CLEVELAND ELECTED.

He Carries New York State by 1,200 Plurality.

A VERY CLOSE ELECTION.

A SUDDEN FLOP AT 2 A.M.

Unparalleled Excitement All Over the United States.

NO MORE DOUBTFUL STATES.

West Virginia Wheels into the Democratic Line Again.

The latest returns received by THE SUN, up to the time when this edition goes to press, indicate that the contest for the Presidency has been settled by the State of New York. West Virginia is no longer doubtful, having swung into the Democratic column. Michigan is now surely Republican.

The closeness of the result in this State has caused unparalleled excitement throughout the Union. In this city thousands crowded around the bulletin boards yesterday and last night eagerly reading and discussing the latest returns. Hundreds of telegrams from all parts of the country asking how New York stood poured into this office last night.

THE SUN'S special returns continue to show a small plurality for Cleveland, although the latest revisions of the returns have steadily cut down his majorities in the rural districts.

There was some inquiry among politicians yesterday as to what would be the effect in the Electoral College if the thirty-six votes of New York State were thrown out in consequence of fraud or for any other reason. With the solid South, Connecticut, Indiana, and New Jersey, Cleveland would have 183 electoral votes, Blaine would have 182. Neither candidate would then have the requisite 201 votes that constitute a majority of the Electoral College, and the election would be thrown into the House of Representatives, which, since a majority of the State delegations are Democratic, would result in the choice of Mr. Cleveland.

On Tuesday the Boards of Supervisors will meet in the various counties and canvass the returns. Their duties are purely clerical. They simply add up the total returns of towns, election districts, and wards, certify to their accuracy, and transmit certified returns to Secretary of State Carr. During this month the State Board of Canvassers, consisting of Secretary Carr, Comptroller Chapin, Attorney-General O'Brien, State Treasurer Maxwell, and State Engineer Sweet will meet in this city and add up the totals of the Supervisors' returns from the counties and the result in the official vote of the State, and according to that result certificates of election are issued by the State Board to the Presidential electors who have been chosen. The electors will meet in December and cast votes for President and Vice-President. The result is certified to and transmitted to the President of the United States Senate.

There is still intense excitement in Albany over the election. The feeling of suspense is gradually giving way to one of confidence and elation on the part of the Democrats, who began this afternoon to celebrate the victory they think they have won. One hundred guns were fired in honor of the election of Grover Cleveland.

The Governor was closeted with his private secretary all the morning. All advices received by the Governor point unmistakably to his election. Congratulatory telegrams are continually pouring in. At 2 o'clock a message was received from the Democratic National Committee, assuring the Governor of his election and congratulating him on the result. Flags have been thrown to the breeze on prominent buildings, and the Democrats are preparing for a grand jubilee.

The Evening Journal figures a plurality of 1,150 for Cleveland, but claims that the official vote on every elector will be necessary to decide the matter.

The Associated Press returns give the total vote in each election district. At 4 o'clock there remained yet to be heard from only 53 election districts. These districts in 1880 gave Garfield pluralities aggregating 2,670 and Hancock pluralities aggregating 852. These districts were situated in the following counties: Alleghany, Cattaraugus, Dutchess, Livingston, Madison, Montgomery, Essex, Oneida, Otsego, St. Lawrence, Schoharie, Schuyler, Steuben, Sullivan, and Westchester. The Republican plurality in the State, with these 53 districts to hear from, was then placed at 236.

As the evening wore away the Associated Press sent out repeated bulletins and returns of the complete vote in the various election districts. The Blaine plurality steadily mounted up. At 11:30 the report read:

Returns from all the election districts in the State but 12 give 558,388 Republican votes, and 557,424 Democratic votes. Republican plurality, 968. This includes official changes in the votes of Jefferson, Cortland and Franklin counties.

At 12 the Associated Press record ran like this: Returns from all election districts in the State but twelve give 558,388 Republican votes and 557,784 Democratic votes. Republican plurality, 640. These are official figures correcting Albany county.

At 12:30 the news was: "Returns from all election districts in the State but twelve give 558,388 Republican votes, and 557,854 Democratic votes. Republican plurality 534. The changes are made from official returns of Tioga and Broome counties."

At 12:45 the Associated Press said: "Official returns from Queens county reduce the Republican plurality in this State to 571."

At 1 o'clock the Associated Press gave the State to Cleveland, saying: "Official returns from Westchester county give a Democratic gain over previous figures of 488. This makes Cleveland's plurality in the State, 117."

