BURIED SIDE BY SIDE.

The Victims of Druggist Am Ende's Error Laid to Rest in one Grave.

Outside the Holtz residence at Hoboken yesterday morning all was bright and cheerful. Beds of brilliant flowers nodded in the breeze and merry children played along the sidewalk and clustered about the front gate. Within, in the darkened parlor, enclosed in white caskets, and covered with masses of fragrant flowers, lay side by side the bodies of Gretchen and Ella Holtz, victims of Druggist Am Ende's fatal mistake. The sight, although intensely sad, was a beautiful one, for the bodies were so arranged that the faces looked toward one another as if in sympathy.

By 10 o'clock the crowd in front of the house had so increased that the undertaker telephoned for policemen to keep it back from the sidewalk. Some persons had been standing there since 7 o'clock in the morning. No religious ceremonies were observed at the funeral, and at about 11 o'clock the casket, in which lay the body of Gretchen, was brought out and placed in one of the two hearses that stood before the door. A moment later that containing the body of her younger sister was placed in the other. The caskets were covered with white embossed velvet, and on the inside were lined with white satin. The flowers which had been upon the caskets were laid in the first carriage, which they almost filled. One of the most beautiful floral designs was a harp of red and white roses, on either side of which a white dove with outstretched wings was perched, while at the base was the name "Gretchen" in letters of blue immortelles. This was young Dr. Loewenthal's last gift to the girl to whom he had been betrothed.

Mrs. Holtz was too much overcome to be able to go to the grave, and she, with the younger children, remained at home.

As the procession entered the cemetery gate a number of people who had gathered to witness the last sad ceremonies clustered more closely about the graves. The body of Gretchen was first lowered into the ground, and then Ella was laid at her side.

When the first clod sounded on Gretchen's coffin several women in the crowd sobbed aloud, and the tears rolled thick and fast down Mr. Holtz's furrowed cheeks. Near by him stood young Dr. Loewenthal, completely overcome, while around him were his brothers and sisters trying in vain to comfort him. After the graves had been filled and covered with flowers, and the carriages had left the cemetery, a ragged little boy about 10 years old begged permission to place a daisy, which he held in his hand, with the other flowers on the graves. His request was granted.

One of the doctors who has charge of Mr. Am Ende said yesterday that he was now able to be up, although still suffering from a severe headache. Strict orders have been given not to allow him to see the newspapers, and he does not yet know that Ella Holtz is dead. Some fear is entertained that he may lose his reason when he hears of it.

PAVING FIFTH AVENUE.

Curious Muddle in Which the Pavement Commission has Involved Itself.

The Fifth Avenue Pavement Commission, consisting of Mayor Grace, Commissioner Squire, and Comptroller Loew, has got itself into a curious muddle on the subject of awarding the contract. The Legislature gave the Commissioners full power to secure the very best pavement. The work will extend from Waverley place to Nineteenth street, and will cost about $500,000. The Commissioners advertised for bids, making many conditions with which the bidders were required to comply. They got ten bids, of which only four were according to the terms of the advertisement. The Commissioners came to the conclusion, apparently, that none of the bids suited them, and on July 29 decided to reject all the bids. Thereupon some of the contractors withdrew their deposits. Other contractors, however, did not withdraw their deposits, and subsequently the Commissioners got the opinion of the Corporation Counsel that their rejection of the bids was informal.

At the meeting of the Commission yesterday their former action rejecting all the bids was rescinded, and the Commissioners decided to meet on Sept. 10 and consider the bids already in, with the exception of the bids from contractors who have withdrawn their deposits. This is, of course, very satisfactory to those contractors who "got the tip" and did not withdraw their deposits.

The action of the Commissioners in excluding the contractors who have withdrawn their deposits is based on the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, and the adjournment for nine days is said to have been for the purpose of giving the discomfited contractors time to apply to the courts for redress. It is likely that whoever gets the contract will have to face litigation. It is freely charged that the course of the Commissioners in revoking their former action and considering bids once rejected is in the interest of certain favored contractors of the Department of Public Works, and is intimical to the design of the Legislature in creating a Commission to secure the best pavement for Fifth avenue. On the other hand, the Commissioners say that they are proceeding with caution to get the best possible pavement for Fifth avenue according to law.

CHOLERA IN RAISINS.

New York Importers Say California Growers are Creating a False Alarm.

A despatch from California says that the wholesale grocers there are alarmed over the danger of cholera being brought into New York city in raisins imported from Spain. They have been informed that Health Officer Smith at this port intends to admit all raisins picked, but not packed, in infected districts.

Hill Brothers, importers of raisins, said: "The Spanish crop of raisins was picked during the past month, and is now being shipped. None of it has yet arrived here, but several cargoes have already been landed in England, where they have met with no opposition whatever. I do not think there is the slightest danger of cholera coming in raisins; I never heard of such a thing. I am expecting large quantities of raisins from Spain, and I have received no intimation from the Health Officer that they would not be admitted. This is a scare worked up by Chicago and California speculators, who control the unusually large crop grown in California this year. They hope to get a large price for it by preventing the importation of foreign raisins. We had no trouble with raisins brought from the infected districts last year."

