AN IRISH GIRL'S SAD LIFE.

The Strange Story of Maggie Burton of Marysborough, County Queen's.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Sept. 9.—In the winter of 1880 a young woman was sent from Port Jervis to the county insane asylum near this place and her four-weeks-old infant to the county house. She was Mrs. Maggie Hart. Her maiden name was Maggie Burton. She ran away from her home in Rathingue, Marysborough, county Queen's, Ireland, in 1872, because her parents would not permit her to marry a dissolute lover named John Hart. She had an uncle living in Sullivan county, this State, a few miles from Lackawaxen station, on the Erie Railway. She had just money enough, on landing in New York, to take her to her uncle's. She obtained work as a domestic in a Port Jervis family. She was a girl of good character, and was much liked by her employers.

In the spring of 1877 she took a train on the Erie to go to Lackawaxen to visit her uncle's family. The train had nearly reached that place when the locomotive of a train passing on the east-bound track jumped the track when opposite the car in which Miss Burton was sitting, and, striking it, completely turned it over and wrecked it. The girl was taken from the wreck unconscious. It was thought she was fatally injured. Her skull was broken so that the brain oozed from the fracture. She was taken to a hotel in Lackawaxen. Before a physician arrived so much of her brain had been lost that her death was momentarily expected. She remained unconscious for seven days, when she revived. She recognized objects and persons. The Erie Company engaged the best surgical aid to attend her. Her case was considered so remarkable that careful notes were taken of its progress, and it was reported in medical journals. In three months she was able to continue her journey. The company paid all her expenses and gave her $1,000 in cash.

She returned to Ireland. Her lover was still unmarried. She married him, and resolved to return to America after a two months' stay in the old country, and bought tickets for herself and husband and a younger sister. Her husband had a friend whom he was anxious to have accompany him to America. The two made up the story that the friend, Thomas Foster by name, was being hunted by officers for violation of the game laws. This story awakened the sympathy of the young wife, and she paid Foster's passage to America also.

On arriving here Hart was not able to obtain work at once. Mrs. Hart paid the way of the entire party to Lackawaxen, where she had hopes that her husband might obtain employment. He did not. Foster was also idle. The woman supported them all until her little fortune had dwindled to less than $100.

In December, 1877, she succeeded in getting her husband work on the Erie Railway. He was to go to work the next week. The Sunday before that he and his wife and Foster were out walking. Mrs. Hart had all the money she had left in a purse in her cloak pocket. Hart expressed a fear that she might lose it. She handed it to him for safe keeping. When she called her husband to supper that night neither he nor Foster could be found. They had run away, leaving the poor woman penniless.

For weeks she and her sister lived on the charity of friends. Then they both procured situations. Mrs. Hart got a position in Port Jervis. She had been there a year when her head began to trouble her. Her sufferings became so great that she was unable to work and became destitute. She was but 22 years old, and very attractive. In her friendless state and despair she consented to live with an employee of the Erie Railway. He cared for her until 1880, when she became a mother, and he deserted her. She became insane, and was placed in the insane asylum, and her child became a county charge.

After a stay of nearly two years in the asylum she was discharged as cured. She procured work in a farmer's family, and soon afterward took her child from the county house. A year ago, never having heard anything from her husband and believing him dead, she married a young Irish laborer. They soon afterward removed to the Rondout quarry region near Hurley. In where her husband had obtained work. A few days since he went west to a friend living in this village that his wife had received a letter from John Hart, her first husband, whom they had thought dead. He had heard in some way of her marriage and her whereabouts, and had written to her from Colorado that unless she sent him $100 at once he would come East and have both her and her new husband imprisoned. She had recently become a mother. The letter had unsettled her reason again, and she had become a raving maniac. The poor woman has been taken to the county insane asylum. It is not believed that Hart will ever present himself in the region. In the present mood of the quarrymen there is said that he would be summarily dealt with.

LAWSON N. FULLER'S SOLID REASON.

Clashing Opinions Regarding the Best Sort of Broadway Railroad.

William L. Haws, a real estate dealer, was yesterday before the Commissioners sitting in the Court House to decide the question whether it is advisable to lay a railroad track from the foot of Broadway to Fourteenth street. Mr. Haws said that a railroad in Broadway would increase the price of Broadway real estate, because it had done so in other and narrower streets. He was asked by John E. Parsons what kind of a road he thought should be built; whether it should be one like Jacob Sharp's, with which connecting roads from uptown and cross-town have made no arrangements for transfer to the Broadway line, or one to which people could be transferred, thus saving five cents. Mr. Haws said the road which gave transfer tickets would be best. He was then asked by Mr. Sharp's lawyer, Mr. Bright, whether Mr. Sharp was not esteemed a skilful railroad manager, and he said he thought so. Then Mr. Parsons asked if it was not true that on the Seventh Avenue Railroad, of which Mr. Sharp is the controlling spirit, more people are killed every year than on any other road of its length in the United States. Mr. Haws didn't know about that.

Lawson N. Fuller, lawyer, real estate owner, sugar dealer, part owner of a hotel at Washington Heights, and an active opponent of the Sharp plan, was next questioned. He said that in addition to his other accomplishments he had written for the press.