ALBANY, Nov. 6.

By the official returns reported from every county, Cleveland and Hendricks have carried New York State by a safe and sure majority. No manipulation, or false claims, or pretended doubts of Mr. Blaine's managers can change the result already declared. Delayed and doubtful elections can be every where assured that the Democratic State Board of Canvassers will see that the true vote is correctly declared. DANIEL MANNING.

In an interview with a Troy Telegram reporter yesterday Dan'l Manning said: "I think Cleveland has carried New York by 1,500 plurality."

The Albany Argus says:

The declaration of the canvassing Board of a State makes it a matter of fact that there was a clear majority for Cleveland in the electoral vote. Without the canvassing Board, Democratic states will be kept in doubt and false vote is largely decided upon. The State of New York will be counted in Blaine Mechanics of fraud, if it is true that those facts he told, believes it was President Garfield's intention that James G. Blaine in the White House, not Chester A. Arthur, should be the man who attempt it, white Blaine, and the legal consequences of doing them will be taken care of afterward.

Governor Cleveland said: "I believe I have been elected President, and nothing but the greatest fraud can keep me out of it, and that we will not permit."

Gen. Carr, Secretary of State said: "There is no chance of stealing this State, not as long as I have charge of the affair. I don't propose that anybody shall steal the State. If Mr. Cleveland has a plurality, large or small, he will get it. The same is true of the other candidate. I don't propose to play any Southern game. No matter whether it is friend or foe with me, he has to have his justice."

Agreeing with The Sun at Last.

At 2 o'clock this morning the Associated Press sent out the following:

The official county returns, and very close figures on the twelve counties which have not been officially reported and compared, indicate that Cleveland's plurality will be considerably increased, reaching nearly 1,000 in the State.

The official returns last received have shown heavy Democratic gains as contrasted with the non-official votes first forwarded.

WISCONSIN FOR BLAINE.

The Plurality Between 4,000 and 5,000—A Republican Gain of Four Congressmen.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 6.—Returns have been received from something over 1,000 of the 1,100 voting precincts in the State, and the net Democratic gain over the vote of 1880 is over 20,000. Until to-day, all conservative politicians believed that the State had gone for Cleveland. As it is, the full returns will show enormous Democratic gains, but notenough by 4,000 or 5,000 votes to carry the State. The Democrats concede the State to the Republicans to-day, but by a small majority. The Republican managers continue to claim the State by 12,000 majority, but it cannot possibly be that much. Chairman Anderson of the Democratic State Central Committee says to-night that the Republican majority will not be more than 3,000.

The next Legislature will be nearly equally divided, the Republicans claiming a small majority.

The later and corrected returns show the election of the following Congressmen: First district, W. B. Caswell, Rep.; Second, E. S. Brag, Dem.; Third, R. W. Lafollette, Rep.; Fourth, J. W. Van Schaick, Rep.; Fifth, Joseph Rankin, Dem.; Sixth, R. Guenther, Rep.; Seventh, O. Thomas, Rep.; Eighth, W. B. Price, Dem.; Ninth, J. J. Stephenson, Rep. This is a Republican gain of four. Until to-night it was thought that Guenther was defeated in the Sixth, but it is now settled that he is elected by 1,000 majority. In this the Fourth district, Deuster, Dem., was defeated by a small majority. He announces that he will contest. Van Schaick's election on the ground of fraud.

MADISON, Nov. 6.—The Legislature will be 41 Republican on joint ballot. The Republican candidates for the United States Senatorship to succeed Angus Cameron are John C. Spooner of Hudson, 43 years of age, a fine lawyer, and a man of some means; Gen. Lucius Fairchild of Madison; Chas. L. Colby of Milwaukee, President of the Wisconsin Central Railway Company, and Wm. T. Price of Jackson, just re-elected to Congress. James H. Howe of Kenosha, nephew of the late Postmaster-General Howe, is also mentioned. The leading candidates are Spooner and Fairchild.

MICHIGAN.

Republicans Claim the State and Electoral Tickets—A Fusion Legislature.

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—The Republican State Committee claims the State by from 6,000 to 10,000 plurality. The Prohibition vote was much smaller than expected. The Legislature stands: Senators—Fusionists, 19; Republicans, 13. Representatives—Fusionists, 51; Republicans, 49. The Free Press (Dem.) still claims the victory, but by very small pluralities. The upper peninsula reports largely increased majorities for the Republican ticket, which overcome much of the Democratic gains in the lower peninsula.