Mr. Matthew Dean, an importer, said: "If the crop was packed in the infected districts I should suppose there might be danger of bringing over cholera in the paper, which is certainly as dangerous as rags. I have curtailed my orders, as I fear some action may be taken against foreign raisins. You can depend upon it that the scare is engineered by the raisin growers in California."

Brooklyn's Bad Beer.

Chemist Bartley of the Brooklyn Health Department has been investigating the subject of beer, and yesterday he submitted the result of his inquiries to Health Commissioner Raymond.

Dr. Bartley reports that the practice of drawing beer through brass or copper faucets is injurious to the consumer, because deposits of the metal are often found in the beverage. He also strongly condemns the practice, so common with some brewers, of adding bicarbonate of soda to the beer, so as to make it foam when drawn. Two ounces of the drug are compressed into a carridge and dropped into the keg at the time of filling. Thirty glasses of beer thus charged will contain nearly three teaspoonfuls of soda. Most of the beers made in Brooklyn, Dr. Bartley continues, are sent out from the brewery in about fourteen days after the brewing, and are necessarily unwholesome.

Dr. Raymond yesterday issued an order forbidding saloon keepers and others from drawing beer from taps that are not properly lined with tin or so constructed as to be free from danger. He will also take steps to prevent the sale of beer that is prematurely developed by artificial means.

Kings County Surrogate Vacancy.

Judges and lawyers are puzzling over the law supposed to affect the vacancy in the office of Surrogate of Kings county. Some hold that the vacancy must be filled by the Governor, others that the Supervisors have the right to fill it. Chapter 490, Laws of 1884, provides that the Board of Supervisors of the county of Kings may appoint a person to act as Supervisor "in a case where it is prescribed by section 2,402 of the Code of Civil Procedure that it may make such an appointment, and with like effect as prescribed in that section." The section of the Code referred to says that in cases of disability or vacancy, except in the counties of Kings and Queens the supervisors may appoint a temporary Surrogate. Judges and lawyers are agreed on one thing—that the law as it stands is stupid in its wording.

Mrs. Chambers Uses Her Baby as a Club.

Mrs. Margaret Chambers, a dissipated woman, of 140 Tillary street, Brooklyn, was committed to the Raymond street jail yesterday for drunkenness. When her ten day term expires she will be placed on trial for gross cruelty to her four-year-old daughter and her three-months-old infant. On Tuesday evening Margaret and her husband, who had been drinking to excess, had a quarrel in their rooms, and became so noisy that Louis Happe, a neighbor, interfered. Mrs Chambers seized her baby by the legs, and, using it as a club, struck at Mr. Happe. He ran out and returned with a policeman, but she resented this additional interference, and used the baby as a club on the officer. The policeman took the baby away from her, and then, as she was arrested, she pulled a handful of hair from her little four-year-old daughter's head.

Threw a Baby After Them.

Some boys on Madison street threw stones yesterday afternoon at Ellen Kenny, a dissipated old woman. She turned and chased them. They were too quick for her, however, and in her anger she picked up a baby carriage, in which Mrs. Mary Talbert of 107 Madison street was wheeling her baby, and threw carriage and baby after them. The baby was not hurt. Mrs. Talbert followed Ellen Kenny and had her arrested. She fought the policeman all the way to Essex Market Court and cut into the prison. Justice Smith sent her to the workhouse for three months.

THE DISASTER ON THE POTOMAC.

How Senator Morgan's Son and Mrs. Emma Delia Seta Lost their Lives.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The particulars of the sad accident on the Potomac last evening, by which Mr. John H. Morgan, the only son of Senator Morgan of Alabama, and Mrs. Emma Delia Seta lost their lives, are as follows:

Mr. Morgan, who is a member of the Washington Canoe Club, left the club house at about 4 P. M., going in the Iola, a double canoe, with Mrs. Seta, while Mrs. Seta's niece, Miss Lulu McCarthy, accompanied them in a single canoe, as she desired to practise paddling. At 7¼, when about a quarter of a mile below the Chain Bridge, the double canoe was capsized and both its occupants were drowned. Mr. Morgan went down while attempting to save Mrs. Seta. He was a good swimmer, but of very slight physique. Miss McCarthy, who had turned her canoe down stream, and was some distance in advance, happened to turn her head over her shoulder and saw the Iola upset. She saw the two occupants in the water, and heard Mr. Morgan cry "Lulu! Lulu!" before he sank. She at once turned about, but when she had paddled to the spot both Mr. Morgan and Mrs. Stella had disappeared. The canoe had struck a sunken rock.

