, dull speaker, who had not the graces of oratory, who could not interest an American audience, and wanted vainly for a call from a respectable American church, was surely not the man to impress the heathen. It would be well if the ministers who were sent to foreign lands would eat the bread of the people they were to convert, eat it as they ate it at the humble board, eat it as Christ ate it at the Last Supper with his disciples.

Brother Douglas, an Eastern Indian missionary, said that if Brother Gesler's suggestion was carried out in Hindostan the missionaries would be obliged to sit on the floor, dispense with knives and forks, roll the meat and rice into balls with their fingers, and fling the food dexterously into their mouths as the natives did. His children could do it, but he had never learned the art. Neither could he live more than fifteen minutes under a bamboo roof when the mercury stood at 140 degrees.

A Lost Indictment Found and Dismissed.

The Grand Jury in June, 1882, found an indictment for keeping a gambling house at 40 Bowery against John Green and Thomas P. Walsh, lately the County Democracy candidate for Alderman in the Second Assembly district. The complainant was Mark Horwitz, of 22 Chrystie street. The indictment grew dusty in a pigeonhole in the District Attorney's office until recently a reporter asked District Attorney Olney about it. Then it was produced from among papers with which it had no connection that had been filed in the Clerk's office of the General Sessions. The indictment was endorsed by an Assistant District Attorney O'Byrne:

"The Sergeant tells me that the complainant cannot be found."

The case was put upon the calendar of Part I. of the General Sessions yesterday, but when it was called the District Attorney moved that the bondsman for Walsh and Green be discharged. Recorder Smith acquiesced.

Way for the Beer Wagons.

In the meeting of the Board of Aldermen yesterday, Alderman John Christopher O'Connor, Jr., objected to Alderman Thomas Shell's resolution for the pavement of Fifth avenue, from Washington square to Fifty-ninth street, with Macadam pavement. He said that the pavement wouldn't last unless heavy trucks and beer wagons were excluded from the avenue and added that a law of that kind would probably be considered class legislation.

The mention of beer wagons brought Alderman Louis Wendel to his feet.

"Some of the owners of beer wagons," he said, "are the biggest taxpayers in New York, and have a right to drive on any street in the city."

The resolution was amended by substituting granite block pavement, and then passed.

He Slipped Money Letters Into his Shoe.

Charles L. Watson, a stamping clerk in the General Post Office, was arrested yesterday by Inspector Newcome on the charge of stealing envelopes containing money. He was in the habit of changing his shoes when leaving the office, and was seen to take three letters from one of the shoes which he wore at work. After stamping letters he would throw them into a box on the floor, and if a letter seemed to contain money he would throw it so that it fell outside the box. Afterward, in stooping to pick these letters up, he would slip some of them into his shoe. When arrested he confessed to have stolen some $2.81.

Not Their Business.

Mayor Edson vetoed yesterday the Aldermen's resolution instructing the Comptroller to refuse payment of salaries to non-resident officeholders. With the veto the Mayor sent an opinion of the Corporation Counsel that the Board of Aldermen had no authority to pass such a resolution. The resolution and the veto were referred to the Committee on Salaries and Offices.

OPENING THE NORTH RIVER.

The Opposition Natural to the Season Between the Steamboats and the Ice.

The furthest point yet reached by boats on the Hudson this year is Poughkeepsie, where the steamboat J. L. Hasbrouck of the Poughkeepsie Transportation line arrived on Sunday evening, having left this city on Saturday night. This is about a month earlier than usual. The Hasbrouck had a rather hard voyage, and encountered much ice. Her companion of the same line, the D. S. Miller, was the last boat down at the close of last season. She tore off her copper and injured her hull in getting through. The Miller will join the Hasbrouck immediately, and the owners expect to run their regular daily line to Poughkeepsie for freight and passengers from now on. The boats touch at New Hamburgh, Marlborough, and Highland. The Miller made her last trip down on Jan. 6.

The Homer Ramsdell Transportation Company have opened their route to Newburgh, the first boat getting safely through last Friday.