The latest figures on Congressmen indicate the election of six Fusion Democrats and five Republicans, as follows: Republicans—Allen in the Second district, O'Donnell in the Third, Burrows in the Fourth, Cutcheon in the Ninth, and Moffatt in the Eleventh. Fusion Democrats—Mayburry in the First district, Comstock in the Fifth, Winans in the Sixth, Carleton in the Seventh, Tarsney in the Eighth, and Fisher in the Tenth. The Fifth district is close, but this list is probably correct. The delegation is the same as it has been, but each party gained and lost one.

All reports received up to 10 o'clock indicate Blaine's plurality to be 3,593 and Alger's (Rep.) for Governor, 1,251.

Returns from 1,083 precincts reported to the Democratic State Committee give Cleveland-Butler fusion 469 majority. The Chairman of the above committee estimates that the remaining 263 precincts will probably give the Republicans 2,000 majority, giving them the State by about 1,500. The Governor, so far as heard from, is a little behind the national ticket.

West Virginia Undoubtedly Democratic.

WHEELING, Nov. 6.—The majorities for Blaine in this State by counties are as follows: Hancock, 220; Marion, 2; Monongalia, 750; Grant, 500; Preston, 1,500; Marshall, 623; Tyler, 336; Doddridge, 250; Mason, 470; Putnam, 178; Wood, 500; Kanawha, 1,100; Taylor, 274, and Harrison, 290. The majorities for Cleveland are as follows: Brooke, 53; Lewis, 138; Wetzel, 900, estimated; Mineral, 83; Berkeley, 66; Cabell, 455; Pleasants, 163, and Hampshire, 1,300, estimated. The State is undoubtedly Democratic.

One-third of the State has been heard from. Cleveland's majority will vary but little from Gov. Wilson's in October.

Returns from this State are still very meagre. The Secretary of the State Republican Committee concedes the State to the Democrats by 1,000, a Republican gain of over 4,000. The Republicans elect two Congressmen, a gain of one.

Virginia for Cleveland.

RICHMOND, Nov. 6.—Returns, most of them official, from 83 counties and all of the cities in Virginia, give a majority for Cleveland of 7,450. The 17 counties to be heard from gave a net Democratic majority of 1,270 last year. These counties are likely to give as great, if not a greater, majority now, which will make Cleveland's majority nearly 9,000 in the State. The Democrats elect 8 of the 10 Congressmen

THE METROPOLIS GOES WILD.

BEDLAM IN PRINTING HOUSE AND MADISON SQUARES.

Solid Citizens Hire the Seventh Regiment Band and Parade with Cleveland War Cries, and the Procession Starts up Fifth Avenue Chanting "Hang Jay Gould!"—The Police Stop them, Because the Paraders had No Permit—Unparalleled Excitement Caused by the Conflicting Returns and the Opposing Cries of Fraud.

The crowds about the bulletins yesterday morning were Democratic crowds, but they did not do half the cheering that the Republican crowds had done on Tuesday night and Wednesday, and were not half as enthusiastic. In the morning everything seemed to indicate that New York State had gone for Cleveland, and the strongest Republican bulletin boards put up no reports at all. On the other hand, the bulletins favoring Cleveland favored him a great deal. Some of them announced his election as positive, and gave him New York State by 6,000 plurality. Others were satisfied to say that he had positively carried the State by 3,000, while others again said that 1,000 was as much as he could expect. The Daily News bulletin had his picture out as "The Nation's Choice," and some live roosters in cages to supplement its supply of the campaign wood cuts.

All the peddlers peddled only Cleveland badges and buttons, and the cartoons that were liberally sold in the crowd were hits at Blaine. There were a good many of them, but they were not very pointed. One portrayed an elephant festively balancing himself on one leg, and beneath it was a suggestion that Mr. Blaine should take a trip up Salt River in Jay Gould's yacht. Another, which had a deep black border, represented a funeral procession of many carriages, and in front of the hearse was Gen. Logan with crape on his hat. There were a lot of little coffins scattered around, and Mr. Blaine's was in the hearse.

Every variety of picture of Cleveland and Hendricks was sold. Little ones for two cents, bigger ones for five cents, and bigger ones yet for a dime were displayed on all sides. Some were colored and some were not. Cleveland and Hendricks standing side by side in front of the White House were sold in large numbers. Blaine and Logan pictures, badges, and buttons were nowhere to be seen.