"Are you the author of a great deal of the scandalous matter published about the Broadway railroad and Jacob Sharp?" was asked by Mr. Sharp's lawyer.

Mr. Fuller said he had not written anything scandalous. He had arranged the recent meeting in Chickering Hall to protest against Sharp's road.

"Didn't you go out on the sidewalk and solicit men to go in?"

"No, sir; no, sir. I had some platform tickets, and I found some exceedingly handsome gentlemen outside, and handed the tickets around."

When pressed as to the cause of his hostility to the Sharp road, Mr. Fuller said he had 500 shares of the stock of a rival Broadway railroad.

Mr. Horace Russell, for Mrs. Cornelia M. Stewart and Judge Hilton, opposed the construction of a cable road on Broadway. The hearing is to be continued to-day.

Fight for a Newspaper.

DETROIT, Sept. 9.—A few weeks ago C. M. Hubbard, managing editor of the Evening Journal, was discharged by Lloyd Breeze, the editor. Hubbard said his contract did not expire until January, and refused to consider himself discharged. Having secured a majority of the stock of the paper, he yesterday, accompanied by friends, entered the office, declared the positions of the directors vacant, and elected himself and friends to their places. Breeze got the office employees together and threw the intruders out, but later they were admitted as stockholders. Last night both factions were holding the fort and claiming the victory. To-day the Journal comes out under the Breeze management, and asserts that Hubbard has never been in possession.

Miss Nivison Vindicated.

DRYDEN SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Miss Nivison, the Superintendent of the Hammonton Home for Children, was recently accused of being accessory to treatment of the infant of Mary Brett which caused its death. The Coroner's jury have found a verdict that three skilful physicians attended the case, that the child came to its death from natural causes, being stillborn, and that Miss Nivison was in no way responsible for its death.

Cars Turned Upside Down.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 9.—The west-bound train on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad had three of its passenger coaches thrown from the track by the engine running over a cow near Corinth, Miss., last evening. There were seventy passengers in the coaches which turned upside down, and all were more or less bruised, but no serious injuries were sustained.

Killed by Mistake.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 9.—William Collison, the telegraph operator at Snake Hollow, in the Hocking Valley, where the property of the coal operators is being guarded by troops, was shot and instantly killed by one of the guards named Beaton last night, being mistaken for a striking miner, who was supposed to be trying to set fire to one of the hoppers.

In Search of Pleuro-Pneumonia.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—The Chicago Live Stock Exchange decided yesterday to purchase ten head of healthy cattle to be presented to the Live Stock Commission for the purpose of being placed in herds of cattle said to be afflicted with pleuro-pneumonia to prove whether the disease exists.

Past Driving in the White Mountains.

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—This morning Eugene V. R. Thayer of Boston drove six miles and from Glen House to the summit of Mount Washington in one hour and ten minutes, beating the record made last year by W. H. Vanderbilt by seven minutes.

COLORED TEACHERS AND PUPILS.

A Charge that the Board of Education Does Not Treat Them Fairly.

New York has two public schools in which the teachers and pupils are colored. They were formerly known as Colored Schools 3 and 4, but since the act passed by the Legislature on May 5 last, which brought them under the supervision of the Board of Education, and placed them on the same footing as the other public schools, they have been called Ward Schools 80 and 81. Ward School 80, of 225 West Forty-first street, has been under the management of Principal Charles L. Reason for many years. It is a little too far up town to accommodate the pupils, who mostly live in the neighborhood of West Thirtieth street and further down town.

Not long ago the Board of Education announced its intention of changing the school to a small building in West Forty-second street, which, originally a private house, has recently been used for the accommodation of the white children the primary schools in Fortieth and Forty-seventh streets could not take care of. These children, it was intended, should be in Ward School 80's building. The change was to have taken place on Monday last. The Hon. Nelson J. Waterbury, however, on behalf of Principal Reason and the teachers, brought suit against the Board of Education and the Board of Trustees of Common Schools of the Twenty-second ward, and procured an injunction from Judge Van Brunt in the Supreme Court restraining the defendants from using the building for any other than Ward School 80.

Mr. Waterbury said yesterday that the course of the Board of Education toward the two colored schools deserved severe censure and criticism. "The Board wanted," he said, "to abolish the schools altogether, and when the Legislature passed the act last May preventing this, there arose a feeling of actual animosity in certain of the members which has been plainly shown since. Effort after effort has been made to crowd the colored schools down, and drive them out of existence. Understand that the School trustees of the Twenty-second ward are not to blame, because it is not their fault. This suit is brought to settle the question whether or not the Board of Education must obey the laws. It is customary for the principal of a school to be consulted when any change is to be made, but, in the present instance, not a word has been said to Principal Reason. The Board of Education has no right to send this colored school still further away from the colored quarter.

"There is another thing, too. The twenty colored teachers in this city have not received a cent of pay since May 5 last, when the bill was passed against the will of the Board of Education. The 3,000 white teachers have received advance pay to enable them to enjoy their vacation. It strikes me that there is serious injustice being done."