Pecne Brothers' Franklin line to Yonkers has been running all winter, carrying passengers and freight.

The Cornell Steamboat Company are having a new boat built at Wilmington, to take the place of the Thomas Cornell, which was lost last season. The Baldwin of this line is expected to resume her trips to Rondout and Kingston in a week or so.

Capt. Carroll says the Hudson and Coxsackie line are getting ready for about March 10 with the steamboats Thomas McManus and Redfield. Last year they began on March 22, and the year before on March 11.

The Albany and Troy steamboat people show no indications of getting ready soon. They say there is yet ice about ten feet thick in the river just below Albany.

The Albany day line will begin running the last of May or early in June. The Mary Powell will begin her daily trips to Newburgh in June. The Chrystenah is on the Peekskill route.

SHOCKED BY AN EXPLODING METEOR.

The Air About the Egyptian Monarch Filled with a Sulphurous Smell.

The steamship Egyptian Monarch, which left London on Feb. 7, encountered a fresh gale and heavy head seas on the second day out. There were terrific squalls and much lightning. The gale continued for two days, increasing to a hurricane. On Feb. 13 a heavy sea broke on board, smashing the rails, the saloon house, wheelhouse, binnacle, and the main gaff, and damaging and displacing boats. During more than a week the hatches were battened down and the terrified passengers were kept below. They unite in praising the coolness and courage of the officers.

"I was on watch at 10½ P. M. on the second day out," said the third officer, "and was standing on the bridge. The night was very dark, a heavy gale had been blowing, and the atmosphere was heavily charged with electricity. I could feel it in my bones. Suddenly there was a loud report, like that of a sixty-ton gun, and a meteor exploded just above the bridge, right over my head. I received a violent electric shock, and then I felt as though some giant had taken a feather bed and jammed me into a corner with it so that I couldn't breathe. The shock knocked the helmsman away from the wheel, and when it had passed the place smelled of brimstone for over five minutes. The air seemed full of brimstone. You could smell it clear down in the cabin. The Captain, who was down stairs with some passengers, came up to see what the matter was, running up on deck to see if any one was killed. I've crossed the Atlantic 180 times, I've seen waterspouts and fire balls in the southern seas, but I never saw anything at all like that and never heard of anything of the kind in northern latitudes."

Some of the sailors said they saw a red ball above the mainmast just before the meteor exploded, and that when it did explode forks of fire leaped in every direction. The Egyptian Monarch arrived in port at 2 P. M. yesterday.

Clerk Maillaird was Ed Goode's Son.

The 19-year-old son of Edward Goode, who was sentenced last week to 20 years' imprisonment for the robbery of Luther Church in Harlem, on Dec. 31, has been for some time the employee of Dominick A. Haff, silversmiths at 5 Bond street, under the name of George Maillaird. For several months past the firm continually missed silver, and, although ignorant of his family failing, they began to suspect young Goode. Finally $34 in silver coin disappeared under circumstances showing that Goode, or Maillaird, must have taken it, and Inspector Byrnes was so notified. Acting under his directions, Detective Hickey arrested Goode yesterday at 240 East 105th street, where he was living with his mother. He was locked up at the Central Office. The aggregate of his thefts has not yet been ascertained, but it will amount to a considerable sum.

A Dog that Impressed Everybody.

Rover, a Newfoundland dog belonging to Mrs. M. E. Brady of 586 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, is missing, and Mrs. Brady fears that he was the dog that swam through the ice in the harbor on Sunday and sank down exhausted after crawling a few feet up the shore of Governor's Island. Yesterday she walked all around Governor's Island without finding any trace of him.

Rover was a wonderful swimmer, and once he saved the life of Mrs. Brady's son, who had broken through the ice while skating. He was all black except his forefeet and a perfect cross on his breast. At the top of the cross was a tuft of hair that looked like a head hanging down. Everybody who looked at him as he sat up in a chair was impressed. He had a beautiful long, black, bushy tail.