These are some of the bulletins that Mr. Cleveland's supporters displayed:

Cleveland elected. Associated Press bulletins show gains for Cleveland. He is safe for 3,000 plurality in his State.

Daniel Manning of Albany declares the State for Cleveland by 15,000 plurality.

This State is Democratic and Cleveland will be the President. The majority will be large.

Sure for Cleveland. New York State is ours.

This despatch from Mr. Hendricks was also displayed:

The returns of the State Committee show that Indiana has from 6,000 to 9,000 Democratic majority. I believe this to be substantially correct. THOMAS A. HENDRICKS.

There were reports about town that the Tribune had thrown up the sponge, and for a long time there were no bulletins run out by it. At 1 o'clock the Tribune displayed the following:

A false report has been circulated that the Tribune has given up the State. We believe that Blaine is elected.

It did not make any other display until nearly 3 o'clock, when the following bulletin was displayed from one of the windows:

2.45 P. M.—New York and Kings county with 1,847 other precincts, giving 1,190,185 total, have given Cleveland a plurality of 527. 108 other precincts, which have not yet been heard from, gave Garfield 2,445 plurality in 1880.

After this other bulletins came out in favor of Blaine, and a statement that the Republican National Committee claimed his election by 4,000. This encouraged the supporters of Mr. Blaine, and they swarmed into Printing House square, and the roaring, shouting, cheering crowd of men and boys that had made it a Bedlam for two days was there again. The voices were as strong and the cheers as earnest as before, but the good humor which had marked the other gatherings was gone. Two men would come together and strike a blow or two, and then the crowd, like a great wave, would undulate toward them and they would be swept away.

Cleveland's shouters at this time were very much disheartened, and the general talk was that Cleveland had carried the State, but that the Republicans were counting him out. One of the Cleveland bulletins ran out this in immense letters:

"Time to steal the State. Suspicious Republican Rascality. Jay Gould Suspected.

As dusk came on the Blaine bulletins grew favorable and more favorable to Blaine's chances, and it was announced that he was 615 ahead of Cleveland, with fifty-seven precincts to hear from, and that most of these precincts were strongly Republican. Then a bulletin was run out which said that the Republican National Committee had issued an address in which they said that the latest returns warranted it in "announcing the triumphant election of Blaine and Logan." All this gave fresh courage to the Blaine men, and they shouted and yelled until they grew hoarse.

To offset this the Cleveland bulletins announced that Cleveland had surely carried the State, but the Cleveland crowd did not brace up until this was shown:

Daniel Manning telegraphs that the State has given a safe and sure majority for Cleveland that cannot be changed.

Then they shouted and roared their cheers out with a vim that frightened the car horses.

WALL STREET RATHER LIVELIER.

Wall street continued to devote a very large share of its attention to election news. At the same time there was more doing in the market than for several days of late. The Gould stocks were freely sold, especially Union Pacific. The street appeared to be in doubt as to the result of the election, and after the first hour began to be less sanguine of Cleveland's success. The market then became steady, and continued fairly so until the close. There was very little betting upon the uncertainty of the election, and the most of it was favorable to Cleveland. The gossip of the street was principally about the slowness of the returns.

Very little was doing in the way of business down town. The dry goods and banking houses were pretty nearly at a standstill. At the Custom House transactions were slow and limited, the employees looked blue until 2 o'clock, when Collector Robertson got a despatch from some miraculously well-informed person, which said that Blaine had 152 plurality in the State. Then the boys cheered up. In the rotunda cheers were alternately given for Blaine and Cleveland every few minutes.

All the United States Courts were adjourned except the one in which Judge Shipman was trying a marine insurance case.

BETS AND BLUFF AT THE ASTOR.

Blaine groups and Cleveland groups jostled each other all yesterday afternoon in the rotunda of the Astor House. Every few minutes newcomers would join the groups with fresh tidings, and then the excitement would vary just as the news was favorable or otherwise. Every little while these groups would surge into each other, and in the confusion that would ensue an observer would find it difficult to decide whether he was among Democrats or Republicans. "Bluff and guff," as they were described, were the principal pastimes of the crowd. Where there was one genuine bet made, there were forty instances of bluff to offset it. About $20,000 was deposited with the bet man in bets. There was one bet of $10,000 on Blaine and another heard of as large on Cleveland carrying New York State. A man named Wilson wanted to stake $200 to $180 on Blaine, but could get no takers.