After paddling about the fatal spot for half an hour or more, vainly hoping that the forms of her companions would rise to the surface, Miss McCarthy in despair started down the river after help. She had gone but a little way when she met a gentleman and lady in a boat, and went back with them to make another fruitless search. Miss McCarthy and her two new companions then turned again down the stream toward Holtzman. Miss McCarthy subsequently was taken to her home in a buggy by Mr. Holtzman, who then drove to Senator Morgan's house and informed him of his son's death. The announcement for a moment stunned the Senator. When he had recovered his composure, he gave directions to have a thorough search made for the bodies, and a force of men was soon at work in the river.

Mrs. Seta was a widow, about 40 years of age, a clerk in the General Land Office, and resided with her sister, Mrs. McCarthy, and her niece, Miss McCarthy, at 2,116 G street.

Mrs. Morgan is critically ill, and she has thus far been kept in ignorance of her son's death, for fear that the shock would prove fatal.

TATE DECIDES FOR SULLIVAN.

The Decision Made on Grammatical as well as on Scientific Points.

TOLEDO, Sept. 2.—A great deal of pressure was brought to bear on Billy Tate, the referee in the Sullivan-McCaffrey fight yesterday by friends of McCaffrey to decide in favor of the little Pittsburgher. There was such an air of mystery about just what the original articles of agreement were that Mr. Tate telegraphed to George Campbell, the stakeholder at Cincinnati, asking what the articles said. The reply was mystifying, and, deciding not to parley any further, Mr. Tate last night referred the question to Fred H. Whipple, representative of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Mr. Whipple sat down and wrote out the following, which at midnight Mr. Tate signed:

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 1, 1885.

There having been a great deal of uncertainty in many quarters growing out of the decision in the Sullivan-McCaffrey contest in Cincinnati last Saturday, I, as referee, desire to say:

First—When I was unwillingly called to the stand at Chester Park I was asked by Muldoon, master of ceremonies, and Chambers, one of Sullivan's seconds, if I understood the rules. I answered that I believed I did. I then said I had only to decide on points; that there would be no slugging or knock-out, as the authorities had forbidden it, and had placed Sullivan under bond, and that it would be simply an exhibition of boxing.

Second—With this understanding I acted as referee and gave my decision on points, viz., that Sullivan had the best of it.

Third—It has since been related to me that the articles of agreement read originally for scientific points, and that Sullivan had scratched out those words, but I have been unable to obtain these original articles.

Fourth—Desiring to deal fairly and justly with all parties, I today telegraphed George Campbell, the stakeholder, asking him, after I had requested him to come here and bring the document, the substance of the agreement. In reply I received the following:

To W. C. Tate, Toledo, Ohio: CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 1.

Agreement calls for scientific points, but Sullivan wanted them scratched out. Match could not be decided on points. GEO. CAMPBELL.

The two sentences of Mr. Campbell's despatch are so at variance with each other that I am puzzled to know what he means. He informs me that the agreement calls for scientific points. Now, "calls" is a verb, the present tense. He also says Sullivan wanted them scratched out, but he does not tell me that they were scratched out, or that they ever had been. These words may have been omitted, but I have no right to infer that they were. Again, Mr. Campbell, as stakeholder, has paid over the money due the winner to Sullivan, thereby strengthening my position and by implication contradicting the last sentence in his own despatch. Therefore I see no reason to alter my decision made and announcement at the end of the sixth round.

W. C. TATE.

Contesting an Octogenarian's Will.

The will of John Shea is under contest before the Surrogate. Mr. Shea died last April, aged 84. He left a young widow, Elizabeth Shea, and two infant children, the younger of whom was born when he was considerably over 80. Mr. Shea built and owned the house in which he spent the latter part of his life, at 145th street and Willis avenue, and he had money and other property. He left all to his young widow and two children, and it was not thought he had any other descendants, but it was ascertained later that he had been married three times, and that he had two grandchildren.

One of them, Mary Shea, living in the family of Jeremiah Cronkhite, is a relative in the principal contestant of the will. The young widow, for whose sake the old man forgot every one else in making his will, is the niece of his second wife. She used to visit her aunt when the latter was alive, and thus the old man, though at the time a septuagenarian, became acquainted with her. In about three months after his second wife's death he married the niece.

The Cable Road's Eccentric Grip.

Cars ran spasmodically on the cable railroad yesterday. When the cars were once started from the curve at Manhattan street to go north they went all right; but it was hard work to start them. Sometimes the car stuck fast suddenly, and then the passengers struggled in a heap in the forward end of the car. An extra car was put on yesterday, and the four cars ran on a headway of about twenty minutes, depending entirely on the erratic grip.

The Court Tumbles Into the Mud.

Police Justice Solon B. Smith, while attempting to get aboard a Grand street car at Centre street yesterday afternoon, slipped and fell into the mud. A tailor of Grand street spent two hours trying to scrape the mud from the coat, while the Police Justice himself worked at the trousers during intermissions in the business of the court.