A Farmer Shoots a Horse Trainer.

Elbert Burr, a horse trainer, of Comac, Suffolk county, L. I., entered into partnership with Capt. Cornell, a farmer, at Port Washington, for the purpose of raising colts. About six weeks ago Burr claimed a colt. Cornell refused to give him the colt, and informed Burr that the colt and everything on the farm belonged to his wife. Mrs. Cornell ordered Burr off the premises, and threatened to shoot him if he did not obey her command. On Monday Burr was advised by ex-District Attorney B. W. Downing to go to Cornell's farm and take the colt.

Burr went to the farm yesterday afternoon, and was just leaving the place with the colt, when Capt. Cornell saw him and ordered him to stop. Burr paid no attention to Cornell, and the latter fired three shots at him, one of which took effect, entering the body about an inch below the left shoulder blade. Burr fell to the road side, and would have bled to death, but for the arrival of some farm hands, who removed him to Dickeson's Hotel at Greenvale, where he now lies in a critical condition. Capt. Cornell was not arrested at a late hour last night. The wounded man is 65 years old. Capt. Cornell is about 70 years old.

One of the Oldest Militiamen.

Washington Q. Hutton, who died at 172 East 114th street, in his 74th year, was buried yesterday. He joined the Twenty-seventh New York Regiment in 1839. He was transferred to the Twelfth Regiment, National Guard, and was reenlisted every seven years up to the date of his death, thus serving nearly forty-five years in the National Guard of this state. He went out during the war and was a member of Company G, Twelfth Regiment, and captured with the regiment at Harper's Ferry. He was born in the seventeenth ward, and in early life was a member of the Fourteenth Ward. He was a Democrat, but at one time was deputy sheriff under John Kelly. He was for many years janitor of Public School 13, and was for twenty years a member of Lafayette Lodge, 165, Masons. The funeral, at the Harlem Baptist church, was largely attended, nearly all of Company G of the Twelfth Regiment being present. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Ferguson. Mr. Hutton leaves a wife, one son and two daughters to inherit a fortune of $75,000.

Mr. Brown Drives Mr. Metzger Away.

Charles E. Brown, a man about town, was tried in the Special Sessions yesterday for assaulting George Metzger of 264 West Twenty-fifth street. Metzger testified that he advertised on Sept. 5 for a boarding house for a young woman, and got an answer from Martha Brown, 220 West Twenty-sixth street. He went to her house. Martha Brown denied that she had sent any letter. Thereupon, Metzger says, Brown ordered him off the premises, struck him a fierce blow between the eyes, and knocked him down the steps. It was intimated that jealousy led to the assault.

"He had no business as there, and I told him so several times," said Brown. "Instead of going away he put up his fists. But I got in my blow first."

The Court found Brown guilty and fined him $25.

Mrs. Kilnk Tired of her Second Marriage.

Caroline Klink, a widow, married, in 1877, Conrad Klink, a widower, who from that time carried on the business of her former husband, in which he was very successful. Mrs. Klink is now seeking in the Supreme Court for a limited divorce, charging that her husband treats her cruelly. She says he is subject to frequent outbursts of rage, so that her life is in danger. Judge Donohue yesterday denied a motion made on behalf of Klink for an injunction restraining the sale, that the weight of evidence was in favor of the defendant, who asserted that he treated his wife and family as a good husband should.

The Boss Baker Dies After the Fight.

John Junemann, 50 years of age, of 805 Third avenue, died in Believue Hospital, yesterday, of injuries received from Charles Schwab, 19 years old, in Adam Boedler's bakery, at 847 Third avenue, last Friday night. The man and boy were baking bread, and had a dispute. Junemann, who was a boss baker, said before he died that Schwab, his apprentice, threw him down and kneeded him with his knees. Schwab is a little fellow. He says that Junemann first assaulted him, but him in the thumb, and dug finger nails into his neck. There was one witness to the fight, Schwab said, but he was a friend of Junemann's.

Manager Kelly Enjoins Actor Ferguson.

William W. Kelly, theatrical manager, has brought a suit in the Court of Common Pleas against William J. Ferguson, actor, to restrain him from playing in "Called Back," or any other drama. Mr. Kelly asserts that Ferguson contracted with him on the 1st of September of last year to perform exclusively under his management for three years, and that he has broken his contract. Mr. Kelly claims $25,000 damages. Chief Justice Daly yesterday reserved his decision upon a motion to continue a preliminary injunction.

Young's Money Confiscated for his Family.

Agent Knoll, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, arraigned in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday John Young, the vegetable vendor of 238 East Seventy-fifth street, whose wife and four little children were discovered starving in a filthy basement. A cloth bag containing $18.35, was found in Young's possession. Justice Duffy gave him back $1, and sent the rest to his family. Young will be tried in the Court of Special Sessions.

Policeman Ah Sing Takes In Mr. Haley.

Policeman Ah Sing of the Oak street station made his first arrest yesterday morning. He was patrolling William street, under the bridge, when he stumbled over John Haley of 25 Cherry street, stupidly drunk on the walk. Haley is an Irishman. He was fined $10.