At Nash & Crook's there was almost a fight between a number of Post Office men headed by big Frank Raymond and a party of lawyers, of whom Mr. Gay of the Tribune building was one. The latter was shouting for Blaine.

KEEPING IT UP AT NIGHT.

When the electric lights blazed out last night they lighted up the faces of thousands of roaring and excited men, who were watching the bulletins with an intensity that was plainly expressed in every look and every shout. Everybody seemed crazy with excitement, and for noise, vim, and enthusiasm the crowds of the day dwindled into insignificance when compared with those that made the night a howling Babel. They seemed to put little confidence in most of the bulletins run out by partisan newspaper mathematicians. The Cleveland bulletins were announcing the certain election of Cleveland, and the Blaine bulletins announced Blaine's election on the authority of the Associated Press. THE SUN bulletin was about the only one which seemed to carry confidence with it.

"Let's go to THE SUN'S bulletin" was on the lips of every other man in the crowd further down in Park row.

At 7 o'clock there was an immense crowd in front of THE SUN office, and intense interest was manifested in these returns:

The total Associated Press returns from New York, with 48 districts to be heard from, give Blaine 438 plurality.

New York State in doubt. THE SUN'S returns still show reduced plurality for Cleveland. The Associated Press elect Blaine. The SUN'S returns give Cleveland 1,000 plurality.

The crowd cheered THE SUN, and grew larger and larger until it stretched away across the street and into the park. A double column of men and boys formed each with his hands on the shoulders of the person in front of him, and wound its way through the crowd like a great snake. Then it curved around the outer edge of the crowd and marched through it again eight abreast. The battle cry was:

Blaine, Blaine, sunstruck Blaine.

Then they disappeared again, but soon came back with a banner, and carrying brands of burning paper which made plain the portrait of Cleveland, which was on the banner. They used the same war cry until they got in front of the Tribune office, and then they dropped it and shouted:

Rats—rats—rats, rats, rats,
Rats—rats—rats, rats, rats.

AN EXTEMPORE DOWN-TOWN PROCESSION.

Another crowd gathered in front of the Park office, where somebody gave them a big Cleveland banner. In a twinkling it was lashed to a pole and the men and boys, who made up the crowd, formed eight abreast and marched through City Hall Park and forced their way through the immense assemblage in front of THE SUN and Tribune offices. Then they drew up in front of the Times office, where somebody furnished a lot of newspapers. The banner bearer, followed by his little crowd, which had folded the papers into the form of lettuce and lighted them, pressed again through the bigger crowd, yelling as it marched:

Fisher, Fisher, my dear Mr. Fisher,
Kind regards to Mrs. Fisher.

Then they swung over into the park, and, keeping time to their refrain of

Burn, burn, burn this letter,
Burn, burn, burn this letter.

They marched into Broadway, and kept on to Dey street. There the banner bearer planted himself on the steps of the Western Union building and started to make a speech. The rest of the procession crowded about him, and soon the street was impassable. The banner bearer could not be heard for the shouts of his followers, but tried his best until the police came and tried to drive them all away. The crowd would not go, and there was a mild fight. Just then a gray-haired man came out and shouted:

"Let them go away, or there will be a riot."

The banner bearer shouldered his banner and marched down Broadway until he reached a Blaine and Logan banner. The procession cut the side ropes, but were prevented by the police from tearing the banner down. They then marched up Broadway to Grand street, and stationed themselves before the Grand street Republican headquarters, and hooted and shouted until the police came and drove them away from there.

Then they came down to THE SUN office again and cheered for Cleveland.

THEY RUN AGAINST THE POLICE.

A sooty-faced man with a shovel, on which was chalked "Cleveland elected—5,000!" assumed the leadership of the crowd in front of the Federal Building. It was then composed principally of young fellows from the First, Fourth, and Seventh wards. They lit more newspapers as they marched down Park row again. The young fellow holding the fight lower end of the big banner carried a rope in three nooses in his left hand. As the crowd sang:

The young fellow swung the noosed rope around his head. Nobody seemed to have any idea as to where he was going. Enthusiasm for Cleveland seemed to be the only thing that held the crowd together. Only a few persons in it seemed to be acquainted. It stopped in front of the Astor House, and the man with the chalked shovel held it aloft while all roared,

"Three cheers for Cleveland!"

A short, thick-set man, with a German accent, directed the movements of the crowd after it left the Astor House. He wore a thick brown overcoat and a brown Derby hat, and seemed more enthusiastic than anybody. The crowd went westward through Vesey street to Washington, and southward to Dey. The man in the brown overcoat shouted as he led a flaming newspaper above his head, "Let's go to the Western Union building and burn it!" The crowd turned into Dey street over 500 strong, beating tin pans and shouting.

As it crossed Church street the tin pans suddenly ceased and the shouting turned to yells of dismay. Forty policemen under Capt. Berghold and Sergeant Minet had burst out of Church street. The banner bearers dropped their banner and ran. Cops were used on the legs of the runners. In two minutes there was not a parader to be seen except the man in the brown overcoat. He told a SUN reporter and Capt. Berghold how he had induced the crowd to fall into the trap prepared for it by the noise and flames exciting them to make a second attempt to tear down the Jewelers' Blaine and Logan banner in Broadway. The police made no arrests. The man in the brown overcoat is said to be a negro minstrel. Capt. Berghold said he had dispersed the crowd because they were parading without a permit.

At 9 o'clock THE SUN put out this bulletin:

THE SUN'S returns indicate that Cleveland has carried the State by 1,500 plurality.

Soon after the Times ran out a bulletin making the same statement. The crowd, which had now become a Cleveland crowd, roared its approval until Printing House square rang. The Tribune ceased putting out bulletins at 10 o'clock, and then the Blaine men were thrown. At midnight there wasn't one to be found in the vicinity of the City Hall.

HE WANTED TO BET A MILLION.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the crowd in the Hoffman House had reached a condition of extraordinary density. The men were packed in front of the clerk's desk, in the corridors, and in the barroom like cod-fish in a box. At intervals a man would succeed in getting his arm out of the crush, waving his hat in the air and yelling wildly for Cleveland or Blaine. In either case he was answered in a storm of cheers and hisses. The crowd surged one way and another and howled wildly.

After a good deal of exertion a tall, slim man with a clean shaven and rather attractive face, succeeded in raising his voice above the din of the crowd. He is a Wall street broker and very well known down town. Supported by one or two of his friends, he yelled:

"I will bet $1,000,000 to $600,000—$1,000,000 to $600,000—that Grover Cleveland is our next President."

Two other men nearly opposite to him, whose arms were linked together and whose faces have been familiar at horse races for many years, waved their hands at him wildly and said they could get the money. The tall man kept repeating his offer of one million to six hundred thousand dollars, and forced his way to the clerk's desk. He drew a blank check from his pocket and waved it in the air and yelled:

"How do you know it is good" said the betting men, pressing forward, "we don't know you."

"It's good because I say it is," howled the tall man.

"Nonsense, we don't know you."

"Well, gentlemen," said the Wall street broker, who was now quite hoarse, "I'll draw my check for one million dollars, and I'll draw another check for twenty thousand dollars, which I will forfeit if the million-dollar check isn't good."

He pulled out another blank and rapidly filled the two checks.

"Now, I bet this twenty thousand-dollar check against any man's five thousand that my million-dollar check is good," he cried.

The betting men talked earnestly with one another. They evidently knew their man, and felt almost sure that he hadn't the money he claimed to have. They hesitated for a long while, allowed the tall man to wave the check in their faces, and then they drifted slowly away.

The broker, followed by an admiring crowd, wormed his way to the door with a friend on either arm. When they got outside he giggled from the time he left the Hoffman House until he entered Delmonico's.

"It was the biggest bluff of the campaign," said a friend of his speaking of it afterward. "The man hasn't got $1,000 to his name."

MADISON SQUARE GONE WILD.

A swollen tide of humanity choked Madison square last night. It swept to and fro with a hoarse and continuous roar, recurring bursts of excitement set thousands of hats swaying over the black and white expanse of hats and faces. A broker of horsemen's frame, with a big brown wheat straw hat, rush-rushed the electric gare of the square, stopped out of the crush into Fifth avenue at 7 o'clock, and shouldered a brand-new broom like a musket. The Seventh Regiment band sent from the Democratic headquarters, formed in ranks behind him, and blew into the trampers till their eyes bulged and thumped the drums till the air shook with the boom. Then the Wall street Hercules twirled his broom with the dazzling intrepidity of a trained drum major and shouted "Fall in for Cleveland."

Well-dressed men shouldered other brooms and wielding sticks quick as lightning, and by the time the band had marched half a block there were more than twenty ranks of twenty files front tramping in the roadway. When the procession had made just one circuit of the square there were more than 2,000 men in line, and new lines formed every minute. Big portraits of Cleveland were spiked on the canes and tied to the brooms. No torchlight procession ever awakened the uproar that greeted the paraders. The square crackled and howled up and until the clerks of the Fifth Avenue said that if the excitement grew any worse the houses would begin to slide off the alarming incline. The big throng cheered in sections of 100 as it tramped, and shouted in time with the tremendous melody of the band these couplets:

Ma, ma where's my pa?
Gone to the White House, ha! ha! ha!

Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine,
The biggest liar in the state of Maine.

Soap, soap, Jay Gould's soap,
Catch him New York or keep up hope.

The procession wheeled right into the midst of the throng that swayed before the Republican National Committee. Burning paper crackled in the wind like blazing pine knots over the heads of the processionists, and 3,000 lungs made the air vociferous with the shout:

Burn, burn, burn this letter,

Silken flags waved over the heads of the loyal Republican masses, and a thousand Blaine men sent back this answer with a 1,000 lung-power enthusiasm:

Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine,
We give three cheers for President Blaine.

The uproar on the sidewalk never let up in the face of the wild roar in the roadways. Portraits of Cleveland fell down on the crowd from the house tops like a snow storm. Everybody yelled for Cleveland and Blaine till his voice gave out, and then used up the rest of his wasted breath in laughing at the nimble newsboys who industriously sowed seeds of uncertainty in the wind with real shouts of Extra—Cleveland elected sure.

Extra—Blaine carries New York.

By 10 o'clock the crowd had shouted so constantly that its lungs refused to respond to Cleveland returns on the stereopticon. President Arthur stepped into his carriage and drove away unnoticed, because everybody in the neighborhood had his eyes riveted on the canvas transparency.

All the crowd in Union square had drifted up around Madison square and lost itself in the ocean. When Chairman Gorman's proclamation that the United States had elected Cleveland and Hendricks by pictures of Cleveland and legends of victory had been hung all over the front of the National Committee's headquarters and brooms sprouted from the window sills. There was an instant of silence as the proclamation was read aloud. The next instant Bloomingdale, in its wildest moments, would have been a Concord School of Philosophy calm compared with Madison square. Cheers swept all along the line and into the hotel, and the entire throng took up the shout:

No, no, no, we secure six.

The procession swept along with a fresh blare of trumpets, and thousands on the sidewalks joined in the campaign song of the marching thousands:

Oh, keep those bells a-ringing
While he climbs up the White House stairs.

THE POLICE STOP THE PROCESSION.

When the crowd behind the band had swelled to 3,000 the enthusiasm was at its height, and the crowd sang the popular airs while the musicians played them, and the crowd that lined the sidewalks joined in the chorus with all-night affair, things came to a sudden close. Thirty policemen with drawn clubs faced the head of the procession. It wanted to keep right on, but the leader was led away by an officer three-quarters his height, and upon this the band disbanded. The crowd behind resisted for a while, but no violence was attempted, and while those out of reach of clubs groaned at the policemen, those within arguewing did not think of fight. They had no permit to parade, the police said.

When the ranks were finally broken up, the crowd went on in the usual tenor of its way, shouting and yelling, and applauding every one who got up a new cry. Five hundred men gathered opposite the Young Men's Democratic Club in Twenty-fourth street, and did some energetic groaning. Under the lead of a powerful lunged young man they groaned for nearly everything—for Blaine, for Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion, and for "the Tattooed Man." Then a genius got up the cry, "Pa, ta, tattooed Jimmy," and that afforded amusement for quite a while.

By this time it was 11 o'clock, and the stereopticon managed by the World was beginning to get the crowd excited. The following was flashed on the canvas repeatedly:

Are Democratic processions allowed in this city?

They are not—not without permits. But the taunt seemed bad the desired effect, and a second procession was soon organized.

It was not as large as its predecessor, but it was more excited. Five to eight hundred men, all well dressed, formed in line outside the Democratic club and started up Fifth avenue, where Jay Gould lives, all yelling together:

Hang, hang,
Hang Jay Gould.

or singing:

They had got only two blocks up the avenue, however, when the police, headed by Sergeant King, made for them again, and succeeded in once again breaking them up, although with more difficulty than at first. A number of excited Germans cursed the police roundly in German and English, and a fight seemed imminent, when twenty young fellows gathered around and gave three cheers for Sergeant King. There was no pronounced opinion in his way, and that procession dispersed peacefully.

The Sergeant and Capt. Williams, under whose orders he acted, said that the processions were broken up simply because they had no permit to parade. People could yell as much as they chose if they did not block the cars.

The stereopticon kept on wanting to know why Democrats couldn't parade, and inviting the crowd to a mass meeting of protestation before the Treasury building at 3½ this afternoon. The inquiry did not succeed in provoking disturbances, and the meeting was postponed. The yelling and howling of the crowd responded promptly to every bulletin, and it looked as if they had forgotten that it was past bedtime.

The Seventh Regiment Band serenaded Senator Gorman, Chairman of the National Democratic Executive Committee, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Senator Gorman spoke as follows:

Cleveland and Hendricks have unquestionably carried the State of New York, and have beyond doubt elected their ticket. The Republican leaders have made a desperate effort to steal the Electoral vote of this State, but such a disgrace will never again be permitted in this country.

TWO FIGHTS STOPPED.

At 11:40 a crowd of roughs came over in a body to the front of headquarters. They began to groan and jeer, and the large Blaine crowd replied. A savage fight followed, in which fully a dozen men took part. The two crowds attacked each other, and a serious riot was threatened. Roundsman Chapman was on the steps of headquarters, and there were eight unusually large policemen held in reserve in the hall. He called them out, and they charged the crowd with drawn clubs. They tossed men to the right and left like children and forced their way to the fighters. These they soon dispersed. Five minutes later there was another fight, in which canes were freely used and several hats smashed. Another charge of the police ended that. No arrests were made, and nobody was hurt by the clubs.

A RIVAL SHOW.

Yesterday afternoon, while the crowds in front of the newspaper offices were giving vent to their enthusiasm in wild hurrahs, a crank took possession of the City Hall. His eyes flashed fire from their bony sockets as, extending his right hand toward the city, he declaimed on the wickedness of politicians.

In less than three minutes the newspaper bulletin boards were deserted for the new attraction, and the crowd ran pell-mell over to the City Hall. They crowded up the steps, swarmed into the building and jammed all the corridors. About twenty policemen cleared the place after some work. When all were once more cheering for their candidates in Printing House square, the proud crank was left a lifeless place, trembling with fear, and disappeared up Broadway.

EQUAL TO HIS ENVIRONMENT.

The ticket agent at the Fifty-ninth street station of the Third avenue elevated road was much bothered yesterday by passengers who sought information about the election. In order to satisfy them he put up two bulletins, each headed "The latest." One bulletin said Cleveland had carried the State by 3,000 plurality. The other said Blaine had carried it by 3,000. The agent made all his inquirers happy by a judicious exhibition of the two bulletins.

THE LATEST REPUBLICAN CLAIM.

Secretary Donaldson of the Republican National Committee said that the official returns of forty-seven counties in New York State had been received from New York and Brooklyn. These showed a Republican majority of 468. The State Committee had made estimates on counties, and in every case these estimates were found under the actual figures. They claim a Republican majority of 700. In regard to the sudden increase of the Adams Democratic vote, the election returns there were all in the hands of the Democrats and the Republican agents had been refused admission to the Court House.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR MEETS JAY GOULD.

President Arthur remained in his apartments at the Fifth Avenue Hotel until turbed by visitors until afternoon, when he drove to the Western Union building, and met ex-Gov. Cornell and Mr. Jay Gould. Returning at 6 o'clock P. M., the President dined alone in his private room, and afterward went out to visit some friends.

Colorado for Blaine.

DENVER, Nov. 5.—Incomplete returns indicate that Colorado has gone Republican by an unexpectedly large majority. The Blaine electors will have a majority of between 6,000 and 7,000. Symes (Rep.) is elected to Congress by 4,530; Eaton (Rep.), for Governor, by 3,500, and Peter Breene (Rep.), for Lieut.-Governor, by about 1,000. The other officers on the State ticket are elected by majorities ranging from 3,000 to 5,000.

50,000 for Cleveland in Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 6.—The majority for Cleveland in Alabama will probably reach 50,000. The Congress election returns eight Democrats. As far as heard from, there was not even a ballot on election day.

CHAIRMAN WARREN EXPLAINS.

How he Gets the Blaine Plurality that The Sun's Searching Cannot Find.
